FRANCE MASSES TROOPS AS NEW RIOTING FLARES

Paris in Panic; Fears Royalist Revolt.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on Back Page.)

PARIS, Feb. 5 [Monday].—France has a bad case of the jitters today. A revolution by royalists and Fascisti looms on the right. A dictatorship by militant Socialists and their allies looms on the left.

Still gasping from the sharpness of Saturday's action when Premier Edouard Daladier removed Chief of Police Jean Chiappe, the powerful Corsican, and three members of the cabinet, the French capital last night reeled from the impact of renewed rioting.

Protest Chiappe's Discharge.

Young patriots, who are organizing as Fascisti, combined with Royalists to demonstrate against the Republican régime and to protest against the discharge of Chiappe, popular as France's modern "Napoleon." Adrian Bonnefoy-Sibour, who succeeded Chiappe as prefect, rushed to the scene of the disorders near the Place de l'Opera, personally to direct his forces against the mob.

The Royalists, leaders in recent disturbances growing out of the $60,000,000 Stavisky bond swindle and revelations of corruption in high places and their cohorts, offered battle to the police.

Shouts of "Long live Chiappe! Long live the police!" mingled with jeers directed at the Daladier government. Café owners hastily cleared their terraces and shopkeepers clapped down steel shutters. The police finally quelled the rioters. Seventy-five arrests were made.

Raid War Veterans.

Gendarmes patroled the boulevards until far into the night. Once they raided an outdoor meeting of several hundred war veterans in front of Clemenceau's monument in the Champs Elysée.

At Lill, industrial center of the north, young Fascists and young Socialists clashed in the central part of the city.

Paris had another bad scare at midnight when the city was suddenly plunged into darkness. Crowds leaving theaters and cafés were terrified. Telephones went dead. For fifteen minutes, until the current was turned on again as mysteriously as it had been turned off, panic prevailed throughout the night life district.

Many believed that the feared revolution against the republic had broken out.

Crowds Grope Through Streets.

Most of the boulevards were feebly illuminated with gas lights, but all cross streets were in total darkness. In many parts of the Montmartre crowds groped through inky streets rushing for subways where trains continued to run because the subways have their own power plants.

The absence of taxicabs—traffic is still paralyzed by a chauffeurs' strike—added to the confusion.

Although the cause of the phenomenon was a mystery, the general belief is that it was due to sabotage intended to create panic in connection with the general political unrest.

The general state of alarm was indicated late yesterday by the mobilization of the military and the Socialists. These movements seemed to be motivated by the fear that the ejected Chiappe might attempt to rally the Royalists and other opposition elements for an insurrection.

The Socialists mobilized thousands of workers at the party headquarters with instructions to "be ready for eventualities." The order called on militants to be ready to obey without hesitation orders issued by the party Socialist young guards and party militiamen were ordered to meet at the party headquarters and remain there

Told to Maintain Discipline.

The SOS, which was published by the Socialist organ Populaire, concluded:

At the same time it was reported the government had summoned the council of military chiefs of the district of Paris to the ministry of war and ordered troops to be concentrated at strategic points on the outskirts of the capital as provided by the famous "Plan Z." This plan was worked out some years ago for investment of the city by troops from nearby garrisons in case the police were overwhelmed by a sudden revolutionary movement.

It also was reported that reinforce

BROWNING O. K.'s ELOPEMENT OF HIS ADOPTED GIRL

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Dorothy Browning, the 17 year old adopted daughter of Edward W. [Daddy] Browning, will be married at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to Clarence B. Hood, 20, of Dunn, N. C., with whom she eloped Friday night. The couple boarded an Atlantic Coast Line train in Wilson, N. C., heading for New York and "Daddy's" blessing.

Tonight it was revealed that "Daddy" had received the young couple with open arms, had arranged for the wedding tomorrow in the Church of the Transfiguration, 1 East 29th street, and then presented his son-in-law with an imported automobile.

News of the elopement became known on Saturday when Miss Annie Dove Wilson, in whose chaperonage Miss Browning temporarily was left several days ago, became alarmed when the girl failed to return home after keeping an engagement with young Hood. Miss Browning lived in Dunn last year and was a student at the Dunn High school.

She formerly had been in the charge of Miss Wilson's sister, now Mrs. George Crofton of Gainesville, Fla., whom Miss Browning had met in New York. Mrs. Crofton, a native of Dunn, was employed before her recent marriage as a teacher in a New York private school. At Mr. Browning's request she became the girl's official chaperon and went with her to Dunn, where they lived until Mrs. Crofton's marriage.

RIVAL STICKNEY POLICE WARRING WITH WARRANTS

A war of warrants was developing yesterday because the village of Stickney has two rival police departments. Chief of Police Louis Marek was discharged by Village President William Loefler recently, but refused to quit or fire his men. Chief of Police James Kassel accepted the job and is the leader of a new force.

One citizen, George Kabella, complained to Sergt. James Miller of the Marek group that he didn't know who was a cop and who wasn't. He was arrested. Kabella then swore out a warrant charging the sergeant with assault and battery.

Sergt. Miller was served with the warrant by James Cutshaw, constable of Stickney township, who stripped the sergeant of his star and gun. Yesterday the sergeant swore out a warrant accusing Cutshaw of stealing the star and gun and tried to serve it. Constable Cutshaw refused to accept service. Sergt. Miller swore out another warrant charging Cutshaw with resisting an officer, then got Constable Ray Flair of Lyons township to serve both papers. Constable Cutshaw was placed under arrest by Constable Flair and was freed on $2,000 bonds.

Fear Dillinger Jail Delivery; Bolster Guard

Fearful that an attempt will be made to rescue Desperado John Dillinger from the Crown Point jail, Indiana authorities strengthened the cordon of guards surrounding him last night after receiving reports that John Hamilton was still alive and was leading the remnants of the outlaw gang. Dillinger is to be arraigned in Crown Point for murder today.

Theodore Milakovich and Matthew Tetak, Gary policemen, said they recognized Hamilton yesterday as he rode in an automobile near Merrillville, Ind. The policemen were on their way to Crown Point to aid Sheriff Lillian Holley in guarding her desperate prisoner. They saw Hamilton in a speeding sedan, they said. He was riding with the driver and a woman was sitting alone in the back seat.

Outdistanced in Chase.

As the policemen drew up with the intention of stopping the car to question its occupants, the driver suddenly put on speed. Milakovich and Tetak pursued the car for two miles, but were finally outdistanced. They said the car carried an Ohio license plate.

It was the second time Hamilton has been reported seen in Indiana within a week. Several days ago a filling station attendant at Danville said he saw a man whom he believed to be Hamilton riding in a sedan similar to the one sighted yesterday. The attendant said he saw a machine gun and a number of other weapons in the back seat of the car in which the man believed to be Hamilton was riding with two other men.

Police Give Report Credence.

Despite the number of false alarms usually received in such cases, authorities were not inclined to consider lightly the reports that Hamilton was lurking in the neighborhood awaiting an opportunity to deliver his leader.

It was pointed out that Hamilton, murderer of a Chicago policeman in a north side garage, is considered by police to be the only member of the band now at large who is capable of engineering a rescue.

The recurring reports of Hamilton's presence in this part of the country have led authorities to discount the story told them by Dillinger concerning Hamilton's supposed death. After his capture at Tucson, Ariz., Dillinger said his lieutenant was fatally wounded in the robbery of the First National bank of East Chicago, Ind., in connection with which Dillinger is to be arraigned today for the murder of Policeman William Patrick O'Malley.

As the outlaws were emerging from the bank after O'Malley had been slain, Hamilton was wounded, Dillinger said, when he pulled his bulletproof vest up so he could sit down in their car. A police bullet, Dillinger said, struck Hamilton in the abdomen directly under the edge of his vest. Dillinger claimed he had been informed later that Hamilton had died of his wounds.

Police knew that Hamilton had been wounded in the severe gun battle that attended the robbery because they found that the desperado had dropped a bloodstained gun as he entered an automobile and escaped after the battle. Until recently the police had been inclined to accept Dillinger's report that his henchman was dead, but they now view with doubt not only that story but others which the outlaw leader "confessed."

Hamilton is wanted in Chicago for the murder of Sergt. William T. Shanley, detective squad leader, who was slain in an attempt to capture the gangster last Dec. 14 in an automobile repair shop at 5320 Broadway.

Dillinger will be arraigned at 2 p. m. today before Judge William J. Murray in the Criminal court of Lake county at Crown Point.

EX-U. S. SENATOR COMES TO AID OF KIDNAP VICTIM

Plans to Intercede in Factor Arrest.

James A. Reed, former United States senator from Missouri, paid a flying visit to Chicago yesterday and left a few hours later for Washington, where he will arrive today.

He came here on an inspired mission—to intercede in Great Britain's extradition proceedings against John Factor, wealthy speculator, so that Factor can stay in Chicago as a technically free man while he testifies at the second kidnaping trial of the three Touhy gangsters. His trip to the capital today will be in furtherance of that mission.

A Foe of Kidnapers.

The white haired ex-senator is an implacable foe of kidnaping and kidnapers. His wife, the former Nell Q. Donnelly, millionaire garment manufacturer of Kansas City, was once held captive by kidnapers for 36 hours for $75,000 ransom. Therein lies Mr. Reed's hatred of kidnapers and the reason that, without solicitation or invitation, he has offered to assist Factor.

Mr. Reed's immediate concern has to do with the demand of Great Britain for Factor's arrest and his detention as a federal prisoner during the second Touhy trial. Believing that Factor would be a more effective witness if he were technically free, the former senator will try to convince federal authorities to permit Factor to stay in a hotel, under guard, until the trial is over.

Extradition Is Ordered.

Factor has been ordered extradited to England by the United States Supreme court to stand trial on charges of defrauding British investors of millions of dollars. While his fight against extradition was pending in the courts he was kidnaped and released on payment of $70,000. Factor identified Touhy, Gustave Schaefer, and Abe Kator as members of the mob. He testified against them at their trial, which ended in disagreement last Friday. Now the case will be tried again Feb. 13.

At the first trial Factor was at liberty, but under protection of state authorities. The British government, it is understood, will not object to Factor remaining in Chicago for the second trial, but wants him held as a federal prisoner.

It was this complication that brought Reed, who is 72 years old, into the case. Mr. Reed, shortly after his arrival yesterday, met State's Attorney Courtney and asked him how important Factor would be as a state witness at the forthcoming trial. Mr. Courtney replied Factor's presence—without strings—was indispensable. That was enough for Mr. Reed. Not long afterward he was on his way to Washington.

Kidnaping of His Wife.

Mr. Reed did not account for his interest in the case, but Mr. Courtney, Factor, and others did. The kidnaping of Mrs. Reed was the answer. Mrs. Reed, who was then the wife of Paul F. Donnelly, was kidnaped from in front of her home in December, 1931. Thirty-six hours later she was freed without having paid the demanded ransom.

During the then Mrs. Donnelly's absence, Mr. Reed, her friend and attorney, issued a solemn ultimatum. "I will run down the kidnapers and send them to the gallows if one hair of her head is harmed," he warned. The warning was effective. Mrs. Donnelly was released. Soon afterward the kidnapers were captured, one of them in South Africa. All are now in prison, two serving life terms, one 25 years, and the other 35 years.

Appreciates His Interest.

Factor recalled this last night when asked whether he had asked Mr. Reed to intercede for him at Washington.

"I did not retain Senator Reed," said Factor. "I never saw him. Any interest he takes in my case must be motivated by a personal hatred of kidnapers. Naturally, I appreciate his interest."

The extradition matter will come up locally tomorrow before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan. At that time Attorney Franklin R. Overmyer, representing the British crown, will press his motion that Factor be turned over to federal marshals. If this motion is allowed, Factor will be confined in the county jail at Sycamore as a federal prisoner until he is taken to England.

4 Are Jailed in Slaying of Indiana Pastor

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 4. — [Special.]—Two women and two youths, all of whom police say have confessed, are held in jail here for the murder of the Rev. Gaylord V. Saunders, 36, former pastor of a Methodist church in Wabash, who was found slain in his automobile here Friday morning. The four will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow morning.

Those held are Mrs. Naomi Saunders, widow of the slain man; Mrs. Mabel Balke, a nurse, who attended Mrs. Saunders when she was ill recently, and Joseph T. Mathers and Masil Roe, both 19. The youths live in Coalmont, Clay county.

Young Mathers, roommate and fellow student of the minister at the Indiana College of Embalming here, which Saunders had been attending since Nov. 28, has confessed shooting the pastor in the head on a country road on the northern outskirts of Indianapolis. He killed Saunders, Mathers says, after Mrs. Saunders gave him $10 to hire some one to do the slaying.

Feared Slaying, They Say.

Both Mathers and Mrs. Saunders say they feared the pastor was planning to kill Mrs. Saunders and their two sons, Billy, 10, and Jimmy, 13.

Police are investigating a report that Saunders had $16,000 of insurance, payable to his wife.

Three weeks ago, when Mrs. Saunders came here, according to Mathers' confession, "we agreed Mr. Saunders had become mentally unbalanced. He had threatened to kill Mrs. Saunders, their two boys, and we [Mrs. Saunders and Mathers] agreed some one should kill him. Mrs. Saunders gave me $10 to hire some one to do so."

Tells of Buying Weapon.

But Mathers said he was afraid to hire a murderer, so "I took $8.50 of my weekly allowance money sent from home and gave it to Masil Roe to buy a revolver." Roe had come here with Mathers last fall from their home in Coalmont, Mathers to attend the embalming school and Roe a business college.

Mathers' confession continues:

"That night I told Roe of the minister's threats and that I intended to kill Saunders and then myself.

"Roe, Saunders, and I played cards until 11 p. m.; then we went to the Brown Derby [an uptown supper club] and Saunders had several drinks of whisky. At about 2 a. m. we got into Saunders' auto and rode north out of town. Roe was driving; Saunders was between us; we were all in the front seat. We stopped and I got out and then opened the right rear door, pointed the revolver at the back of Saunders' head, and fired.

"He slumped over in the seat and I drove back to Fortieth street. I took $3 out of Saunders' pocketbook which belonged to me, and also his one carat diamond ring and his watch, and left the pocketbook on the running board so it would appear to be robbery."

Mrs. Saunders Confesses.

Mrs. Saunders supplied other details in her confession.

"I had given Mathers $10 to hire some one to kill my husband, who had threatened to kill all of us," said the widow. "I went back to Wabash with Mathers' promise that Mr. Saunders would be killed before Friday, when he intended to come up to Wabash again. When I learned of Mr. Saunders death I rode back to Indianapolis with Mrs. Mabel Balke of Wabash, my nurse. While we were packing up Mr. Saunders things Mathers came in. He gave me the gun, ring, and watch, and then rode back with us to Wabash. En route home he told Mrs. Balke of the threats and how Mr. Saunders was killed. Mrs. Balke took the gun, watch, and ring to her home."

HURTS DIGNITY TO WEAR LINEN COAT; WINS $213 AWARD

PARIS, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Luiz Bertrand, once secretary to the former Argentine ambassador, the Marquis Alvarez de Toledo, today won a verdict of $213 in his "injured dignity" suit against Gen. Pertine, president of the Argentine commission for foreign purchases.

Bertrand was appointed chief clerk to the purchasing commission when the ambassador retired in 1930. However, apparently he was not a favorite with Gen. Pertine, Bertrand complaining that the general did many things to humiliate him. The climax came one morning when the general told him to put on a linen office coat generally reserved for lesser employés whose work is apt to be dusty.

This was too much for Bertrand, who refused to don the coat, and the general discharged him for insubordination. Bertrand sued for damages.

MONEY POLICIES BUOY HOPES OF TRADE LEADERS

Some Worried Over U. S. Spending.

CWA proves a new wheel of fortune to congressional politicians, willing to stake their future against demands for further dole outlays. Details on page 2.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Business leaders are prophets of renewed hope these days, as in considerable numbers they express opinions that the President's monetary policies will have the effect of stimulating commercial and industrial activity.

Sprinkled among these, however, are some influential commercialists who are willing to concede that the nation is entering into a period of greater business activity, but who are expressing frank fears that when the billions of New Deal moneys are spent, and the time comes for the taxpayers to foot the bill, a new and more severe collapse may come upon the country.

The past week, in addition to bringing promise of new business expansions, produced also a tendency toward a bull market, with prices of stocks, bonds, and commodities veering sharply upward. Farmers are taking new heart, it is reported from the hinterlands, as they note further gains in the prices of wheat, corn, cotton, and other crops.

Industry Ready to Act.

The optimistic note sounded by some business leaders is taken from two angles. One is that they profess to see in the fixing of the gold content of the dollar at 59.06 per cent of its old parity a stabilization of American currency which will accord to investors a reasonable assurance that the moneys they loan out for business expansion will be repaid to them in dollars of a constant value.

For the same reason industrialists are reported to be ready to embark upon expenditures for capital purposes, a necessity which all observers of the financial situation concede is of the most vital importance in producing any lasting recovery from the depression.

The second major factor in the situation, as business men see it, is the evidence of a renewed determination by the President to effect a widespread expansion of credit. The lowering of the federal rediscount rate is relied upon as a potent force in starting the ball of relaxed credits rolling.

Many Dispute Stabilization.

The National Association of Manufacturers, in today's announcement, carried the opinions of the members of its board of directors on the business outlook. At the outset the announcement referred to "the stabilization of the dollar" by President Roosevelt, and some of the business men who joined in the symposium made similar references.

In this connection some business critics of the New Deal have declared the President's program of juggling the dollar up and down, between the limits of 50 and 60 per cent of the old parity, in his effort to control price levels, does not constitute stabilization of the currency.

These critics point out that tomorrow, if he chooses, Mr. Roosevelt can forsake the 59.06 valuation, and drop it to 50 per cent, and the next day he could boost it to 55, and so on. They do not charge the President with such capricious motives, but they do cite Mr. Roosevelt's own statement, made in announcing the first devaluation, that he reserves the right to change the mark whenever he deems it necessary.

Await Speculative Lull.

There is also the present uncertainty abroad, resulting from the flight of gold to the United States, with the strong probability that France will be forced off the gold standard. The treasury is hopeful, however, that the first rush, which the administration views as a hysterical speculative affair, will die down, and thus pave the way toward an international agreement for monetary settlements.

Negotiations have already commenced, it was learned, between the United States and England, looking toward joining the dollar, at its reduced valuation, with the pound. It is conceded, of course, that until the present wild money market subsides it will not be possible to come to a definite decision on the relative values of both currencies.

Clinton L. Bardo of Camden, N. J., president of the New York Shipbuilding corporation and president of the

"Clarification of the administration's monetary policy has improved business sentiment, stimulated confidence in the credit position of the government, and made possible industrial commitments for the future with a reasonable degree of safety. As a result there is in prospect during the next few months a broad expansion in trade volumes, a stepping up in both the rate and degree of business activity and an increase in commodity prices."

Pessimism Creeps In.

Several notes of dour pessimism were sounded also by the leaders, chief among these being Russel Grinnell, president of the Grinnell company of Providence, R. I.

"My personal opinion," he said, "is that while it is highly probable that for the next months, or perhaps for a longer period, business will improve, there will eventually come a day of reckoning which may very possibly bring on worse conditions than we have yet experienced. I am very fearful that when the people wake up to the fact that they have got to pay for all the enormous expenditures which are now being made and for the reckless and extravagant waste of money which is in progress, there will be a reaction, the severity of which and the results of which it is impossible for any one to predict."

Another dubious note came from George McNeir, Amsterdam, N. Y., chairman of the board of the Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., who, while conceding that there is some evidence of improvement in most lines of business, found a "serious cloud on the horizon:"

"This is the evident purpose of labor to continue agitation for a 30 hour week and perhaps other demands," he declared. "Unemployment and labor demands are the most troublesome questions that confront us."

A Few Representative Opinions.

F. N. BARD, president Barco Manufacturing company, Chicago—The monetary legislation proposed by the President is not entirely satisfactory to many but there is much good in it and it is definite, which gives business a starting point. I believe business is happy over the settlement of this question. If apprehensions with reference to the enormous expenditures of the government and its unbalanced budget can be reduced, the situation will be in excellent shape.

GUY A. WAINWRIGHT, president Diamond Chain and Manufacturing company, Indianapolis, Ind.—We have confidence in the immediate future and we feel certain that currency stabilization will release a demand for capital goods, which has been held in check by fear of the future course of the dollar.

CHARLES R. HOOK, president American Rolling Mill company, Middletown, O.—There is evidence on all sides, in all branches of business, of a very definite upturn in the last few weeks.

F. A. MERRICK, president Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, East Pittsburgh, Pa.—The hopeful thing ahead lies in the indication that crystallization of the changed rules of the business game seems about at hand.

Better Than Year Ago.

F. W. LOVEJOY, vice president Eastman Kodak company, Rochester, N. Y.—The period in which a seasonal increase in industrial activity normally takes places is at hand. The huge expenditures being made by the federal government on CWA, PWA and crop reduction projects must eventually have a stimulating effect on general business.

JOHN B. BERRYMAN, president Crane company, Chicago—Conditions are so much better than at this time last year that we feel encouraged, although we are working only 40-45 per cent of capacity in the industrial division and much less in the plants producing plumbing goods. However, the amount of business coming in from industrial plants for replacements and repairs, indicates a general increase in activity all over the country and is a significant indication of improved conditions. I am not very enthusiastic about some of the weird propositions coming out of Washington, but as far as the currency is concerned, it seems to be that stabilization with gold at any point was better than uncertainty. The New Deal has knocked all our old fashioned ideas about the sanctity of contracts into a cocked hat, has violated the rights of citizens guaranteed by the constitution, is piling up enormous taxes and is building a bureaucracy which we shall have difficulty in shaking off.

CWA NEW WHEEL OF FORTUNE TO U. S. POLITICIANS

Futures Set Against More Cash Outlays.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—CWA, which is a camouflaged dole to the unemployed, has become the hot spot of the government setup in Washington. Political fortunes are being staked on the continued outpouring of billions of dollars for nominal employment of the idle in a multitude of activities, euphemistically denominated civil works.

President Roosevelt has asked congress for 950 million dollars to carry depression relief and CWA up to May 1. Members of congress who will be candidates for reelection next November immediately declared this program wholly inadequate. They are prepared to force through the house an addition of 1½ billions to the appropriation to provide for a continuation of CWA until after the election.

The Democratic leaders of the house circumvented this move by scheduling the 950 million dollar appropriation bill for consideration tomorrow, when it can be taken up only by suspension of the rules which prohibits amendment of the measure.

House to Pass It.

The house, therefore, will be confined to voting up or down the 950 millions. The house will pass the bill and it will go to the senate, where the sky is the limit so far as increasing the appropriation is concerned. If the senate boosts the allowance the house is likely to acquiesce.

The President calculates that, what with seasonal increase of employment and with the revival of business which he attributes to recovery measures, a sufficient number of the unemployed will have been absorbed into industry to make possible the discontinuance of CWA in May. If, however, this calculation proves erroneous, the administration will be confronted with an ominous and menacing insistence on the continuation of the dole.

In that event, if congress shall not have provided the funds, the President will be compelled to find the money somewhere and will invoke the greenback issue and other inflationary provisions of the Thomas amendment.

Recovery-Inflation Race.

It is going to be a race between recovery and inflation. If recovery fails to materialize sufficiently by May, the administration will face the necessity of starting the currency printing presses.

The President's popularity, according to the charters of economic graphs, is bound up with CWA. The graph shows the line of Mr. Roosevelt's popularity steadily ascending from March 4 through the spring formative period of the new deal and the summer industrial boom to September, when the recovery program began to sag. From that point the line descends until November, when the President established CWA and began the distribution of hundreds of millions of dollars to the unemployed. With that, the line representing the President's popularity took a sharp turn upward and is still ascending.

Biggest of Pork Barrels.

The graft scandals attaching to the distribution of the vast sums of government money through CWA disclose the politicians wallowing in a pork barrel of unparalleled proportions. The President had deplored it and is endeavoring to stop it. Despite all the efforts of "Honest Harold" Ickes the pork barrel pickings from PWA have been especially juicy.

Even Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, who has been more outspoken in his denunciation of political influence than Secretary Ickes, has been unable to resist pressure from senators and representatives in the valley states along the Tennessee river.

Originally he wanted to confine TVA dam construction for the present to Norris dam—the old Cove creek project previously approved by congress. But the TVA act gives authority to construct additional dams. So last October President Roosevelt requested TVA to start work on a second project, Joe Wheeler dam, near the original Muscle Shoals Wilson dam. Suggestions for other dams were coming into TVA from various points along the river. At first these were fought off on the ground that, while they were desirable eventually, it was not wise to start work on them at once before a definite conservation policy had been worked out.

Pressure for Aurora Dam.

There was particular pressure for a dam at Aurora Landing on the Tennessee river. First, private power interests wanted to build one there. TVA opposed this, insisting that all dam projects in the valley be under its control. Then came pressure for immediate construction of Aurora dam by TVA. Tennessee and Kentucky senators and representatives got behind it.

Chairman Morgan felt that other projects were more urgent. Meantime pressure arose for dams at Pickwick Landing and a third storage dam in one of the Tennessee's upper tributaries. Finally Dr. Morgan, a few days ago, went to the White House and President Roosevelt suggested a conference of department heads to consider the situation.

Then, seeing how matters were moving, Chattanooga came in with a request for a dam at Chickamauga Creek.

Will Meet with Ickes.

This is the situation Chairman Morgan has on his hands over the week-end. Tomorrow and Tuesday he will confer with Secretary Ickes and other officials to see if money can be found to satisfy the congressional demands. TVA was allotted only 50 millions and this will be more than used up by the Norris and Wheeler dams already started.

If Secretary Ickes cannot find the money, senator and representatives from Tennessee river states may take matters into their own hands and try to get it from congress. There is some talk among administration officials that it might be possible to satisfy the senators and representatives by using CWA money to put men to work clearing brush off the dam sites in question. Then they could go back to their constituents and tell them that they had got work started.

Illustrations of Pressure.

These instances illustrate the constant political pressure that administration officials are subjected to when they are given broad discretionary powers. It happened when southern growers forced the administration to peg cotton prices by making loans at market quotations through the commodity credit corporation. Corn growers came in next and obtained loans of the same sort. The original domestic allotment plan was so modified that its father, Prof. M. L. Wilson, was happy to leave the agriculture department and devote himself to his chief hobby, the creation of subsistence homesteads.

SOUTH AFRICA REAPS RICH REWARD OUT OF NEW GOLD RUSH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—South Africa is reaping a rich reward from the gold boom. With the gold fields on the crest of a wave of prosperity, the whole country is falling into line. Reports received in London tonight show that all industries are benefiting.

The South African government is getting $30,000,000 from the excess profits tax on the gold mines. This sum might be increased appreciably except for the fact that the government pledged itself in the last parliamentary session to abide by that figure as a maximum.

Additional customs receipts have jumped up considerably. From stamp duties alone, and in the registration of new companies as a result of the gold rush, the government has already received over $500,000. A substantial budget surplus is in prospect and political prophets are predicting an income tax reduction, a bonus to civil servants equivalent to the total of their salary cuts, and the return of cheaper postage.

NEW MILK CODE IN EFFECT TODAY; SEE PRICE WAR

All Chicago Distributors to Be Licensed.

The federal government's new licensing plan to regulate the Chicago milk market goes into effect this morning. Marketing experts familiar with the Chicago situation foresaw last night the possibility of court action over the attempts to license all local distributors and force them to pay fixed prices to the producers.

Broad powers to enforce the new code are vested in Frank C. Baker of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, who has been appointed federal milk administrator for Chicago. Mr. Baker left Washington for Chicago yesterday and he is expected to open offices here today.

The prediction of trouble came despite apparent satisfaction with the new arrangement on the part of the Pure Milk association and the independents who fought the government's previous effort to control the local market. The PMA is composed of 18,000 dairy farmers who furnish the greater part of the milk consumed in the Chicago area.

Unlike the previous agreement, which Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace was forced to terminate last Jan. 1, the new license plan makes no attempt to fix retail prices. This leaves the door open to free competition and also a possible price war, which, combined with the guarantee of a fixed price to the farmer, would place a premium on the dairies with low overhead and operating costs.

The price of delivered milk is now 10 cents a quart, a reduction of 1 cent a quart from the peak price established under the old code. Cash and carry milk is sold for 9 cents a quart in some 2,000 chain stores. This cash and carry sales plan was introduced by the large distributors last month to get back some of the trade which they had lost to the independent milk depots whose cut rate sales are blamed for wrecking the old milk code.

Any further reduction of retail prices, however, would narrow the distributors' margin to a point where some dairies with large operating costs might be forced out of business, according to one distributor.

"Should such a situation arise," he said, "there is no question but that there would be a court battle over the right of the government to impose the licensing plan."

Labor May Be Hit.

Before such action is reached, he added, there would be attempts to cut costs of distribution. Labor would be hit by this, because it accounts for nearly two-thirds of the cost of distribution.

Steve Sumner, secretary-treasurer of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, local 753, said the new license plan is satisfactory to the drivers so long as their pay is not cut. He said the drivers do not want to strike, but will not take any cut beyond the $45 a month wage reduction which they took a year ago.

Fears were felt that the plan might be difficult to enforce, with 22,000 farmers shipping milk into the Chicago market. It was pointed out that companies wishing to cheat could make deals with producers for lower prices, but not enter these on their books.

Don N. Geyer, manager of the PMA, expressed the hope that there would be a minimum of control exercised by the government and, therefore, a minimum of antagonism aroused.

Fluid Milk Price Cut.

Joseph E. Green, attorney for the Independent Milk Distributors' association, said he anticipates no protests from his members.

Prices fixed in the license plan announced Saturday will average within a few cents of the present payment to the farmer for his entire output.

The present price of $1.85 a hundred pounds (approximately 4 cents a quart) is reduced to $1.75 a hundred pounds (nearly 3.8 cents a quart) for fluid milk. The product used to make cream will net the farmer $1.25 a hundred pounds, or 2.7 cents a quart, as compared to the present price of $1.07½ a hundred pounds (2.3 cents a quart). The price per hundred pounds of surplus milk, from which butter is made, is fixed at three and one-half times the average wholesale price per pound of 92 score butter.

ANN DVORAK'S PLEA SUCCESSFUL; FATHER IS FOUND IN THE EAST

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Ann Dvorak's nation-wide appeal for aid in locating her father, Edward McKim, whom she has not seen for 14 years, has brought results.

The film actress said today he had communicated with her from Philadelphia, where he now resides.

To confirm his relationship, McKim sent Miss Dvorak a strip of movie film showing her as a child of four. He told her he would come west to see her soon.

NEW YORK CITY TAXICAB STRIKE WILL END TODAY

Drivers and Company to Split $500,000 Fund.

New York, Feb. 5 (Monday.)—[Special.]—The taxicab strike, which, in the three days it lasted, is estimated to have cost the industry nearly $300,000, was settled last night, largely through the efforts of Mayor La Guardia.

Just before midnight a committee of thirteen, representing the drivers, reached an agreement with the operators. This agreement, which also had the approval of Mayor La Guardia and Morris L. Ernst, the mediator, was submitted by the committee of thirteen to all the drivers at two meetings early today.

If the drivers agreed to the terms Mr. Ernst was to be notified at 6 a. m. Normal cab service was scheduled to be resumed an hour later.

Pay 25 Per Cent Immediately.

By the terms of the agreement entered into last night the public, the drivers, and the operating companies will share in the five cents extra fare imposed by former Mayor O'Brien. The agreement provides:

The drivers and the companies will split the $500,000 which has accumulated under the extra 5 cents metering. Of this sum 25 per cent will be paid immediately to the drivers and the balance in three consecutive weekly installments.

Next Monday and on the two following Mondays the cab drivers will receive 40 per cent of the gross amount registered on the meters. On the days the public will share in the new agreement persons using cabs will be permitted to deduct one-third of the amount shown on the meter. The taxis will have cards advising the public of this fact.

Three Bargain Days for Riders.

In the future the drivers will be entitled to 40 per cent of the much-disputed 5 cent extra fare, and the company will retain the balance. As the matter stood last night the interest of the riding public in the increased fare will be confined to the three "bargain" Mondays set.

By entering into the agreement last night with the representatives of the strikers the operators gave tacit recognition to the Central Taxicab Committee of Thirteen, which functioned in the absence of any city-wide taxicab drivers' union.

The refunds made to the drivers will be paid over by the operators to an arbitrator to be named by Mayor La Guardia. This arbitrator will have full authority to distribute the money among the drivers. He also will have authority to intervene in cases of alleged blacklisting or discrimination by the companies in taking back drivers.

1,000 NEW YORK COOKS AND WAITERS WILL GO BACK TO WORK TODAY

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Amalgamated Hotel and Restaurant Workers' union announced today that 1,000 striking cooks and waiters will return to work tomorrow, as the result of settlements made with eleven hotels and restaurants. Terms of the agreements were not available.

Union headquarters added that 2,000 former employes of 75 other establishments would remain out until their demands are met. Among these places is the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, where the strike had its inception.

CLUB CONFERENCE TO HEAR SPECIAL W-G-N BROADCAST

Women of 5 States to See an Entire Program.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

As the result of one of the biggest radio coups of recent years, leading clubwomen of the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa, and Illinois will see and hear a complete broadcast of the W-G-N Concert orchestra during the Conference on Major Problems, to be held under auspices of THE TRIBUNE at the Palmer House, Feb. 15 and 16. Instead of bringing the audience to the studio, the entire broadcasting staff, including announcers, musicians and their instruments, will be transferred to the grand ballroom of the hotel for the event.

Not only will the assembled women, representing organizations affiliated with the state federation, witness the entire broadcast from start to finish, but they will have the opportunity of hearing artists of the first rank. Soloist with the orchestra is Attilio Baggiore, whose voice is constantly compared to that of John McCormack and for whom a brilliant future has been predicted and is rapidly being realized.

Petrillo and W-G-N Assist.

Arrangements to bring the broadcasting performance to the grand ballroom of the hotel were completed through the coöperation of James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, and the executives of W-G-N. The plan was decided on because of the size of the audience and the difficulty of accomodating so large a group of visitors in any studio —some of whom will be witnessing their first radio performance.

The broadcast will precede the reception to be held Thursday evening, Feb. 15, in honor of the visiting club officials, and will bring the Concert orchestra before a group that includes many regular listeners to the Thursday night programs. This aggregation of musicians, under the direction of Adolphe Dumont, is one of the finest in the country.

But the broadcast, important as it is, will not be the only achievement of that evening, for artists of the first rank will be heard in addition to Baggiore and the orchestra.

Noted Stars on Program.

Coe Glade, formerly of the Chicago Civic Opera, will participate in the entertainment. Lawrence Salerno, Neapolitan baritone, and for eight years a member of the staff of W-G-N, will sing some of the numbers he has made famous. He will be accompanied by Allan Grant, also of the W-G-N staff and piano soloist of note, who will contribute two instrumental numbers. Wadeeha Atiyeh, young Syrian soprano, will be heard in a group of songs.

First announcements of the Conference on Major Problems brought a quick response from the groups for whom it was planned. More than 3,000 invitations have been issued since then, to individual organizations in the five states, formally listed in the yearbooks of the federations, and were followed by requests for further information and details.

The purpose of the gathering is to bring before the women's organizations a list of speakers eminent in their fields, and well qualified to summarize for the club memberships, the latest developments, information and trends of thought in various aspects of the national problems of today. Topics will include finance, education, legislation, crime, international affairs and similar themes.

Since the first list of speakers was published, Melchoir Palyi, guest professor at the University of Chicago, has been secured for the program. Dr. Palyi comes from Germany, where he held a prominent position as adviser to German banks and financiers. He was ousted by the Hitler forces. He has agreed to give this large feminine audience an explanation in simple, non-technical language, of the meaning and significance in their own circles, of the phrase, "the gold standard."

Mrs. W. W. Seymour to Speak.

Mrs. W. W. Seymour of Chicago, chairman of the American Home committee of the General Federation of Women's clubs, has also been secured as one of the speakers. Mrs. Seymour, who is widely known throughout the country as well as in her own territory, will give a résumé of the work of her committee, and summarize the changing conditions affecting the American home during the past decade.

Another who will speak at the conference is Miss Helen Bennett, originator of the Women's World's Fairs that were held annually in Chicago for several years, prior to the 1933 A Century of Progress, and a leader in activities for women. Miss Bennett, now a member of A Century of Progress staff, will discuss the problem confronting the university and college graduates of the past few years in their search for employment and their place in the world, and outline possible trends in vocational training to solve their difficulties.

Bites Dog in Play; Pooch Snaps Back and Means It

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Andrew Pelton, 36 years old, an auto mechanic, was spending Sunday resting in bed when Buster, his police dog pup, jumped beside him. Pelton made a face, growled, and snapped his teeth on the dog's nose. Buster snapped back, closing his teeth on his master's nose. It was Pelton's turn to howl. He went to the hospital for treatment, then went home to bandage Buster's nose.

FALLS TO DEATH AT INFIRMARY.

UNION THREATENS STRIKE VOTE ON NORTH WESTERN Rail 'Grievances' Dispute Affects 26,000.

Threat of a strike vote affecting 26,000 employés of the Chicago and North Western railway was made here yesterday by E. K. Hogan, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men of America.

The possibility of strike action, announced by Hogan at a meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor, is based on the railway company's alleged refusal to settle 507 grievances filed by employés and groups of employés.

An ultimatum will be served on the railroad today demanding that proper steps be taken for the settlement of grievances, according to Hogan. In the event of refusal, strike ballots will be sent out at once to members of the Car Men's Brotherhood, he told the Chicago federation's session.

Sargent Gives Reasons.

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western, declared last night that the controversy is due to the fact that the railroad compels its employés to obey the company's rules.

"As a result of enforcing strict obedience to safety regulations," said Mr. Sargent, "accidents have steadily declined on our lines. Our road has won the national safety award for the last three years for having the fewest accidents per man hour.

"It is significant that there has been no complaint from the workmen themselves. It is only the union officials who are objecting to strict discipline in safety matters. For some strange reason these officials are reviving disciplinary matters that were settled as long as two and three years ago," Mr. Sargent added.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, speaking for Hogan, said that one of the employés' grievances was that the railroad is not fulfilling an agreement that it would deal with labor organizations regarding disputes over working conditions.

He said that though Mr. Sargent is obligated by the agreement to hear grievances personally when the request is made of him, he has refused to do so and shunts such matters off on a "stalking horse."

Upholds Right of Appeal.

"The men have the right of appeal to me all right," declared Mr. Sargent when asked about that point, "and when appeals are made I will act. But the railroad will not accept dictation regarding discipline, and that is the main reason for this dispute."

He added that he doubted that the road's employés would vote for a strike if they are called upon to express themselves in the matter.

It was pointed out last night that the voting of a strike by the car men does not mean an immediate walkout. Following an affirmative vote the matter is submitted to various arbitration boards and conciliators, a course which many times entails months of discussion and mediation before final action is taken.

GREECE REFUSES TO PERIL INSULL'S LIFE BY ARREST

Fear Emotional Strain Would Kill Him.

ATHENS, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A monocled young police physician, Dr. N. L. Haniotis, expressed the opinion today that the battery of medical professors assembled to pass upon the health of Samuel Insull will not give their decision until the minister of the interior decides how the financier shall leave Greece.

"I believe the professors agree with my colleague and myself that Insull is able to travel by boat or by train, but they do not advise him to leave by airplane," said Dr. Haniotis.

Couldn't Bear Arrest.

"I assume the professors are unwilling to certify that Insull is able to stand the emotional strain incident to possible arrest by American authorities once he has been transported beyond the Greek frontier by boat or by train."

The minister of the interior said today flatly:

"I am unwilling to commit the crime of causing Insull's possible death by indirectly leading him into arrest by American authorities.

Departure Uncertain.

The status of Insull's deportation from Greece remained uncertain, pending orders from the ministry of the interior. He is sought by American authorities who wish to take him back to the United States to face charges of embezzlement and fraudulent bankruptcy in connection with his utility interests in Chicago.

SHOT TO DEATH AFTER SPANKING GIRL IN SALOON

Alex Kaedalis, 35 years old, part owner of the Four Brothers saloon and café at 1044 Broadway, Gary, was slain yesterday by two gunmen who police believe were avenging the spanking of a checkroom girl in the saloon before a crowd of men customers two weeks ago.

The gunmen came upon Kaedalis as he stood by his car in front of the saloon and fired four shots into his body. At the time Kaedalis and a garage mechanic were pumping up the tires in the saloon owner's car which it is believed had been deflated to give his assailants the opportunity they sought. After the shooting the gunmen ran to a waiting automobile in which a third man drove them rapidly away.

According to the Gary police Kaedalis quarreled two weeks ago with Miss Anna Sowachka, whom he employed as a checkroom attendant. Police said he took the girl across his knees and spanked her before the café crowd. She and her brother were missing from their home at the Victoria hotel in Gary when police sought them for questioning.

ANOTHER GANG MURDER LAID TO FEDERAL 'LEAK'

U.S. Agents Quizzing Slain Public Enemy.

Fillmore street police declared yesterday that a suspected leak concerning federal investigations may have been responsible for the murder earlier in the day of Ernest J. Rossi, 37 years old, a public enemy who fell before a double charge of shotgun fire as he mounted the steps of his home at 5529 Flournoy street. For two weeks Rossi had been in the custody of federal agents.

Capt. John Ryan of the Fillmore station said he suspected that word of what Rossi revealed somehow had reached his west side gang associates. Supervising Captain John Stege expressed the same theory.

Victim Fighting Extradition.

Rossi had been arrested for a bank robbery in Holland, Mich., and had fought extradition. He was to have appeared Feb. 21 in the Criminal court on a writ of habeas corpus through which he hoped to avoid being returned to Michigan. The Chicago police also suspect him of being the leader of a gang that stole $49,500 in cash, jewelry and securities from the safety deposit vaults of Koch & Co., 2803 South Halsted street, Sept. 5, 1932.

Government agents took Rossi in custody for questioning on postal robberies and kidnapings. He had been associated with Carl Fontana, a mail robber, and at one time was a member of a gang led by Martin O'Leary which was blamed for several kidnapings, including one which resulted in the murder of Policeman Ray Martin.

The murder of Rossi recalled the recent slaying of William [Three Finger Jack] White a few hours after he had been visited by government agents. Before that Gus Winkler, another public enemy, was slain, presumably because he gave information to the government agents in an effort to save himself from prosecution in connection with a loop mail robbery.

Mangano's Brother-in-Law.

Rossi was the brother-in-law of "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, public enemy and reputed vice leader. Rossi had served six months for shooting a policeman and had been arrested many other times.

At 9 o'clock Saturday night he left the home in Flournoy street where he lived with Mangano. He was shot down when he returned home at 1 a. m. The man or men who fired at him had hidden under a stairway.

Capt. Stege said he understood Rossi was at liberty on a $20,000 bond during his extradition fight.

FEW CLOSE RACES FOR PARTY POSTS SEEN IN PRIMARY

Assembly Nominations Lead Contests.

BY PARKE BROWN.

An unusually small number of close contests in the April primary for party nominations for local, legislative, congressional, and state offices was forecast by the early filings, according to politicians who studied the lists yesterday.

For the most part observers' conclusions were that the Democratic organization has its own affairs pretty well under control and that the political depression among Republicans due to big Democratic victories in recent elections continues to dominate that camp.

Assembly Race Closest.

In general, it was said, there apparently will be a higher percentage of contests for nominations for the general assembly than for any other group of offices.

All this was said with an allowance for the fact that petitions for the offices for which filing began on Saturday at the offices of County Clerk Sweitzer and Secretary of State Hughes may be filed as late as Feb. 19, two weeks from today.

Petitions for ward committeeships will not start until Friday. Filing for associate judgeships of the Municipal courts starts today, but this is not expected to produce much excitement.

Politicians said they could foresee little heat in the contests for nominations for county and sanitary district places on the face of the early filings. They believe the Democratic slate is "all set."

Favor Regular G. O. P. Ticket.

On the Republican side they were willing to bet on the regular committee tickets as a whole although the first set of petitions showed some sign of possible warmth.

Contrary to some reports there are no "Crowe-Barrett" candidates. The group identified by that name split asunder earlier in the week and some of the candidates it had on its list before the split filed on their individual initiative. No great importance was attached to the eight candidates backed by the Newton Jenkins group of "Progressive Republicans."

The biggest shakeup disclosed in any legislative district in the Chicago area was found in the filings for the Twenty-ninth district [near north side]. There only one of the Springfield delegation of four—one senator and three representatives—is a candidate for renomination for the office he now holds, yet three of them are assembly candidates.

O'Brien Seeks Old Office.

The advance picture was altered considerably when Lawrence C. O'Brien, former representative who was released from a federal penitentiary last February after serving fourteen months on income tax evasion linked with the sanitary district whoopee era, filed for his old office in the Democratic column.

Up to that time the picture had disclosed that Representative W. J. Connors had forced Senator Edward P. O'Grady to step aside and run for the lower house so that Connors could run for the senate, and bipartisan arrangements had been completed to run only two Democratis and one Republican for the house. The two Democrats were to be O'Grady and Arthur Quinn. The one Republican was to be one of the present members, Joseph E. Farina. Just how much the bipartisan arrangement had to do with his decision has not been learned, but the other Republican incumbent, Robert M. Woodward, filed for his party's nomination for the senate.

Change in Outer Belt.

Another big change in the personnel of a Cook county district's delegation will occur in the Seventh or "outer belt" district, including most of the country towns. Two of the three present members of the house do not seek renomination. They are Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, Republican, wife of Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who has decided to spend her time in Washington, and Emmett McGrath, who is on the regular Democratic slate for county commissioner.

The result was that the filings for this district were heavy. One of the Republicans who filed was Robert J. Burdett, an attorney residing at Homewood, a son of James H. Burdett, a former newspaper political editor.

Four Man Contest Looms.

While in some districts the mandate of the Democratic management that two Democratic nominees be named in each district has been ignored, the party leaders of the Sixth prepared to carry out the order. Joseph H. Donahue, a Democratic incumbent, filed, and so did County Commissioner Charles H. Weber, who preceded Donahue at Springfield. While the senatorial committees of all districts have until March 10 to determine the number of nominees to be named, it is believed the Republicans will name two. This would mean a four man contest for three places in November.

In the Twenty-third district Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes gave first place in the list of Democratic candidates for the senate to Thomas E. Keane, son of Ald. Thomas P. Keane, a veteran organization man, shoving the present senator, William P. Gillmeister, back to second place. This was taken to indicate that the organization is with Keane. Representative William G. Thon, who has served several terms in the house, seeks the Republican senatorial nomination in the district.

Locomotive Is Crippled by Automobile in Crash

Denham Springs, La., Feb. 4.—(AP)—An automobile crashed into a railroad locomotive here and was demolished, but so badly crippled was the locomotive that another engine had to be brought from Baton Rouge to continue the run. Mrs. Ena Guitreau, 25 year old driver of the car, was thrown through the door and escaped with minor injuries.

GREEN REFUSES TO ENFORCE NEW DRINKING LAWS

Opposes Bar Restrictions and Closing Hours.

There will be no punishment in his court for violation of ordinances restricting the manner of drinking, Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green announced yesterday. The judge, who has been sitting in the City Hall branch of the court, has been transferred to the South Chicago branch at 2933 East 89th street, where he will open court this morning.

One of his first official acts, the judge said, will be to summon police captains in his area for a conference on liquor ordinances. He said he opposed the enforcement of the 1 a. m. closing law and the law against drinking at bars.

Invite Return of Bootlegger.

"These regulations are inviting the return of the bootlegger and the speakeasy," he said. "The people should be allowed to drink as they wish and when they wish. The evils of prohibition were brought on by those who attempted to regulate the lives of others by legislation, and these two provisions were conceived in that un-American spirit."

A Waste of Time.

Judge Green said he would tell the captains in his jurisdiction that he will not punish such violators and that arrests for such violations will be a waste of time. Police districts within his jurisdiction are South Chicago, East Side, Grand Crossing, Burnside, Kensington, and Morgan Park.

Before his assignment to the city hall Judge Green presided in the Felony court, where he waged a drive against public enemies under the vagrancy law.

MELVIN TRAYLOR RALLIES AFTER SLIGHT RELAPSE

Physicians attending Melvin A. Traylor were encouraged last night at the manner in which the president of the First National bank came back after a slight relapse yesterday morning in his fight against pneumonia in his home at 426 Barry avenue. It was the 22d day of his illness.

"We feel very much pleased because there was only a slight rise in temperature, to 100," said Dr. William R. Cubbins. "We were glad not to have more trouble. Mr. Traylor is progressing very slowly. He is still quite a sick man."

The oxygen tent which has enclosed the banker for 10 days was removed for 45 minutes yesterday morning, but it was found necessary to replace it to enable him to breathe comfortably. The doctors continued to administer special serums as in the previous several days.

BOY WOUNDED IN SALOON.

Anthony Tarmino, 13 years old, 1008 Townsend street, was in a serious condition in the Henrotin hospital yesterday with a bullet wound in his abdomen inflicted Saturday night when he was accidentally shot while he was in a saloon at 1500 Sedgwick street with his parents.

STATE OPPOSES BAIL FOR FAMILY OF FIVE IN ORPHAN GIRL'S DEATH

Wilkesboro, N. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Solicitor John R. Jones said today he would oppose release in bail of the five members of Warwick W. Tilley's family, held for grand jury action on a charge that they conspired to murder Leota Childress, orphan girl who lived with them.

Luther Tilley, 32 years old; his wife, 30 years old, and his brother, Clyde, 18 years old, have been in jail in connection with the case for two weeks. Warwick Tilley, 60 year old Wilkes county farmer and father of Luther and Clyde, and his wife, 59 years old, were arrested yesterday after a coroner's jury recommended all five be held.

The solicitor indicated that the state would contend a threat by Leota to reveal knowledge incriminating Luther in the killing in 1927 of Andrew Eldridge was the motive for her slaying.

Held with Luther in the Eldridge death is Winfield Stanley. State witnesses quoted Stanley as saying he and Luther hanged Eldridge to scare him and found him dead.

COURT MAY SEE ALICE WYNEKOOP AGAIN TOMORROW

Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, whose illness halted her recent trial for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, may appear in court tomorrow before Chief Justice Philip Finnegan, who is to reassign her case to another judge.

W. W. Smith, chief defense counsel, visited Dr. Wynekoop in the county jail hospital yesterday. He found her condition much better, he said. She herself, he said, hopes for an immediate retrial. Unless her condition changes, Smith declared, Dr. Wynekoop will be in court tomorrow.

Dr. Wynekoop's first trial was before Judge Joseph B. David. She became severely ill during the proceedings, and finally the court declared a mistrial.

FIVE ARRESTED IN ROUNDUP OF BURGLAR GANG

Son of Police Sergeant Is Among Accused.

Five youths and men, one of them a son of a police sergeant, have been rounded up on suspicion of having committed more than a hundred burglaries since November, it was revealed yesterday by Sergt. Thomas Nolan of the Fillmore street police.

Loot valued at $3,000, most of it jewelry, was recovered in the headquarters of the gang, but police believe at least $10,000 in jewelry was taken.

Boasts of Crimes.

The prisoners are Gerald Moran, 18 years old, 3917 Monroe street, son of Sergt. William Moran of the Maxwell street station; Albert Salaben, 45 years old, 526 North Laramie avenue; John Webster, 34 years old, 220 North Kedvale avenue; Albert Meyer, 61 years old, 3844 Wilcox street, and Acklin Day, 22 years old, 4312 Washington boulevard, alleged "brains" of the gang.

Sergt. Nolan arrested Day and the elderly Meyer on Jan. 27 and, after questioning the youth for several hours, obtained a complete confession. Day boasted of the gang's accomplishments and said he selected the homes to be burglarized. Each member of the group worked separately, but all would bring their loot to his home and compare their "take," Day said.

35 Charges of Burglary.

Meyer would not talk, but on Day's story police seized the other three, who also refused to give police any information. According to Day all of the stolen jewelry except that recovered was sold to the American Smelting works, 185 South Wabash avenue. The firm will have a representative in the Boys' court tomorrow when the prisoners are arraigned on 35 charges of burglary.

Among the victims who have identified articles found in Day's home was Miss Nora Newman, 4920 West Jackson boulevard, whose $625 fur coat was recovered.

GIVE COLLEGE COURSE ABOUT HUMOR, PLEADS DR. WM. M'ANDREW

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The absence of any course in humor from American colleges and universities constitutes a great tragedy in education, Dr. William McAndrew, former superintendent of schools in Chicago, declared today before the Mark Twain association.

Colleges in the United States, he said, offer courses in almost every conceivable subject from philosophy to milking cows. It is a great pity that no courses in humor are given, he added, asserting that humor, more than almost anything else, furthers tolerance and understanding of human nature.

Americans, Dr. McAndrew observed, are just beginning to appreciate the dignity, power, and worth of humor.

"How fine it would be," he exclaimed, "if this appreciation were encouraged, instead of being, as it is at present, discouraged."

NEW YALE PLAN AIMS AT CLOSER SOCIAL CONTACT

Fewer Men Register for Trade Courses.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Yale's undergraduate residential college plan, which made its advent last fall, is expected not only to recapture closer contacts between students and faculty, but also to prove of great aid in the matter of getting a job after graduation and starting a career, one of the great problems in colleges as elsewhere since the depression.

The depression itself is accounted the cause of some shifting trends in courses and subjects. One swing at Yale is in the direction of the sciences, especially those connected with modern industrial chemistry, and towards history, sociology, economics, and the science of government. A similar trend is reported at Harvard and other leading universities.

Trend Away from Business.

During the depression a progressive decline of student interest in business careers was noted. While there was an increase in the proportion of scientific and engineering students expecting to enter commercial or industrial lines after graduation, there was an opposite tendency among academic graduates.

The department of personnel study reports that of the Yale college class of 1930 56 per cent expected to enter business and 36 per cent professional study or teaching, with 8 per cent undetermined.

But in the class of 1933 only 37 per cent planned to enter business and 46 per cent the professions, with 17 per cent uncertain as to future plans.

Many Head Towards Law.

Of those bent upon the professions most were headed towards law and medicine, two fields already overcrowded, and a recent report conveys the suggestion:

"Consequently it would be desirable for Yale men attracted by the idea of professional life to explore the possibilities of other interesting and worthwhile careers—for example, in science, social service, civic or federal administration, and other fields where specialized training and the broad outlook of college graduates are badly needed."

"It's a changed world," the personnel department points out. "A few years ago jobs were chasing students over the campus long before graduating day and industries were bidding against each other for promising men, while plenty of openings were on tap in brokerage houses selling bonds and stocks and in banks. All this had a deleterious effect, but the depression cloud, it is argued, had one silver lining in the recapture of some old academic values."

Job Then Sought the Man.

"The job not only sought the man but it did so with a view toward his performing clearly outlined duties," declares a recent report of Albert Beecher Crawford as director of personnel study. "What the individual really wanted to do—what he might make of himself by creative effort along the lines of his greatest usefulness—was lost sight of in the process of filling preconceived positions. Individual initiative in respect to the choice of a career became dulled.

"Under the stress of economic depression certain values and judgments temporarily lost have been regained. The corresponding effect upon personnel work should be to restore recognition of the individual as a growing, creative force, capable of shaping and developing his own career.

"This ideal at present is still difficult to attain; students naturally think in terms of finding definite positions. Many feel forced by economic pressure to measure opportunity in terms of immediate remuneration. But at least a real beginning has been made towards helping students to formulate more far reaching objectives."

Point to Closer Contacts.

As one practical effect of the college plan, the occupational experts say that while educational and social values will remain its primary objectives, the closer personal contacts between undergraduates and professors will aid in integrating college experience of the students with their "occupational orientation and guidance." It will aid, it is argued, in giving them a real start in life in a changing world.

The new colleges at Yale are a movement to get back the traditional closeness of contact which was Yale's boast a generation ago before classes became large and unwieldly. It is similar to the system at Oxford and Cambridge, England, of dividing the student body into small, compact groups, each a cross section of college life. At Harvard they call them houses; at Yale they term them colleges and they are much after the same pattern.

New masses of brick and stone have gone up. Seven of the colleges were opened this school year—Branford, Calhoun, Davenport, Jonathan Edwards, Pierson, Saybrook and Trumbull. The plan provides for ten colleges. One is to be completed next fall and two others later. Each will house from 170 to 200 undergraduates.

Freshmen on Old Campus.

Undergraduates in the three upper classes in Yale college, the Sheffield scientific school and the engineering school are to be distributed among the new colleges. Members of the freshman class live on the old campus. At Yale the freshman year is common to all three schools, its purpose being to prepare first year for the advanced work of the upper classes and to aid them in choosing their courses.

Of the 5,600 enrollment at Yale, about 1,500 is in Yale college, 430 in Sheffield scientific school, and 230 in the school of engineering. Some 850 are in the freshman class. The rest of the enrollment is in the graduate school and in the schools of medicine, divinity, law, fine arts, music, forestry and nursing. The new residential colleges are for the upper classmen in Yale college, Sheffield and Engineering school, approximately 2,400.

Harkness Makes Gift.

The residential college plan was made possible by the gift of Edward Stephen Harkness, who also paid the bill for the Harvard house plan. Each college has its own kitchen, library, dining hall, common rooms and squash courts. Each college has at its head a master who lives in a house attached to the college quadrangle. The master is assisted by a group of faculty members, fellows of the college, whose studies are in the quadrangle. The master and the fellows assume responsibility for the educational welfare of the student group in the college.

The distribution of undergraduates in each college is such that each class is represented, sophomores, juniors, seniors and there is a cross section mixture on athletics and subjects studied, with a view of making each college the campus in miniature. On the social side it wipes out distinction between Yale college and Sheffield, for all undergraduates are given equal opportunity for membership in the colleges.

ICICLES IN FLORIDA BREAK PEACH TREE

It has been a long time since icicles such as these have been seen in sunny Florida, but the broken peach tree is proof that they are real and heavy. The picture, sent from Jacksonville, shows little Ruth Brown, 8, holding one of the icicles. They formed when her mother turned the hose on the tree when the weather turned cold. [Acme Photo.]

SEARCH HOME OF AN EX-CIRCUS STAR FOR DEATH CLEWS

The body was found yesterday in a shallow grave on her 150 acre farm near Derby.

Meanwhile authorities pressed the hunt for Ernest Wright, 32, a farm hand, who disappeared shortly after officers began a search for Miss Martin. Carmi Badger, 21, a step-brother of Wright, still is being held for questioning in the case.

Since leaving the circus Miss Martin had lived on her farm. She was known to have quarreled with Wright recently and was said to have upbraided him severely for neglecting chores about the farm.

Note Reveals Youthful Farmer Has Been Kidnaped

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The family of Bill Dinsmore, 24 year old Alpharetta farmer, told police here today they had received a note from him saying he was kidnaped last Tuesday. J. W. Dinsmore, his father, said the note came by mail to the son's wife yesterday and was written in pencil. The note in the son's handwriting said the young man was seized and blindfolded by two men while in Atlanta and was being held captive within thirty minutes' drive of the central part of the city. The note added he believed a mistake in identity was made by his captors.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S PAGE SUPPORTS LABOR CHIEFTAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Lord Ponsonby, leader of the Labor opposition in the house of lords, who in early youth was a page of honor to Queen Victoria, tonight announced his support of Sir Stafford Cripps, former solicitor general and aspirant to the leadership of the Labor party. Since making his now historic remark to the effect that the next Labor government will have to overcome opposition from Buckingham palace, Cripps has been the object of attack by political speakers of all parties.

Lord Ponsonby, in addressing a Labor demonstration at Heckmondwike, Yorkshire, said that much is heard about dictatorships now, and that the charge of desiring a dictatorship is being raised against Cripps. This is because Cripps foreshadowed the possibility that when the Labor government attains power its efforts to put socialism in the forefront will be frustrated by anti-democratic forces, Ponsonby said.

Cripps, Ponsonby recalled, said that if such were the case it must be met by methods which will insure that the mandate of the Labor government will be carried out.

"That is not through dictatorships," the speaker said, "but the real essence of democracy."

LEARNS TO SWIM FOR A MOVIE ROLE; THEN SAVES A GIRL EXTRA

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Toby Wing, a chorus beauty who learned to swim to obtain a feature role she wanted, has cashed in as the heroine of an accident that wasn't called for in a film scrip.

Miss Wing, with Ida Lupino, young British actress, and eight other girls, was frolicking in a jungle lake yesterday on location. The action called for her to swing across the water on a long rope of vines.

As she swung, Mary Blackwood, film extra, who had just dived from a tree, came up and caught the full force of Miss Wing's feet on her nose; unconscious and with her nose fractured, she sank in 10 feet of water.

Miss Wing stayed on her rope until the back swing brought her over the spot. She let loose, dived, and brought the girl to the surface and swam to shore.

PURSE STOLEN IN CHURCH.

Mrs. George Parkhurst of the Evanshire hotel, 500 Main street, Evanston, reported to Evanston police yesterday that her purse containing $5 and some keys was stolen from a drawer in the office of St. Luke's Episcopal church, 424 Lee street, Evanston, while she was visiting there Saturday.

BRITISH AUTHOR AND PHILOSOPHER IS SPEAKER HERE

Prof. Cyril E. M. Joad, noted British psychologist and philosopher and critic of American culture, arrived in Chicago yesterday for a group of lectures here. "One purpose of my visit to America," he said in an interview, "is to find out why Americans do not read the 31 books I have written on scattered subjects in the field of philosophy."

Prof. Joad is head of the department of philosophy and psychology at Birkbeck college, University of London, and a recognized authority in his field.

"Is Progress a Delusion?" was the subject of Prof. Joad's talk at the First Congregational church, Oak Park, last night. Next Wednesday he is scheduled to address the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

LINER SAILS ON UNHARMED AFTER 7 HOURS AGROUND

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Pulled off a mud bar in the outer harbor early today after being aground seven hours, the American mail liner President Grant was found by divers to be undamaged. She proceeded outbound to the orient this afternoon.

With the aid of tugs she was refloated at 1:45 a. m. [3:45 a. m. C. S. T.] today and returned here for the divers' inspection. After a satisfactory trial run in the Strait of Juan de Fuca it was decided to proceed to the orient.

The President Grant left Seattle yesterday and stopped here before sailing for Yokohama and Manila. It has a crew of 203 officers and men and 73 passengers aboard.

NAZIS TAKE OVER BUILDINGS FROM JEWS, CATHOLICS

Party to Use Stettin and Cologne Properties.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—The Nazis took over buildings of Jewish fraternities in Stettin today and will devote them to Nazi purposes.

Nazis in Cologne also confiscated the building formerly held by the Catholic Peoples association. In a solemn ceremony the swastika flag was hoisted over the building. It was rechristened the Nazi Peoples house in the presence of leading members of the Nazi party and deputations of storm troops and Hitler guards. The government appointed a trustee for the confiscated properties of the Catholic association.

Forbid Niemoeller to Preach.

The seizure of all property of John William Muehlon, former director of the Krupp concern, was also announced today. Muehlon was branded "a traitor to Germany."

The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, leader of the Pastors' Emergency league, who was scheduled to preach in a Berlin church today, refrained from entering the pulpit upon an order by the Prussian government. Another leader, the Rev. E. F. von Rabernau, who was one of three ministers banned from the church Nov. 11, and later reinstated, restricted his sermon to the duties of the family to the church.

Release 12 Churchmen.

DRESDEN, Germany, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Seven opposition pastors, two vicars, and three laymen, and the wife of one of the pastors, were arrested last Thursday and released from police headquarters only yesterday, it became known today.

The twelve arrests were made on charges of "distributing leaflets inimical to the state." The prisoners were placed in solitary confinement. They included the Rev. Mr. Hahn and his wife and two church superintendents.

A declaration of the pastors' emergency league, which is opposing Reichsbishop Dr. Ludwig Mueller's work for a unified Protestant church, disavowing Mueller, was contained in the leaflets.

Warned to Silence.

All the prisoners were released yesterday with orders, they said, to observe silence. When the Rev. Mr. Hahn was taken to the examining commissioner for his first hearing, he said:

"Your behavior reminds me of my days in the Baltic states in 1919. Bolsheviks then tried to intimidate me, just as you are now trying to do, and they shot my brother, also a clergyman, dead."

Mrs. Hahn spent most of her time in the cell singing church hymns.

In many parts of the country opposition ministers have been suspended by Dr. Mueller. However, since all communication between Emergency league pastors is regarded as precarious it may be some days before complete data on suspensions will be in the hands of league officials.

Nazis Eat "Sacrificial Meal."

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Good Nazis today partook of their one-course Sunday dinners of pea soup with pork or green beans and mutton, or bouillon and potatoes, with a special devotion. Ordained by the government to swell the winter relief fund, this monthly meal took on the flavor of a ritual.

An officially inspired statement called it a "sacrificial meal," as persons were asked to turn over what they normally spend for dinner to the relief fund. The government plans to install the monthly one-course Sunday dinner as a permanent institution, it was learned. Hitherto collections were designed for winter relief, but in the future they will go toward year-around charity funds.

One hundred and thirty thousand men and women carrying tin boxes and long lists knocked at Berlin doors today to take in the collections. Berlin and Dusseldorf led in generosity with an average of 9.7 pfennigs [nearly 4 cents] per person collected. Collections early tonight totaled 14,000,000 marks [approximately $5,386,000.].

VON PAPEN PRAISES FRANCE FOR SENDING TEAM TO HORSE SHOW

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Entertaining foreign military horsemen today, former Chancellor Franz von Papen thanked the French government for sending a team to the equestrian tournament. The cordiality of his tone was regarded as another evidence of the official desire to promote Franco-German conciliation.

"I've invariably found the first ones to forget misunderstandings among nations and to ignore political frontiers, are soldiers," Von Papen said. "I hope the tournament will improve relations between the peoples."

In toasting cavalry officers and riders from France, Sweden, Switzerland, and Ireland, he expressed hope a spirit of chivalry would be shown by politicians as well as sportsmen. The visitors joined with the rest of Germany in eating the day's one-course dinner, which was served from a big soup pot standing in the middle of a table. Minister of Defense Gen. Werner von Blomberg was the host.

BREMER HINTS FEAR KIDNAPED SON WAS SLAIN

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—His hope mingled with grave fear, Adolph Bremer sought in his "own way" today to effect the return of his banker son, Edward, 37, victim of a kidnap gang seeking $200,000 ransom.

"Have Edward write a letter in his own hand," the father pleaded in a public statement to the abductors. The statement implied for the first time the family's belief that the victim may have been slain. For almost two weeks no word has been received from the abductors.

Adolph Bremer's "own way" was to promise, in a published statement absolute secrecy to the gang concerning arrangements with the family; a promise that he would not have any "interest in any activity after my son is returned."

Three Prep Athletes Die When Auto Is Hit by Train

Chillicothe, O., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Three High school athletes were killed instantly late today when their automobile was struck by a fast B. & O. freight train at an unguarded crossing. The dead are Charles Ludwig Jr., Gene Ferrell, and Don Conley, all about 18.

BLASTS OF NAZI BOMBS MENACE AUSTRIAN REGIME

Windows of Four Jewish Stores Smashed.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 4.—Bombs exploded throughout Austria and windows of four Jewish stores in Vienna were smashed today as Vienna and all Austria spent a Sunday that was anything but quiet. Sixty-one Nazis and four Socialists were rushed off to concentration camps which are becoming fuller and fuller.

Police also raided the Socialist headquarters near Vienna where they found a big supply of clandestine arms. Alexander Eifler, prominent Socialist leader, was among those arrested.

In Graz five bombs were exploded in the main square. Bombs were thrown and arrests made also in Huttenberg, Lochau, Innsbruck, Feldkirchen, Reutte and other places, showing that the terror campaign was generally organized.

Good Reports from Tyrol.

The bomb outrages, which government supporters insist are part of a widespread campaign of terrorism waged by the Nazis and perhaps by some of the Socialists, too, were accompanied, however, by reports from the Tyrol calculated to please the government. The situation has been most threatening in the Tyrol because of drastic measures by troops of the Fascist Heimwehr, which is the chief support of the Dollfuss government, to impose Fascist control on Gov. Franz Stumpf.

After a consultation with Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, Stumpf gave in to the Heimwehr leaders' demand that he set up a sort of "grand council" in a Fascist style to assist him in his administrative work.

This council has now been established. It has six members, including two Heimwehr men, two peasants, one representative of the Catholic storm troop organization, and one workers' delegate. This commission will govern the Tyrol.

It represents a compromise and was probably obtained by Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, national leader of the Heimwehr, and Richard Steidle, federal minister of propaganda, and honorary leader of the Tyrolese Heimwehr. Both of these men rushed to Innsbruck yesterday to use their influence in the situation.

Warn Nazis Again.

Starhemberg and Steidle both addressed a mass meeting in the public square in Innsbruck today. Starhemberg said that Heimwehr patience is being lost before the Nazi terrorist acts and declared again he would act rustlessly and vigorously from now on.

"With Hitler in power in Germany, Austria must fight for its independence and we Heimwehr men have special prerogatives," he said.

The appointment of a Tyrolian grand council to aid the governor, it is thought, probably sidetracked the other demand of the Heimwehr that all political parties in the Tyrol be dissolved. Dollfuss is thereby relieved of one of the problems which pressed him sorely in the past week.

The chancellor's other problem is that of deciding what to do about Hitler's reply to his protest against German interference in Austrian affairs. It will come up at a cabinet meeting called for tomorrow. This meeting, it is expected, will result in the Austrian government submitting a complete documentation of its case to the league of nations and asking action.

U. S. SHOULD CONDEMN NAZI TREATMENT OF JEWS: SENATOR KING

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—United States Senator William H. King of Utah, addressing the annual meeting of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid society, today expressed the wish that officials of the United States government "would in an appropriate way lift their voices in condemnation of Nazi treatment of Jews in Germany."

"Our government," he said as 1,000 delegates cheered, "upon a number of occasions has not hesitated to protest against the cruel treatment accorded to people of other nations, and it has upon a number of occasions withdrawn its diplomatic relations or severed its diplomatic relations with other countries because those nations failed in their duty toward their own nationals and exploited a hatred and animosity based upon racial differences and religious differences.

"I would not object to a declaration by my government which may lead to a severance of diplomatic relations with those nations who seek by their inhumane treatment to extirpate a race within their borders which has made contributions to the development culturally and otherwise of those nations."

Make Trip from Wisconsin to Alabama in a Yacht

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Charles Kinney of Wheaton, Ill., and Montieth Albers of Fairhope, Ala., arrived at the latter place today in their 44-foot yacht from Green Bay, Wis. They left Chicago via the canal to Ottawa, Ill., into the Illinois river and from there into the Mississippi river, down the big river to New Orleans via the inner passage to Mobile bay.

CUBAN REGIME ADOPTS A NEW 'MAGNA CHARTA'

Provisional Law Secures Individual's Rights.

HAVANA, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Cuba had another constitution today. President Carlos Mendieta and the eleven members of his cabinet enthusiastically affixed their signatures to the new provisional constitution—consisting of 99 articles and 14 general and transitory provisions.

The new Magna Charta will remain in force until the scheduled constitutional assembly, which is expected to meet late this year or early next, erects permanent fundamentals of law for the nation.

Since Sept. 14, the republic had been without any constitution. Former Provisional President Ramon Grau San Martin swept away the original constitution of 1901, which Grau's predecessor, Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, had declared in force.

Lists Individual Rights.

The new constitution defines those who are Cubans and their obligations, and the rights and obligations of foreigners—who are promised equality in all things not specifically allotted to nationals by law. The constitution goes on for 28 articles to enumerate individual guarantees.

It protects all citizens of the island against illegal arrest or detention, abolishes the "law of flight" which permitted guards to kill fleeing prisoners, establishes definitly the oft-ignored rights of habeas corpus, guarantees the inviolability of correspondence and other private communication and of the home, pledges freedom of thought, speech and press and establishes the principle of religious freedom, with church separated from state.

Free suffrage is promised every national, man or woman, of legal age and otherwise capacitated to exercise the vote.

Rigidly prescribed are the manner whereby certain constitutional guarantees may be suspended in national emergencies.

Military Limited.

In the several articles treating of the judiciary, limitations of the military jurisdiction are sharply defined, it being provided that they may try only members of the armed forces and then only when their offenses are of military nature. Both jurisdictions are made definitly subject to the Supreme court as final authority.

Tenure of office of the Mendieta provisional government is made dependent on the decision of the constitutional assembly, and it is specifically set forth that elections to choose Mendieta's successor will be held before Dec. 31, this year.

The constitution's 99th article pledges the carrying out of all international agreements, adding that this shall not militate against modification of the permanent treaty between Cuba and the United States to establish the political relations between the two nations on a basis of absolute equality.

More Bombings.

Bombings and shootings last night and today, coupled with strike difficulties, brought terror to Havana and new troubles to the young government of President Carlos Mendieta.

An unidentified man, apparently a Spaniard, was killed and five persons were wounded when soldiers fired on employes of the Dependientes Spanish hospital, who threatened to attack a group of federated physicians visiting the hospital as delegates of the sanitation department.

A bomb exploded in an apartment house in which Dorsey G. Fisher, United States vice consul, and the British vice consul live. A brother of Pelayo Cuervo, subsecretary of the interior, was injured by the explosion, but not seriously.

Three other bombings did slight damage.

A delegation for the Cuban Bar association called at the palace today and threatened an island wide lawyers' strike if Mendieta modifies the decree of former President Ramon Grau San Martin prohibiting foreigners from practicing in Cuba.

High School Boys Admit Sending Extortion Note

Augusta, Me., Feb. 4.—(AP)—State police announced today that three high schools youths had signed statements they were the authors of an extortion letter sent to William P. Viles, son of State Senator Blaine S. Viles, wealthy timberland operator, in which abduction or disfigurement of young Viles' children was threatened.

JUGO-SLAVIA, RUMANIA, TURKEY AND GREECE INITIAL PEACE PACT

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The much talked of Balkan pact, intended to guarantee territorial security to its members for ten years to come, was initialed today by the foreign ministers of Greece, Rumania, Turkey, and Jugoslavia after two days of negotiations.

Representatives of Bulgaria and Albania were not present. Bulgaria has indicated the possibility of signing the pact later, and it was understood that she will be allowed to do so.

The official communique which was issued caused surprise, since it did not reveal the text of the pact nor mention Bulgaria or Albania. It merely stated that signing of the new pact is scheduled to take place at Athens this week-end.

HOLD MICHIGAN OUTLAW IN BIG BANK ROBBERY

Camden, N. J., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Charles Kent, captured yesterday with three companions and $35,000 loot, as suspects in Friday's daring $130,000 Penns Grove bank pay roll robbery, was today identified, police announced, as Charles Johnson, a Michigan bank robber.

Johnson, alias Kent, is wanted at Lansing, Mich., as one of four men who held up a Lansing bank a year ago, slaying a deputy sheriff.

Chief of Police Frank J. O'Malley of Grand Rapids, Mich., also notified Camden authorities that Johnson is wanted there on charges of bank robbery.

Escaping yesterday's police trap by a bare half hour, another notorious midwest desperado was linked with the Penns Grove robbery, police declared. Descriptions of this man tally with that of Edward Zitanezell, Ohio specialist in big bank robberies. A third suspect is held.

King and Queen of Siam in Egypt En Route to U. S.

SUEZ, Egypt, Feb. 4.—(AP)—King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambaibarni of Siam arrived here today en route to the United States, where the monarch will undergo an eye operation. The royal couple, traveling incognito as Prince and Princess Sukhodaya, will journey overland to Cairo and rejoin their steamer at Port Said. They left Bangkok, Siam, for a seven months' tour Jan. 12 and are due in New York April 16.

MILK

● In the recent controversies about milk prices, there has been much exaggeration and misinformation disseminated. So far as the Bowman Dairy Company is concerned, here are pertinent facts:

● The Bowman Dairy Company has been owned and operated by Chicago people for more than half a century.

● We have always paid the highest prices to the farmers to obtain the best quality of milk.

● We have always carefully selected our employees and paid them good wages.

● For many years, certainly including the past five years, the profit on a quart of milk has never been more than a fraction of a cent.

● On the basis of present costs this company is operating at an actual loss.

● The consumer pays less for milk in Chicago than in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis, San Francisco, and New Orleans.

● We wish to express our feeling of appreciation to our many patrons and friends for their loyalty and confidence.

● We will continue to serve you only . . . . . .

WARNS AGAINST MUNICIPAL TAX RATE INCREASE

Sutherland Advises Cut in City Services.

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Chicago civic federation and the bureau of public efficiency, yesterday advised city officials not to upset the present tax rate structure by seeking an increase in the corporate fund tax rate. If an increase is sought, it would be for the purpose of getting more revenue for the 1934 budget.

An increase of tax rates usually is the first thought of governments when pinched financially, Mr. Sutherland said. Further, he pointed out that if the city got a tax rate increase, even though it were only a few cents, every other branch of local government would feel entitled to make a similar request. If all requests were granted, taxes would be kept up to the old standards.

Fears Upsetting Tax Rates.

"I believe that the first thing to do is to bring all city pay rolls to a basis absolutely comparable with those in private industry for similar services," said Mr. Sutherland, directing attention to the fact that he was speaking for himself and not for his organization, which has not passed on the subject. "The next step would be to eliminate every bit of public service that is not essential to the public peace and safety.

"If after such a winnowing process more revenues appear to be a matter of absolute necessity, the support of local citizens can be hoped for and obtained. Even then I dread to think of upsetting the tax rate structure.

"The present rates were designed to produce pre-depression revenues on a basis of pre-depression valuations. If they are now increased and there is a return of values to normal a little later more money would be paid out in taxes than it was ever contemplated the governments would have. In addition, liquor revenues which were not dreamed of when the present rates were enacted, are certain to increase city revenues in the future."

Budget Making Difficult.

Mr. Sutherland said he realizes that making public budgets at this time is a difficult task, because property valuations applicable to the corporate fund tax rate have been reduced from approximately $3,147,000,000 in the 1931 assessment to $2,474,000,000. Full knowledge of the amount of reduction did not develop until the close of 1933, causing the 1933 budget to be based on the 1931 figures.

"Such reductions in assessed valuations can be supported," he said, only on the theory that the reduced valuations represent the trend in economic values and therefore reflect the ability of property to contribute to the costs of government.

"If this is the case, it seems to me that the only thing to do is to reduce the services of government to the extent that these reductions in valuations indicate the community can afford to finance. If the community complains that these services are being unduly curtailed, their complaint lies properly at the door of the assessing officials, who have necessitated the reduction in service, and not at the door of the aldermen who are giving all the service that can be given with the revenues placed at their disposal.

"If the reduced valuations do reflect the economic situation and the ability of property to pay taxes, certainly no one would want to circumvent this equitable action, and nullify much of the relief thus given by urging an increase in tax rates sufficient to make up the deficiencies occasioned by the cut in valuations."

SANKEY AND PAL REPORTED READY TO PLEAD GUILTY

Sioux Falls, S. D., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Verne Sankey and Gordon Alcorn, kidnapers who were arrested in Chicago and brought here for trial on the charge of abducting Charles Boettcher, Denver broker, for ransom of $72,000, may plead guilty tomorrow if so, they will be sentenced in one of the speediest court moves on record here.

Such a move was reported in authoritative circles today when E. D. Barron, assistant United States attorney, was said to have obtained additional information from Sankey convincing him the defendants had nothing to do with the Bremer or Lindbergh baby kidnapings. Sankey confessed his part in the Boettcher kidnaping, as well as the abduction of Haskell Bohn of St. Paul, when he was arrested in Chicago.

Alcorn also was grilled by the federal prosecutor and there were reports that he was contemplating a plea of guilty. The prosecution, under orders from department of justice officials in Washington, is prepared to rush through with the court proceedings, no matter what pleas are entered.

SEVEN DEAD IN OKLAHOMA 'WAR' OVER WEEK-END

Four Bandits and Three Officers Slain.

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Four bandits and three peace officers are dead as a result of one of the bloodiest week-ends in the recent history of Oklahoma.

Five were killed in a furious fight between officers and an outlaw trio just outside Sapulpa, 17 miles west of Tulsa, and two more died in a clash between the law and three burglars at Chelsea, 45 miles northwest of here.

The dead at Sapulpa:

Tom Brumley, police chief.

C. P. Lloyd, a policeman.

Aussie Elliott, highwayman fugitive.

Eldon Wilson, Elliott's partner in crime.

At Chelsea:

Earl Powell, deputy sheriff of Rogers county.

Ed Clanton, alleged member of the Cookson hills band of outlaws.

Sapulpa, a seething cauldron of emotion last night as a result of the furious gunplay, was quiet as any town of 10,000 on Sunday as a troop of National Guardsmen moved back to headquarters in Tulsa.

Lee Davis, at whose farm home the first shooting occurred, was held in jail at Tulsa for safekeeping. He had been spirited away from the police headquarters here when a throng pushed and crowded about the front of the building.

Credit for preventing violence was given Sebe Christian, county attorney; Sheriff Willis Strange, and Deputies Wesley Gage and Floyd Sellers, the latter three survivors of the fight.

Efforts to obtain a better identification of Moore were being made today. He was to be fingerprinted and the marks sent to Washington.

A fifth man, whose name was given as George Roberts, was arrested during the night, but officers declined to say whether he was taken in connection with the others.

It was known officers had been tipped that another member of the outlaw band was supposed to be in waiting with a motor car near the Davis home, to aid escape if officers approached.

GRETA GARBO AND HER DIRECTOR REPORTED TRAVELING ONCE MORE

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Greta Garbo and her director, Rouben Mamoulian, today were reported traveling again, this time by train for New York.

Mamoulian left here Friday night, members of his family said. His going caused no stir until a report spread that the actress, in one of her numerous disguises, was with him.

The two caused considerable excitement three weeks ago when they made an automobile tour through Arizona, registering at hotels under various names.

A report that they had been married was denied by Mamoulian on their return to Hollywood. Mamoulian had dined at Miss Garbo's home frequently since.

REPORT COUNTY BOARD SAVINGS OF 24 MILLIONS

Whealan Cites Economies of 3 Year Regime.

President Emmett Whealan of the county board will present his annual report at a meeting of the board of commissioners this morning showing savings of $24,259,183 in the cost of county government during the three years he has served as head of the board.

The report analyzes reductions in the county tax levies for 1931, 1932, and 1933 as compared with that of 1930 to support the claimed saving. In 1930 the county tax levy for corporate purposes was $12,646,160 and for highway purposes $5,646,827.

Table Compares Levies.

The following table, contained in the report, gives the levies for 1931, 1932, and 1933, and the reductions compared with the 1930 levy:

Corporate	$10,669,777	$8,400,666	$8,400,000
Highway	2,000,000	1,000,000	750,000
Total	$12,669,777	$9,400,666	$9,150,000
Reduction	$ 6,233,209	$8,892,987	$9,142,987

The reductions total $24,259,183. The reduction in the 1933 levy is almost as great as the levy itself. Of this reduction President Whealan says: "I venture that when the public demanded reduction in governmental costs, a reduction of almost 50 per cent was beyond all expectations.

"Of course, practically every governing body in the world has been confronted with the results of the world-wide depression, but not all were forced to face these conditions with tax revenues curtailed or cut off entirely," the report states. "Nor were all confronted with the necessity of operating a corporation as large as ours for more than two years with revenues stopped by the real estate revaluation program.

Outlines His Administration.

"It has required a full amount of diligence on your part and mine to cope with the situation, and I am proud to say that we have met them, reduced the operating costs of the county, highway department, and other divisions under our jurisdiction. And at the same time we have utilized the facilities offered to such an extent that we have been able to render normal service to the public, rehabilitate practically every building under our jurisdiction, and renovate machinery with very little cost to the taxpayers."

The board will meet today to pass the 1934 county budget. Before the meeting there will be a session of the finance committee to consider suggestions made Saturday at a public hearing on the preliminary budget.

The committee will also consider a request of Probate Judge John F. O'Connell for an additional assistant judge at an expense of $5,000 a year. Judge O'Connell has stated the creation of the additional post will expedite the collection of fees in a drive to close 35,000 estates now pending in the court. Judge O'Connell now has seven assistants.

NEW YORK BUSINESS LEADERS URGE CUT IN COST OF GOVERNMENT

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Reduced costs in state and local government were demanded today in a joint statement of the New York state economic council, the Merchants' association, the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, the New York Board of Trade, and the citizens' budget commission.

The organizations united in a six point program for tax reduction. Officers of the organizations will go to Albany on Thursday to present their case to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and the legislature.

The five organizations represent, they say, most of the principal business and industrial concerns in the state and a capital investment of billions of dollars.

4 YANKS SLATED TO GET FREEDOM IN PALMA TODAY

MADRID, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Release of four Americans who were pardoned yesterday, after being sentenced to prison for assaulting a civil guard at Palma, Mallorca, where they are in jail, is expected today. An official order for their release has not yet been received at Palma.

Clinton B. Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass., one of the four, said by telephone today that their future plans are uncertain. They had not decided, he explained, whether to return to the United States or proceed to Europe or some other region of Spain.

The pardons were issued on the condition that the four—Lockwood, his wife, Roderick F. Mead of New York, and Edmund W. Blodgett of Stamford, Conn.—leave the Balearic Islands. Lockwood said he hoped the court would allow them sufficient time to terminate personal affairs before leaving.

FRANCE MASSES TROOPS AS NEW RIOTING FLARES

Paris in Panic; Royalist Uprising Feared.

The Action Française, a Royalist paper, this morning reported that Fernand Bouisson, president of the chamber of deputies, had requested soldiers with machine guns to be set up in front of the chamber when parliament reconvenes tomorrow.

Call Street Demonstrations.

On top of all this two big Nationalist street demonstrations were called for tomorrow.

The National Union of War Veterans, which includes 12,000 members, announced a demonstration in a manifesto which violently criticizes the government for firing Chiappe. It goes so far as to challenge the police, "composed chiefly of our comrades," to break up the ranks of the demonstrators. This manifestation is called for 8 p. m.

It will be preceded by a demonstration of young patriots in front of the Hotel Deville at 7 p. m.

More excitement was caused when it was learned that former President Gaston Doumergue, who was offered the job of heading the new government after Camille Chautemps resigned, conferred with President Albert Lebrun yesterday.

Other Motives Seen.

The official communique merely stated that Doumergue, who came to Paris from his country home near Toulouse, had paid a call at the Elysee palace before returning to his estate. Politicians, however, are inclined to see something more than a courtesy call in the conversation between the two statesmen.

In the midst of yesterday's excitement Premier Daladier, disregarding howls from the right and lurid apprehensions from the left, went quietly ahead to replace the ousted cabinet ministers. Former Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour was appointed minister of war to succeed Lieut. Col. Jean Fabry, and Deputy Paul Marchandeau replaces François Pietri as minister of finance. Alexis Jaubert was given the post of undersecretary of instruction previously held by Gustave Doussain.

New Strong Man Found.

The developments have narrowed down to two concrete facts. First, France has found a new strong man. He is Eugene Frot, bearded and youthful minister of interior, who has risen from obscurity in the last few months. It was Frot who persuaded Daladier to proceed with a sensational shakeup in order to satisfy public opinion, disturbed by the Bayonne pawnshop collapse.

It was Frot who likewise carried out the shakeup with an energy which left France gasping. He ordered Bonnefoy-Sibour to take over the prefecture of police immediately and told him to stay at the prefecture Saturday night.

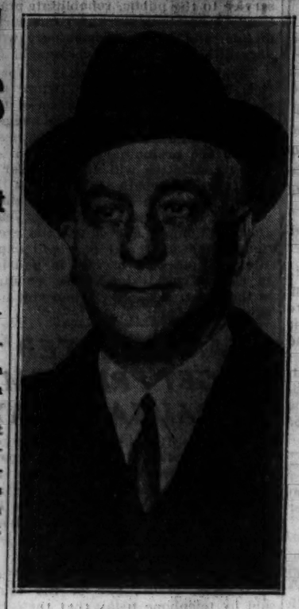
When Bonnefoy-Sibour telephoned he was unable to occupy the prefect's living quarters because Chiappe was ill in bed, Frot ordered him to set up a cot in the office and sleep there. To make sure that none of Chiappe's lieutenants would start trouble, Frot summoned the two principal ones and informed them that if the slightest disturbance broke out in Paris they would lose their jobs. Following this warning, Edouard Reynard, prefect of the Seine and a warm friend of Chiappe, resigned.

Hearing rumors of a possible police strike, Frot telephoned a number of police officials and casually reminded them that the government had applications from 10,000 unemployed who would be delighted to get a permanent job with the state.

The other important fact is that Daladier, having broken completely with the right, is at the mercy of the Socialists if he wishes to remain in power. Henceforth he will be unable to pass any legislation which does not meet with their approval, because if he lost the radical vote he would fall instantly.

If he keeps in their favor he may succeed in breaking French records for ministerial longevity. It remains barely possible that Daladier by pure force of character—and with a little help from the formidable Frot—will be able to bulldose the Socialists instead of being bulldozed by them, but in any case the government is bound to have a purely leftist character.

FIGURES IN RIOTING



Jean Chiappe, Parisian police chief, succeeded by Andre Bonnefoy Sibour, whose name was shouted in the lusty crescendos of rioting Parisians yesterday. "Long live Chiappe," "Down with the cabinet" were the crys as police battled the milling throngs.

NEW 'NAPOLEON' FALLS--CHIAPPE, PLUMP CORSICAN

Ousted Police Chief Friend of Man in the Street.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Another "Napoleon" fell when Jean Chiappe, plump little Corsican prefect of police, was removed by Premier Edouard Daladier as an outgrowth of the $60,000,00 Stavisky bond swindle.

The police chief in his seven years of rule was credited with overthrowing the cabinet of Camille Chautemps and almost wrecking that of Daladier.

Chiappe, say friends of Chautemps, could have squelched recent riots, thus avoiding a cabinet crisis which resulted in its resignation.

Modernized Traffic Control.

The Corsican is credited with modernizing for Paris the control of traffic and the art of fighting riots.

Wealthy when he took office, he set himself to the task of having "a firm hand but a generous heart." This was his motto, he explained, because he wished to be as hard on criminals as he purposed to be kindly toward the man in the street. One of his endeavors was to make the policeman the friend of the people.

Chiappe had more contacts with Napoleon than his birth in Corsica and his short stature. The Chiappe home at Ajaccio, built in 1463, adjoins Napoleon's birthplace.

Rise to Power Fast.

When the great Napoleon was young the Chiappe family helped him and loaned him money to return to Corsica. The former police prefect still has the letter from Napoleon's mother thanking his ancestor for the aid.

Chiappe, the policeman, however, traded little on ancestry, apparently, because he rose in grade quickly and to unusual power under succeeding ministers of the interior.

Police fame came to him with the unraveling of several troublesome mysteries. He ran down the clever thieves who stole the famous "rose diamond" from the Chantilly museum. He unsnarled the Spanish border arms case in 1926, leading to the arrest of the late Col. Francisco Macia, leader of the Catalan independence movement, and 390 alleged conspirators.

Keeps Reds Out of Way.

When the American Legion held its convention in Paris in 1927 he did much to make it a success. Foreign Red sympathizers of Sacco and Vanzetti planned to mar the proceedings. He disposed of it in advance by rounding them up and keeping them out of the way.

Mme. Marcelle Chiappe, the prefect's wife and daughter of the late Countess Lemaire de Villers, is famous for two things: horses and charity. Yearlings are her specialty and animals from her two breeding establishments are much sought after. Having founded a special hospital for police, she collected for it in record time, a million and a half francs [approximately $95,700].

PARIS NIGHT LIFE IS DIMMED BY A TAXICAB STRIKE

PARIS, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The famous night life of Paris was dimmed tonight by the taxicab strike, which is estimated to be holding more than 95 per cent of all the cabs in Paris idle. The French capital has become a 12 o'clock town, with bridge parties forced to break up at midnight and revelers leaving the city's hundreds of cabarets in time to catch the last buses and subway trains. Balls and other social functions have been indefinitly postponed because taxis are unavailable.

The strike started last week in protest against government taxes which have forced the price of gasoline to 40 cents a gallon. In earlier stages of the strike, cab drivers gathered in huge parades, tying up street traffic.

Travelers arriving laden with baggage found no cabs at the railway stations. They were really the main sufferers, as Parisians have become accustomed, more or less, to a taxiless city. The strike has been effective for the last six days. Strikers insisted that cabs would stay in garages until the gasoline surtax is lifted.

Senate Gets Job Insurance Bill by Sen. Wagner Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—An unemployment insurance bill designed to fit the American system of government will be introduced in the senate tomorrow by Senator Robert F. Wagner, [Dem., N. Y.], long congress' most active advocate of federal legislation to stabilize employment and prepare for slack times. In addition to his senatorship he now holds office as chairman of the NRA's national labor board.

While not an administration measure, the bill will start its legislative course under the friendly eye of President Roosevelt. During conferences concerning the bill the President had expressed a sincere interest in its purposes and its terms, Senator Wagner said today. A companion measure is to be introduced in the house by Representative David J. Lewis [Dem., Md.].

"Encourages" State Action.

In a strict sense, the bill does not provide for unemployment insurance, but through use of the federal taxing power is intended to encourage the 48 states to set up unemployment systems of their own. A new federal tax is to be levied upon the pay rolls of all employers, but in states where an unemployment insurance law meeting certain minimum requirements is in effect employers will be allowed to deduct from their pay roll tax all funds paid out under their state law.

Exemptions eliminate from the federal tax provisions very small employers, farmers, employers of domestic service, and hospitals. As an added incentive for employers to stabilize the work level, further offsets against the federal tax are to be allowed whenever an employer's success wins him a decrease in his contributions under state law.

Explain Bill's Provisions.

In a joint statement descriptive of the bill Senator Wagner and Representative Lewis explained today that:

"By this offset principle, sentiment will be created favorable to the enactment of state laws, as the inhabitants of the several states will prefer keeping their money at home rather than contributing it to the federal government. At the same time the federal tax upon employers not operating under state laws will defeat the old argument that state unemployment insurance or reserve laws would impose an undue handicap in interstate competition.

"A striking feature of the federal bill is that it does not dictate to the states what manner of laws they should pass. Each state may prescribe state-wide funds, industrial pooled funds, or individual reserves. Each state may determine whether contributions are to be by employers, by employés, or by both, and whether the state is to bear a share of the cost. This means that each of the 48 states may become an experimental laboratory for the testing of the wisdom of particular proposals for the relief of the unemployed."

Must Be Certified.

State systems must be certified by the secretary of labor in order that employers within the state may receive the offset benefits against the federal tax. Chief among the requirements enacted of state laws will be that they provide for:

1. Regular contributions by employers.

2. Systematic weekly benefits of at least $7 or else 20 hours earnings for at least 10 weeks, or else a period facility measured by past employment.

3. No insuring through private insurance companies.

4. State administration or supervision with joint advisory committees assisting.

5. Impartial hearings on disputed compensation claims.

6. Specific safeguards for labor standards and union membership.

Emerging from Depression.

In explaining their bill, Senator Wagner and Representative Lewis said:

"The American people are emerging from the depression. The fortitude which has been shown in meeting unexpected calamities must be matched by the determination that we shall not again be caught unaware. In numbers and in depth of suffering the chief victims of hard times are the millions of people who have lost their jobs. Every one admits that the relief of these people is a social duty and a social need. If we wait until a catastrophe occurs before attempting to alleviate it, a vicious cycle is created. The crisis itself makes relief difficult, and attempts at relief distract us from the main task of recovery. But if we prepare in advance, we may decrease enormously the likelihood of depressions, and also store up adequate relief for the small amount of unemployment that may occur from time to time despite our best efforts.

"The best way to accomplish this two-fold purpose is by unemployment insurance or reserves. The experience of European countries has demonstrated that these devices are sound economics. They create a powerful incentive to the stabilization of industry. They tend to preserve purchasing power despite temporary industrial decline. They begin to operate as soon as a depression occurs and check its continued ravages.

FARM LEADERS DEMAND OKAY ON WATERWAY

Senators Told to Uphold Party Platforms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, on the ground that its proposed curtailment of the Chicago Sanitary District diversion would jeopardize the Illinois-Mississippi river waterway, today met a vigorous counter-argument from the politically influential American Farm Bureau federation.

The farm bureau's statement was made in a letter to Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.], one of the advocates of the agreement with Canada now pending in the senate. A senate vote on ratification of the treaty is expected this week or next.

Signed by Chester H. Gray, Washington lobbyist for the farm bureau, the letter called on senators of both parties "to redeem the St. Lawrence waterway pledges of their respective platforms."

Makes Decree a Treaty.

The treaty turns into an international agreement the Supreme court decree cutting the Chicago diversion to 1,500 cubic feet per second in 1938. Mr. Gray declared this a sufficient amount of water to safeguard sanitation and meet transportation needs on the Illinois waterway.

"The latest facts of the corps of army engineers on the question of diversion are contained in the report on the survey of the Illinois river to the secretary of war, dated Dec. 6, 1933," the Gray letter stated. "In this report the district engineer for the Chicago area states that the eventual 1,500 cubic feet per second of diversion, as provided for in the river and harbor act of July 3, 1930, is adequate for the main portion of the Illinois canal, but is not sufficient for a section below Starved Rock in Illinois. Since, however, the district engineer, the division engineer, and the chief of engineers recommend plans of enlargement for this and other sections of the Illinois canal, all of which is provided for in the plans of the corps of army engineers, it seems evident that the question of diversion and the amount of diversion of water are not of that supreme importance which otherwise would be the case."

Cites Provision for Change.

"The treaty itself," the letter continued, "provides for such modification of the diversion to meet any emergency as will adequately protect the Illinois waterway both from the transportation and sanitary points of view. The treaty states, 'in the event of the government of the United States proposing, in order to meet an emergency, an increase in the permitted diversion of water and in the event that the government of Canada takes exception to the proposed increase, the matter shall be submitted for final decision to an arbitration tribunal which shall be empowered to authorize for such time and to such extent as is necessary to meet such emergency.'

"It is significant, in the report of the chief of engineers, that he states, 'until the need is established for a greater diversion than that now provided by law, I see no reason for a modification of the present legislation.' It will be remembered in this connection that the present legislation to which reference is made is the river and harbor act of July 3, 1930, in which congress then expressed its approval on the diversion proposition, stating amounts and dates of diversion, and specifying that after Dec. 31, 1938, the amount thereof should be 1,500 cubic feet per second."

Warns of Platforms.

The letter then warned the senators to obey their platform pledges, then continued with an attack on the "selfish" opposition. The assault on the opposition included the charge—chronically employed by the senate's radical group—on subvervience to the power interests.

"The issue resolves itself, seemingly, into a clear cut collision between selfish localized interests, which naturally want to protect their own investments, but in this desire they forget the broad fundamental national policies which should govern in the solution of the controversy," the letter declared. Then went on:

"The membership of the American Farm Bureau federation gives little attention to those selfish transportation and utility interests which are now massed almost in solid phalanx against the completion of this great transportation project."

VAULT ROBBERS FOILED.

Three burglars attempted yesterday to open the vault in the office of the Oak Hill cemetery in Worth township, but were frightened away without loot by the appearance of a janitor, Albert Johnson.

INDUSTRIAL URGE IN MEXICO STIRS UP TRADING MOOD

Nation Advances; Finds It Needs U. S. Goods.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4.—An interpretation of the Mexican scene today presents difficulties to the Anglo-Saxon mind, but something is developing in the ancient valley of Mexico. It is important to the United States in a commercial sense at least and sets a new trend and new leadership in Latin-American affairs.

After seven years of stable government and 23 years since the revolution against the great hacienda owners and the peonage system, this city of 10,000 years of romantic and tragic history now is undergoing an amazing transformation. The hammer and drill should be the symbol now instead of the eagle and snake. The nearest comparison that comes to this writer is the scene in busy Osaka, industrial capital of Japan.

Buildings Going Up.

Wide streets are being cut through the heart of the ancient city. New office buildings, apartments, and residences are going up everywhere. The suburbs of the new middle class, model workmen's villages, perhaps are more significant of the revolution than a great dome which workmen are plastering.

In the business center tracks are being torn up and new ones laid. New pavements, wider sidewalks, and new store fronts on the American pattern are being put in.

The palaces which the Spanish grandees remodeled are being abandoned. Behind these sad and crumbling walls one finds courts of beauty and peace, palms and ancient gnarled trees, and flowers of many hues blooming under the blue sky. The melody of birds mingles with the sound of a thousand hammers, the impatient honking of crowded traffic and the cries of newsboys and lottery vendors.

The marble opera house begun in the days of Porfirio Diaz is being rushed to completion. It is called the Palace of Fine Arts. Workmen have poured concrete under the base, which rests on an extinct lake where Aztec emperors had island temples and palaces. A scholastic and park center is being built on the site of the ancient prison of Belem.

Hills Dotted with Fine Homes.

The hills are dotted with the homes of the new rich, some with swimming pools and tennis courts. Lawns of bright green are flecked with daisies, cherry trees are in blossom, lilies and roses are blooming in bright gardens.

A boom is in the atmosphere, with real estate signs everywhere, but few homes are offered for sale. They are occupied largely by Mexican families, the product of the industrial urge that has overtaken the nation.

There are several other notable changes since the writer's last visit here nine years ago. The streets then were crowded with barefooted Indians and beggars. The beggars have largely disappeared. The government is herding them into dormitories and hospitals, absorbing them into social rehabilitation schemes. The Indians have shoes.

Robed Priests Missing.

Radios blare on every corner and the American movie dominates the entertainment field. The familiar figure of the black robed priest that seems to go with these old walls is no more. It is against the law to wear clerical garments on the streets. Churches with dim, quiet interiors and dazzling altars still are sanctuary to thousands and candles burn before the images of saints. Black dressed women kneel there as of old, but the younger generation paint their nails red, dress like they do in Hollywood, and stroll by the churches laughing. They are entering the "scientific age."

In an economical way all this signifies new wants and new purchasing power. The standard of living has increased measurably. With continued stable government, the living standards will be lifted still higher.

The question is who is going to supply these wants. The Mexicans, backed by their government, intend to do this as far as possible. American goods and styles, however, are popular, and the government, faced with the necessity of exporting agricultural products, is in a trading mood.

Time Ripe for U. S. Drive.

The exchange situation has resulted in increasing the cost of European merchandise, while that of American goods has remained constant. With the country emerging from the economic depression in this way, every index showing a favorable trend, this seems to be the time for an American drive for more business here.

The latest figures on exports from the United States to Mexico, exclusive of gold and silver, follow: for 1932 through November, $29,070,704, and for 1933 through November, $34,061,489. Imports from Mexico to the United States for this same period show $35,137,127 for 1932 and $27,421,364 for 1933.

The chief exports from the United States into Mexico at present are machinery, tools, iron and steel products, automobiles and accessories, fuel oil, gasoline, packing house products, chemicals, cotton goods, lumber, paper, glass, china, shoes, and hardware.

Mexico Takes More Goods.

Mexico has taken more of our goods, while we have taken less of hers. It will be necessary to balance this around the government trading table at Washington. The buying power of this district, as well as Monterey and Guadalajara, is high, and the rapidly growing middle class is becoming an important customer for a wide range of manufactured goods.

The chief imports into the United States from Mexico are petroleum, silver, lead, copper, sisal hemp, coffee, vegetables, gold, zinc, sugar, chicle, hides, skins, bananas, nuts, cotton, vanilla beans, rubber, and tobacco.

High pressure American salesmanship is unpopular here, for under the veneer of the life of this capital, with its swift changing panorama, lies the traditions of another civilization. It is Indian in character with the customs of 400 years of Spanish influence. The business man still does things in the old way, although he secretly admires and copies the American way. There are stores here that might have been transplanted from Michigan avenue or Broadway, but the storekeeper still pulls down his shutters at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and goes in for a leisurely lunch and siesta during the heat of the day.

The city becomes less American, more Mexican, with the years. English is spoken in more places than in Tokio, but it is useless to try to do business in that language.

There were 10,000 Americans here ten years ago. There are now about 1,500. While the Spanish language remains it is the Mexican who is emerging with his part Indian blood. Back of him an immense reservoir of vigorous country Indians, of the old peon class, now are slowly coming out of their centuries of darkness and oppression into new wants. It is an awakened, nationally conscious, militant Mexico that now must be dealt with.

BAPTISTS SPLIT; BUY SYNAGOGUE AS NEW CHURCH

Keokuk, Ia., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A long-drawn feud between two factions of Baptists reached a new stage of tensity here today with one group purchasing and occupying a Jewish synagogue immediately across the street from its former church.

The split in Baptist ranks is said to have been caused in part some time ago over the question of worldly pleasures, including card playing, movies, and dancing.

12,000 RETAIL DEALERS HERE TO SPEND 5 MILLION

Interstate Merchants to Open Session Today.

Orders for more than $5,000,000 worth of goods are expected to result from the 25th semi-annual meeting of the Interstate Merchants council which opens a four day session today in Hotel Sherman.

The Chicago Association of Commerce, sponsor of the retail group and the attendant style show to be held nightly in the grand ballroom of the hotel, looks for 12,000 out of town merchants. These include owners and buyers of 4,000 leading department stores in the United States and Canada. Registrations have been received from 36 states. Wares of 102 Chicago manufacturers will be displayed in the style show which has 59 girl models and eight male mannequins.

New Buyers Here.

Among registrations Saturday 16 were store owners who have not attended a Chicago trade event since 1930. The Canadian viewpoint, according to a Saskatchewan merchant, is friendlier to buying in the Chicago market, "now that there is no exchange against Canadian money."

Another encouraging influence noted by the Association of Commerce has resulted from the elimination of sweatshop competition in the east. Buyers, who used to go to New York because of cut prices, are expected here because the NRA has placed all on an equal footing.

Whiteside to Speak.

Arthur D. Whiteside, national administrator of the retail trade, will speak Tuesday afternoon at the first business session of the convention.

Two phases of the New Deal, reflected in the clothing industry, are repeal of the 18th amendment and provision of more leisure time under the NRA. These, the manufacturers say, has resulted in greater clothes consciousness on the part of both men and women. To meet this situation, costumes are being presented for the cocktail hour and more attention is being paid to sport wear.

Moley Speaks in Chicago Tomorrow on New Deal

Raymond Moley, who resigned as a member of the President's "brain trust," and since has been editing a weekly magazine, will lecture in Mandel hall of the University of Chicago tomorrow evening. His hearers will be economists of the university, many of whom are opposed to the Moley theories. Mr. Moley's subject will be, "Is There a New Deal?" He will fly to Chicago from Kansas City tomorrow morning.

Dies of Infection Caused by Steel Sliver in Hand

Louis T. Rees, 22 years old, 417 West 115th street, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital from an infection which set in after he got a sliver of steel in his left hand while at work at the Ingersoll Steel and Disc company, 1000 West 120th street.

Miss Margaret Wallace is chairman of the affair and Mrs. E. D. Huntington and Mrs. L. L. Charpier will be chaperons. Proceeds of the party will go to the student fund.

TWO FUGITIVES SHOT BY POLICE IN STOLEN AUTO

Two youths riding in a stolen car were shot and captured last night after a 25 minute chase by a police squad in the North Racine avenue police district.

The pair were sighted at Holt and Cornell streets by Policemen Walter Gregory and Oscar Simonsen of the stolen auto detail. During the pursuit the policemen fired 16 bullets through the rear of the fugitive car. Two of the bullets hit the occupants.

The youths were Frank Torkarz, 21 years old, 1539 Cornell street, who was shot in the back of the head, and Bernard Phillips, 18, of 1545 Cornell street, who was grazed on the chin. Torkarz is in a critical condition in the Bridewell hospital. The car they were caught in was stolen from W. V. Wexberg, 5006 North Albany avenue.

Kills Himself on the Eve of Wedding Anniversary

Otto Keppler, 47 years old, 1210 Montrose avenue, who planned to celebrate his tenth wedding anniversary today, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling gas in the kitchen of his home. He had been unemployed four years and was despondent over his inability to find work. His wife, Irma, found his body when she returned from her work at the Drake hotel, where she is employed at the cigar counter.

DIES AFTER BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Mrs. Lottie Zuchowski, 49 years old, 8346 Brandon avenue, died of heart disease yesterday as she returned home from a birthday party at the home of her sister-in-law.

AUSTRIA TO SEND COMMISSION TO U. S. ON TRADE

Seeks Business Increase with America.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 4.—Fritz Stockinger, Austrian minister of commerce, today announced further plans for a study of the possibilities of increasing trade between Austria and the United States. Stockinger said he is organizing and sending a commission to the United States to discuss with American economic leaders what can be done to place more Austrian goods in American markets in exchange for Austria's purchase of American cotton and raw materials.

The commission is scheduled to arrive in New York Feb. 16. The sending of the Austrian commission to the United States is attributed largely to the work and interest of the American minister to Austria, George H. Earle, who is now in the United States on a vacation.

Seeks Bigger Liquor Quota.

Stockinger said it would be absolutely necessary to place more Austrian goods in United States markets if Austria is to keep up its purchases of American cotton. He wants especially to get a bigger slice of the American liquor market for Austria, and seeks wider markets for Austrian wines, luxury products and artistic handiwork.

Other Austrian groups to study trade will go to the United States later. They will visit Washington, New York and other principal trade centers.

Wine Manufacturer Leaves.

In connection with the Austrian quest for an American wine market, Stockinger revealed today that Robert Schlumberger, big manufacturer of wine and champagne and vice president of the Austrian Wine Dealers' association, left a few days ago for the United States. He is seeking facilities for Austrian wine exports.

Dr. Boehler of the Austrian commerce ministry will head the general trade study to be made by the commission leaving next week.

Last year Austria bought $8,000,000 worth of goods from America. It sold $2,500,000 worth to America.

DIES AT 91 AFTER FALL.

Mrs. Jensine Wilde, 91 years old, 2009 Mohawk street, died yesterday in the county hospital. She had suffered a fractured hip when she fell while sitting down to her Christmas dinner.

ARGENTINA EXCLUDES EUROPE FROM BENEFITS OF TRADE ACCORDS

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 4.—Argentina has started to exclude European nations from the benefits of South American trade agreements. Its action might lead eventually to the realization of Chile's proposed South American customs union. This is in accordance with a principle several South American republics tried repeatedly but without success to have adopted by the Pan-American conference at Montevideo.

The first formal exclusion of Europeans is contained in a commercial modus vivendi agreement signed with Holland on Jan. 31 and published today by Foreign Minister Carlos Saavedra Lamas. This agreement concedes to both parties unconditional and unlimited most-favored nation treatment in everything concerning commerce, industry, agriculture, and exchange permits for remittances.

The second clause, however, reads: "There are excepted from the foregoing agreement, however, those favors already conceded or which may be conceded in the future to bordering states to facilitate transfrontier trade."

SLEEPS ON GUN IN MAIL CAR; CLERK SHOT TO DEATH

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—In an accidental shooting which police said was the most unusual in their experience, Charles Heimer, 49 years old, of 4310 North Hermitage avenue, Chicago, a mail clerk, was fatally wounded today while on a Milwaukee road express train near Oconomowoc.

Heimer, at the County Emergency hospital here, where he died a few hours after the accident, told detectives he did not know how it had happened, as he was asleep at the time. According to several other clerks of the mail car, Heimer lay on a bench and covered himself with a mail sack for a rest as the train was passing through Watertown.

When the train neared Oconomowoc the clerks heard a muffled report. One of them glanced toward Heimer and saw smoke curling from beneath the mail sack. Heimer's pistol was lying at his left side and the bench was covered with blood. His wife, who hurried here from Chicago and was with him when he died, said there was no motive that she knew of for him to end his life.

Police finally decided that Heimer grasped the revolver in his sleep, "perhaps while dreaming of a mail robbery," and pulled the trigger.

3D BOULDER DAM BUILDING CHIEF IN A ROW DIES

Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Six Companies, Inc., builders of the great Boulder dam, was without a leader today for the third time since the organization was formed to construct the world's largest reclamation and power project.

E. O. Wattis, 78 years old, third president of Six Companies, Inc., died unexpectedly at his home in Ogden, Utah, last night of heart disease.

Wattis and his brother, the late William H. Wattis, officials of the Utah Construction company, led in organizing Six Companies.

William H. Wattis was named president of the combined firms. He died Sept. 13, 1931, being succeeded by W. A. Bechtel of San Francisco. Mr. Bechtel died while touring Russia last summer and was succeeded by E. O. Wattis.

Insane Convict Fugitive Is Captured in Missouri

Springfield, Mo., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Joseph G. Watts, 25, one of three insane convicts who escaped from the United States department of justice medical center here Thursday night, was captured today in the Ozark hills near Crane, Mo., by officers and prison guards. Search was renewed for his companions, Norvin Roark, 41, serving a life term for murder, and Albert Devan, 34, sentenced to two years for counterfeiting. Watts is serving 10 years for robbery.

AUTO TOURISTS HEADING SOUTH TO MARDI GRAS

New Routes Will Avoid State of Tennessee.

BY HAL FOUST.

With the Mardi Gras opening in New Orleans on Friday, hundreds of Chicagoland motorists will be heading south to the historic city near the mouth of the Mississippi river. The most popular routes in the past have been through Nashville or through Memphis, but this year many will be avoiding Tennessee because of its unfair treatment of highway transportation.

The Chicago Motor club yesterday recommended a route that will carry the traveler through the wooded hills of Arkansas, adding scenery to the trip with almost no addition in driving time.

U. S. 66 to Springfield

The Joliet road, U. S. 66, is followed to Springfield, Ill., thence south to Anna on U. S. 51. The Mississippi river may be crossed at Cairo or at Cape Girardeau and to pick U. S. 61 followed to West Memphis, Ark., and thence on U. S. 70 to Little Rock or to Hot Springs.

By turning south at Little Rock on U. S. 65 to Natchez and thence using U. S. 61 to New Orleans the distance to the Mardi Gras from Chicago is 1,186 miles, including only fifty miles of gravel. The visit to the popular resort town of Hot Springs increases the mileage to 1,250.

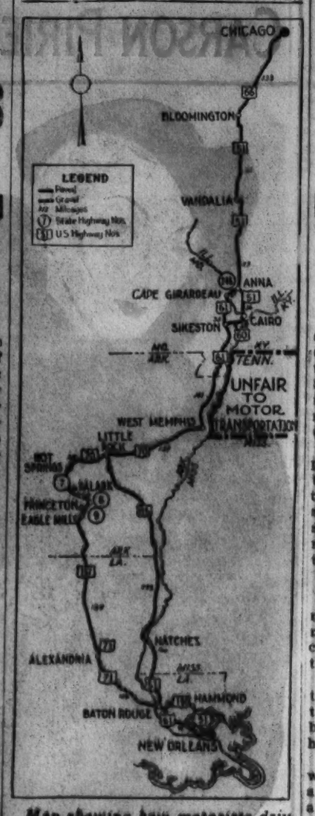
The shortest route between Chicago and New Orleans is 998 miles, following U. S. 51 through Memphis and Jackson, Miss., but this includes 255 miles of gravel in Mississippi, which is rough and dusty in dry weather and slippery in wet.

Former Alternate Route.

Before Tennessee began its war on highway transportation a popular alternate route to avoid this long stretch of bad gravel consisted of U. S. 41 from Chicago to Nashville, U. S. 31 to Birmingham, Ala., thence route 5 to Mobile and U. S. 90 through Biloxi and Gulfport to New Orleans, a distance of 1,119 miles, with eighty miles of gravel.

Tennessee has aroused the ire of the motoring public with its 8 cents a gallon tax on gasoline and its requirement that a truck from another state making a single visit into Tennessee must pay a full year's license fee. Illinois highway police are watching southern Illinois roads for Tennessee trucks preparatory to a reprisal should Tennessee continue to arrest Illinois carriers. The administration is seeking a reciprocal agreement with the Tennessee administration.

MARDI GRAS ROUTE



Map showing how motorists driving from Chicago to the New Orleans Mardi Gras, which opens Friday, may avoid the state of Tennessee because of its unfair treatment of highway transportation.

Court Keeps Pastor from Pulpit After His Ouster

Valparaiso, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The Rev. George Schutes, pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church, attended by Valparaiso university instructors and students, was restrained from occupying his pulpit today by court order, after he had announced he would, despite his ouster by the congregation.

Chicago Boys, Nabbed with Girl, Escape from Jail

Duquoin, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Sheriff Albert C. Davis of Perry county today enlisted the assistance of officers in neighboring southern Illinois counties in the search for Joe and Fred Anderson, Chicago youths who yesterday escaped from the county jail at Pinckneyville. The boys were being held for the grand jury on a charge of robbing a beer parlor here several nights ago. The prisoner tore off a cell door in the jail and dug a hole through the wall. An auto awaited them near by. Anna Shea of Chicago, arrested with the youths, was in another part of the jail and made no effort to get away.

Meet the extra tax of winter

with good resistance

It's a common experience—to be out in wet weather and then come down with some uncomfortable winter ill. In fact, most people can only afford to be out in bad weather if they are thoroughly protected.

What they often fail to realize is that bundling up and keeping their feet dry isn't all that helps them escape the effects of exposure. Another equally important precaution is to build good general resistance!

The time has arrived when people are interested in keeping well instead of waiting to build up after they're ill. They are learning how to take advance precautions for reasons of increased comfort and efficiency. Many use a resistance-builder, regularly every day.

Naturally they turn to the source that has helped keep people well for centuries—good cod-liver oil. Only now they obtain the protective benefits of its vitamins in modern form—with Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D!

Each Adex tablet provides 1500 units of resistance-building Vitamin A and 2450 units of sunshine Vitamin D.

SPANISH RULE AT STAKE; RADICALS THREATEN COUP

Rightists Mass; Prepare to Seize Power.

MADRID, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Spain today saw months of vital political warfare drawn into definite battle lines between rightist and leftist factions. Spokesmen for both of them announced they would take over government power unless the present "intolerable situation" is clarified.

In the last few days the clarions of political warfare have resounded throughout the nation, with open threats of possible proletarian dictatorship and rightist dictatorship answered by a rallying call of the left republican faction against any dictatorship.

Admits Conditions Are Bad.

Premier Alejandro Lerroux was maneuvering his own center government through difficult parliamentary channels. He is forced to depend on the rightists for support.

Minister of the Interior Diego Martinez Barrios readily admitted today that conditions were bad, but said he believed the Lerroux government held the only solution.

The two opposing party spokesmen were Gil Robles, outstanding rightist and leader of the Catholic agrarians, and Indalecia Prieto, the Socialist deputy, for the leftists.

Robles declared the rightists would assume power without delay if the Lerroux government failed. In this case Robles himself would be the leading candidate for the premiership.

Visions Socialist Rule.

Prieto announced flatly that the Socialist coalition was en route to power in Spain. Renewed political debate was expected next week when the Socialists will be asked to define their attitude within the republic.

Robles told 1,500 guests at a political banquet that Spain was experiencing political anarchy, with plots and counterplots, "as if the government were nonexistent."

"This situation must terminate immediately, beginning today," he said.

"The Socialists," he said, "have one foot in parliament and the other in street barricades. They have announced a revolution. The government should determine whether such actions are within the law."

Referring to a recent speech of Barrios in which he said Lerroux would succeed himself if the cabinet failed, Robles said "the rightists will have something to say regarding the government of the country. We shall govern when this government falls, whatever be the régime."

Extremists took precautions to cut communication facilities and prevent a national broadcast of Robles' speech. Socialist waiters refused to serve the banquet at which he spoke and a private catering service was called in. Bakers refused to furnish bread, which was brought from private homes.

Prieto, in a three hour address to 3,000 party members in a theater, forecast the forthcoming triumph of Socialist forces in Spain, joined by other laboring organizations, and control of the political destiny of Spain. Government officials refused to allow Prieto's anti-executive statements to be broadcast.

An Oklahoma City dispatch to THE TRIBUNE, printed on Friday morning, told of Frank Murray, a distant cousin of Gov. William H. Murray, admitting he took pardon fees. The heading, in the earlier editions, said "brother" instead of "cousin." THE TRIBUNE is glad to make this correction.

MOODY INSTITUTE OBSERVING 28TH FOUNDERS' WEEK

The Rev. Dr. James M. Gray, president of the Moody Bible institute, yesterday opened the institute's 28th annual Founders' week conference which commemorates the birth and works of the late Dwight L. Moody, founder of the school. Alumni, former students, foreign missionaries, and friends of the school assembled in the auditorium at North La Salle street and Chicago avenue to hear a discussion of "The Second Coming of Christ."

"It is strange that there should be any question as to the meaning of the Lord's coming when the Bible language is so simple and convincing," said Dr. Gray. "The subject is referred to in the New Testament no less than 300 times." He said that the scripture warns against the fixing of a date for Christ's return to earth.

The Rev. Paul W. Rood, pastor of the Lake View Swedish Mission Covenant church, spoke on "If Christ Should Come Tomorrow." Today's sessions of the conference will include addresses by the Rev. Howard W. Ferrin, pastor of the Providence Bible institute, Providence, R. I., and Prof. Oswald T. Allis of Westminster Theological seminary, Philadelphia.

COAST GUARDS TAKE FOOD TO 250 ON ISLAND

Bayshore, N. Y., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Coast guardsmen carried fresh food supplies over five miles of perilious ice floes today to some 250 residents of Fire island, marooned when Great South bay froze over.

The men carted canned goods and other groceries in four amphibian "ice scooters," each manned by two guardsmen. The craft are built like boats with runners beneath them. They can be pushed or sailed across the ice and sailed or rowed in the water.

"SELLING CALLS FOR HEALTHY NERVES, TOO—MR. MARKSMAN"

Kenneth B. Logan, Salesman, of Scarsdale, N. Y., says:

"The selling game calls for healthy nerves just as much as being a wonderful marksman. Meeting people all day long...trying to turn prospects into customers... the life of a salesman certainly tells on the nerves! I smoke most of the time—but I smoke only Camels, and I'll tell you why I say only Camels! Camels don't upset my nerves—and no cigarette can match Camels on flavor, either."

Virgil Richard, Champion Sharpshooter, says:

"I've been smoking for years and had no trouble in keeping my nerves in shape for making record scores. That's because I have long been a Camel smoker. Camels are much milder, and never interfere with my nerves."

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Does your job sometimes get you down? Do you feel tired? Ready to "blow up" any minute...because of raw nerves?

Try to get enough sleep. Eat sensibly. And get a fresh slant on your smoking by turning to Camels. Much has been said on the subject of tobacco quality. But——

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

That statement is conclusive. And it represents an important benefit that nervous people should not overlook!

Begin to smoke Camels. Taste those finer tobaccos. Notice their mildness. You will be delighted to find that Camels do not upset your nerves...or tire your taste.

PREPARE TO QUIZ JACK M'GURN IN CONSPIRACY CASE

Alleged Capone Gunner Due for Trial Appearance

"Machine Gun Jack" McGurn, who was born Vincent Gebardi, will appear as state's witness in Criminal court today, a new rôle for him, if he obeys a subpoena, and if Assistant State's Attorneys Edwin J. Raber and Thomas Dodd Healy, racket trial prosecutors, decide to use him.

The gangster has been called as witness in the trial in Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan's court of 18 men accused of participating in a conspiracy to racketeer in the cleaning, dyeing, and allied industries. The list of defendants includes Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], Dr. Benjamin Squires, University of Chicago economist; Attorneys Aaron Sapiro and Morris Kaplan, and many labor union chiefs.

Prosecutor Healy said yesterday that he had not yet fully decided to put McGurn on the witness stand. He said he might ask Judge Finnegan to call him as a court witness so the state will be able to cross-examine him. McGurn is reputed to have been employed by his chief, Al Capone, in various cleaning and dyeing war activities.

Prosecutor Healy said that the evidence pertaining to labor troubles and organization in the cleaning and dyeing industry probably will be completed by Wednesday. Evidence concerning conditions affecting the laundry business then will be presented, he said. Thereafter the state intends to submit testimony concerning what went on in the administration of the linen supply and beverage dispensing industries.

It will require several more weeks for the state to present its case, Prosecutor Healy said. McGurn is but one of more than 250 witnesses who may yet be heard by the jury.

Fire Destroys Famous Home of British "Mustard King"

GATTON, Surrey, England, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Gatton Hall, famous home of Sir Jeremiah Colman, known as the "mustard king," was destroyed today by fire. Many of the treasures inside the hall, which stands within a model village of Sir Jeremiah's creation, were saved by the villagers, but the valuable library was severely damaged. The Colman family for many generations has held a virtual monopoly to supply mustard within the British isles.

DANDRUFF

Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it. Then, you destroy it entirely. To do this, get some plain ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rubbing it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents (35c). No matter how much dandruff you have, this simple remedy never fails.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY ANOTHER DIES; ASSAILANT HELD

Lawler, a patrolman at the New City station, was arrested at his home by Capt. John Egan of the Grand Crossing station immediately after Egan had been notified of Minsa's death. Lawler had been under suspension, but at liberty on a $5,000 bond on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. He was lodged in a cell at the Grand Crossing station.

Attendants at the filling station said Lawler was intoxicated at the time of the shooting. Though the policemen were unacquainted, Lawler had demanded that Minsa drive him to his home when Minsa drove his car into the filling station. When Minsa refused Lawler drew his service pistol and started firing, one of the bullets striking the other man below the left eye. Minsa was attached to the Stockyards station. He is survived by his widow, Anna; a daughter, Virginia, 17 years old, and a son, Robert, 14 years olds.

SEXTON RULES CITY CAN'T DIVERT LIQUOR FEES FOR SCHOOL PAY

Corporation Counsel Sexton has advised members of the city council that there is no warrant in law for the proposal that the city turn over to the board of education for use in paying the salaries of teachers the fees received from liquor establishments.

"The city now," he said in his opinion, "has no right to use school funds for city purposes, and on the other hand it has no right to use city money for school purposes. The same situation exists as in the case of the obligations of the sanitary district or one of the park boards. It would be contrary to law to use city funds to pay the obligations of another municipal corporation even though its territory was confined to the territorial limits of the city of Chicago."

The opinion was written in response to a resolution submitted to the council by Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], and referred to the finance committee. Following the report from Mr. Sexton, the council filed the Nelson resolution.

BLAME DOUBLE TRAGEDY ON A FURNACE DEFECT

A furnace defect was blamed for the death early yesterday of Mrs. Evelyn Jensen, 26 years old, wife of Harry Jensen, ex-labor leader and former member of the state board of pardons and paroles. Mrs. Jensen was found unconscious Friday afternoon by her husband in the couple's home at 5523 Melrose street. Edward Muehlenbeck, 29 years old, of 3607 North St. Louis avenue, a vacuum cleaner salesman, was overcome at the same time. He died a few hours later.

An inquest into the double tragedy was continued to Feb. 15 at the Irving Park police station. Dr. Calvin E. Brown, who attended Mrs. Jensen at the Norwegian-American hospital, said the deaths of the two victims were caused by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Bernard J. Mullaney, vice president of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, said there probably was a defect in the coal furnace, which had been equipped to burn gas. Investigators for the gas company were ordered to make a thorough investigation of the tragedy.

SEEK AIR RIFLE SHOOTER.

A small boy who shot Joseph Haggensen, 912 Hamlin street, Evanston, in the left eye with an air rifle as he was walking near his home Saturday, was being sought yesterday by Evanston police. At St. Francis hospital it was found that Haggensen's sight was not endangered.

AMERICAN BARGAINS IN WORLD MARKETS.

Since the last mention on this page of THE TRIBUNE'S drive for wider markets the formal devaluation of the dollar has taken place. The first effect of the President's proclamation, curiously enough, was to increase the value of the dollar in terms of foreign currencies. It is still far too early to conclude that any such tendency may be regarded as permanent, particularly as the strengthening of the dollar took place before our government's so-called stabilization fund came into action. Moreover, it is well within the possibilities that foreign nations will devalue their currencies or counter our devaluation with new forms of foreign trade subsidies which would take away much of the competitive advantage which the President's monetary advisers have promised our producers.

There appears now to be pretty general agreement that many kinds of American goods, at the present value of the dollar, are bargains in the world's markets, and have been for some months. If there is not a permanent advantage for our farmers and manufacturers in that fact there may still be a substantial temporary advantage.

While the monetary situation must be left to clarify itself there is a good deal of satisfaction to be found in the widespread interest, here and abroad, which has been taken in THE TRIBUNE'S campaign. Numerous communications asking information and advice have been received from actual and potential exporters. News items such as that from the London bureau reporting that a Turkish trade delegation with 60 million dollars to spend is on its way to this country have led to inquiries for more details, which have been gladly provided. The recognition by the Illinois Agricultural association at its Danville meeting of the need for wider markets for farm products is another evidence of the growing acceptance in this part of the country, at any rate, of the view that monetary manipulations and governmental assumption of private debts will not alone suffice to restore prosperity. Wider markets appear to offer a much more secure basis for the future.

To any one who has read the published dispatches from widely scattered correspondents discussing the possibilities of trade expansion it must be abundantly clear that the principal obstacle is to be found in the determination of the various governments to prevent their and our business men from doing business. Our own government is by no means to be excluded from the list of business killers, as Mr. Steele's two dispatches from London, published on Jan. 24 and 25, clearly reveal. Italy has just raised her duties on automobiles and other typical American manufactures by some 60 per cent, according to preliminary calculations. Hugh Curran cables from Dublin that the Irish Free State is about to encourage the creation of a cotton spinning and weaving industry in Ireland, and also to supply its own wants in metal goods, cutlery, tires, shoes, and pottery. Ireland proposes to refine its own gasoline, manufacture its own nitrates, grow its own wheat, and prepare a coal substitute from peat. Few if any of these industries can exist in Ireland without restrictive quotas and prohibitive tariffs, raised chiefly, of course, against Great Britain, but also against every other country.

There is no point in quoting these examples at length. Every country is attempting to become completely self-sustaining, with the result that every country's standard of living is being undermined. In every country consumers are being obliged to pay needlessly high prices, often for inferior goods.

Still, it is encouraging to discover that the excesses of the governments in raising trade barriers to absurd heights are beginning to be recognized as excesses. Norman Ingrey cabled from Santiago, Chile [Jan. 27], that one of Santiago's most consequential newspapers, El Mercurio, has announced itself in accord with THE TRIBUNE'S position and is looking forward to a lowering of the trade barriers in this hemisphere. George Smith's dispatch from Ottawa on Jan. 31 clearly revealed that many members of the Canadian parliament are dissatisfied with the trade policies of the Conservatives. Philip Kinsley, now in Mexico, finds a disposition there toward a lowering of the barriers on a reciprocal basis. In general, the nations of this hemisphere appear more willing than European countries are to reverse the recent trend. The United States has an opportunity to lead in the movement toward sanity in this hemisphere, and it is a fortunate circumstance that the present secretary of state, Mr. Hull, is a firm believer in the gospel of wider markets.

A LESSON FROM CLEVELAND.

The news of the impending default of the city of Cleveland can hardly have come as a surprise to any one who has been observing the trend of American municipal finances. The city of Chicago has not yet been forced to default, thanks in part to better than average fiscal management since 1931 and thanks, also, to the existence here of a substantial trust fund which the city has been able to invest in its own notes when other financing was impossible. Other governments in Chicago, without these advantages, have defaulted, however, and, of course, innumerable other municipal governments all over the country have been unable to meet their debts as they came due and if they had been private corporations would have been declared bankrupt.

Excessive public expenditure, of course, explains the difficulties of nearly all the cities. It led, in the first place, to a steady mounting of the tax bills upon real estate, which had the expectable result of making real estate a relatively unattractive form of investment. During the boom this effect was masked; but even before the depression was general, real estate was in a slump.

The decline in real estate values was greatly accentuated by other forms of taxation, state and federal. Heavy estate taxes, among others, forced residences on the market, and in the depression the effect was little short of catastrophic. The graduated taxes, falling most heavily upon the wealthier citizens who occupied the most desirable sites, helped to break the market in properties of that sort. High income taxation had the same effect.

The consequences were by no means localized in Chicago to the gold coast and the wealthier residential suburbs. Every one cannot live in the best locations though every one would like to. When a house on the drive, which cost half a million, is thrown on the market for whatever it will fetch and is finally sold for $100,000, another property which cost $100,000 instantly loses its value, too. The prospective purchaser who can get a better house, in a better location, for the price will not pay $100,000 for an inferior article.

The decline in real estate values has resembled the collapse of a house of cards. Knock off the values of the most desirable buildings, and the values of all the less desirable ones are certain to be reduced in greater or less degree.

RAILROAD PASSENGERS.

For some unexplained reason the objectives of freight and passenger departments of our railways have always been as far apart as the poles. The freight traffic manager strove to offer a shipper the widest possible market for his products, and to this end developed rates that yielded the carrier a diminishing return as the mileage increased. Railway passenger departments, on the other hand, have always published fare schedules based strictly on a constant return for each mile of travel. The freight method has had the effect of lifting the business horizon by expanding the territory, while the latter offers civilization no assistance in its struggle with distance. Results are readily ascertainable from railway records—the average freight shipment moves 185 miles, the average passenger 35 miles.

The idea probably is not new, but it might be suggested to associations that surveys be made to develop passenger traffic possibilities between all large centers of population through lower long distance fares. The public demands fast through service, which can be made profitable only by an increase in the number of through passengers. The airways are fully alive to this situation, but we would like to see the railways take the initiative.

BRIGHTER WRESTLING.

Much has been done to make wrestling a sport of bigger moans, better anguish, and brighter torments. When the promoters and wrestlers had it forced upon them that their public was losing interest in heavy revelations of muscle strain and resistance, whether on the level or not, they did what any wise business man would do if he could when confronted with a disappearing market. They produced a better article.

They took a little of grand opera, some bits of pugilism which would be ruled foul in the prize ring and unfair in an alley fight, whatever they could use of football before it was measurably reformed, added a few surgical touches, some bull fighting, gave the performers voice culture and the rudiments of the training of a Kentucky coal county deputy sheriff, and produced the new drama.

The show is good, but if it shows signs of relapse at any time the promoters are welcome to the following suggestion free of charge: Introduce some really expert French savate. Joe Savoldi has reached the chin of Jim Londos several times with his feet, but Mr. Londos has yet to meet flying heels which would come off the floor like thunderbolts. A skilful French boxer of the savate school would bring a new art to the mat.

Editorial of the Day

CHURCH MUSIC.
(Peoria Transcript.)

Bishop Schlarman of the Peoria diocese has issued a pastoral letter that will be read with interest not only by communicants of his own church but by members of other denominations as well.

The bishop evidently feels that many churches have drawn too far away from the ancient, fundamental faith and worship and that innovations have been out of keeping with the strictly religious functions of a church.

A large part of his letter deals with church music. The bishop has forbidden the use of such old popular songs as "The End of a Perfect Day," "Face to Face," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly" in Catholic churches and chapels.

Some protest against the ban may be expected. These songs have won for themselves a place in the hearts of many persons, although most of them have an emotional rather than a religious appeal. The bishop, however, does not say that these songs have no value, but that they do not have a strong religious value.

Many Protestant clergymen have expressed a similar opinion of much of the modern semi-religious ballad music. They have feared that the great hymns and liturgical music would be lost or disregarded in favor of more popular songs.

It will be hard to dissociate popular songs from church services generally, as many persons have a tender attachment for them in connection with weddings or deaths of loved ones.

The effort of the bishop, however, to stress the great music that has grown up around Christian worship will be received kindly by those who appreciate the objectives sought.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE W. K. OGDEN L. MILLS has made "formal announcement" that he is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1936. Must one make a formal announcement that he doesn't want to be the G. O. P. presidential hope in 1936? That ought to be one of those things that goes without saying. I would as soon think of formally announcing that I would not be a candidate for the Republican nomination in 1936, the way things look now, as I would of formally announcing that I would not jump off the top of the Alps, or swim the Atlantic ocean from New York to Ireland, or eat pie with my knife, or open a large can of TNT with a hatchet. There are some things that a fellow just naturally doesn't do. The results are too horrible to contemplate.

AND YESTERDAY, being Sunday, was most restful and enjoyable. We have all come to appreciate Sunday as we never did before. Because usually on Sunday nobody down in Washington pokes the poor old dollar around and makes it sit up on its hind legs and snap sugar off its nose and jump through a hoop. The poor old thing is just left to crawl over to a corner of its cage and get a good sleep.

NOCTURNE.

He deftly placed in silhouette
Against the silvering sky beyond,
The stately trees from Socinus
Where pagan chat, quick witted, makes
An opalescent lane between
The towering pillars, lacquer black,
Like golden moon rays captured in

"MICHIGAN METALLURGIST WANTS Dollar Based on Zinc, Lead, Copper."—Headline. Sch! Sch! Not so loud, Michigan metallurgist! Don't let the Brain Trust hear you! Gosh! they'll do it. And it would be a bad thing to have zinc, lead, and copper dollars. Everybody would be tempted to coin the bathroom fixtures and the kitchen sink.

FABLE.

At the Lord's request all the creatures of Eden assembled as He perambulated along His favorite garden walk in the cool of the evening of Paradise. He waited until the owls and bats had arrived and then turned to the gathering, which eyed Him expectantly.

"I have asked you to assemble," He said, "to inform you there is entirely too much talk hereabouts. My Father can hardly sleep o' nights, and the Holy Ghost is equally dispirited. I do not wish to seem arbitrary, but something has to be done about it. That is why I have called this convocation. Now, Lion, as monarch of the animals, what have you to say?"

"Even my wife has found that words are superfluous in our business, oh Lord," roared the Lion. "Myself, I have found that slight persuasion, and that wordless, suffices to make my motives understood. Actions speak louder than words. I believe my subjects can very well get along without them."

He put it to a vote, and the whole kingdom agreed with a roar.

Next the Lord turned to the king of the birds. "And you, Eagle," He asked, "what have you to say?"

"I find speech useless at my usual altitude, oh Lord," quoth the Eagle. "Speech is a base affair, suitable only for the chatter of magpies. Words are but an endless wheel upon which I and mine refuse to be pinioned. We can do without them, oh Lord."

All the birds sang out their agreement to this, except a few parrots and magpies.

"But I do not wish you all to be dumb," the Lord expostulated. "Some one must have speech. Despite the way speech has been abused I still consider it the greatest of all my gifts. It is up to you, Lion and Eagle, to decide who shall have the privilege."

The Lion and the Eagle looked at each other. Then, as with one accord, they eyed Man, a late arrival, a biped who also aimed to be monarch of all he surveyed. A glance, the merest flicker of an eyelid, passed between them. Mere Man quailed. That glance spoke volumes, as many knew to their sorrow.

"Much of the late confusion," spoke the Lion to the Lord, "has been due to Man's resemblance to the Monkey. Bestow speech upon Man only. Then folk will know they are not related."

It was so done, and all the birds and animals lived happy ever after. TERRY.

"NEW STATE LAW Starts Liquor Retailers Hunting New Name for Bar!"—Headline. Now, here in the U. S. A. we have become so accustomed to that sort of thing that the publicans should have no difficulty. Let the new places be called "Barrie Shoppie" or "Drinkie Storie" or "Winey Placie. Or what about "Whisky Drinkeries"? Oh, good-nightie!

FINGAL'S CAVE.

(Overture by Mendelssohn.)

There is a singing cave, the sailors say,
Girt by the sea, where pillared caverns keep
Blue of the ocean—murmuring eddies play,
Sea lions plunge and wild birds skim the spray;
While with the winds the mighty waters sweep
To thunderous music, or the breathing sleep
Of waves that sigh and softly slip away.

Music and sea . . . their shining rhythms pour
On our gray silence, and each listening ear
Interprets the vast universal lore,
Yet never tongue can tell the meaning clear;
Nightlong, a cave upon a rocky shore
Echoes with songs that we may never hear.

THE CAUSE OF DYSPEPSIA.

THE most common of all disorders is that which usually goes by the name of dyspepsia. The reader may have heard this said of the common cold. The only contradiction there is arises out of the way the facts are stated. The common cold comes in attacks, and each one of these is counted. The dyspeptic has symptoms every day, and, in consequence, each attack is not counted.

Somewhere about every tenth adult has occasional symptoms of dyspepsia, and somewhere about every twentieth has some symptoms of it nearly every day.

The common understanding is that the seat of dyspepsia is the stomach. As a rule the symptoms are felt in the stomach or seem to originate there. But this is deceptive, since the seat of the trouble lies elsewhere, and the symptoms noted in the stomach are not as they appear as to location.

As an illustration, one of the symptoms is soreness and spitting up of sour fluid. This leads to the diagnosis of acidity of the stomach, and to treatments with soda. Analysis of the stomach contents, far from showing too much acid, generally shows too little.

In gall bladder colic the average man thinks he feels the pain in his stomach. He is apt to have nausea. However, the stomach may be quite normal and the only disease he has is in his gall bladder.

Dyspepsia, so called, may be due to something wrong in the spinal cord, as in the first stages of locomotor ataxia; to disease of the spinal column, to constipation, to adhesions, and to many other causes; but disturbance of the liver and the gall bladder overbalance all others. The trouble may be caused by gall stones, or there may be inflammation of the gall bladder without stones.

Attacks of gall stone colic are not necessary for a diagnosis of gall stones. Nor is a man who has had gall stones cured because he no longer has attacks of colic. The symptoms that go by the name gall stone colic are caused by obstruction in the ducts. Gall stones that for any reason do not obstruct the ducts at any time do not cause colic. If colic due to gall stones ceases to develop occasionally it is due to the fact that the ducts are no longer obstructed rather than to disappearance of the stones.

The fact that the chief cause of dyspepsia is the gall bladder and not the stomach does not mean that there is no dyspepsia. Even though the causes lie elsewhere the stomach has trouble in doing its task and symptoms result. In fact, there is a definite type of dyspepsia known as gall bladder dyspepsia, often diagnosed as such. In this form of dyspepsia many of the symptoms proceed from the stomach. Attacks are apt to be precipitated by eating certain foods. Most cases of gall bladder dyspepsia can avoid attacks by careful dieting.

CHILBLAINS.

L. H. L. writes: I am troubled with chilblains so bad that at times they almost drive me crazy. My feet itch so that I could scratch them continuously. Will you tell me what to do for it? I have been rubbing them with kerosene. Is that harmful?

REPLY.

The kerosene treatment is an old one and not without value. It is harmless. Remember the fire hazard. The best preventives are keeping the feet warm and dry, wearing warm stockings and loose shoes, hardening the feet by daily cold foot baths.

DIET EFFECT ON EYES.

N. S. H. writes: Will you write on diet improving the condition of the eyes?

REPLY.

In Denmark after the world war it was found that many children had ulcers of the eye, were blind, or had some other eye trouble which had resulted from the undernourishment of the world war period. The fundamental of prevention of nutritional eye trouble is plenty of simple, wholesome food. There is special need of foods rich in vitamins. The one most needed is vitamin A. This vitamin abounds in carrots and colored vegetables. It is present in good meats, butter, eggs, and meals. Certain preparations known as carotin and caritol contain it. It is present in cod liver oil.

CHICKEN POX SCAR.

Mrs. J. B. writes: Is there any cure for a chicken pox scar? My boy has four deep scars about the size of a large pinhead. Will he outgrow them?

REPLY.

Massaging with the greased fingertips may help. It must be persisted in. In some instances passing of the years and consequent lining of the face makes scars worse. Sometimes the opposite occurs. Why do anything about such small scars, especially on a boy's face?

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

NO DERIVATIVE CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—A child in Russia under the age of 16 was adopted here by an American citizen in September, 1921, on the strength of which the child came to this country without having to wait for the visa or being subjected to other difficulty. It was the impression of everybody at the time and to date that said child automatically became an American citizen, and therefore no papers were applied for. It now appears that the assumption was incorrect and that an adopted person as described is subject to the same laws and regulations as any alien. Would you be so kind as to enlighten me in this respect? M. S.

TAX TITLE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I wish to purchase for taxes a parcel of real estate which was forfeited to the state for nonpayment of taxes. Would you advise what procedure is necessary and to whom I should go? Would I be assessed the 4 per cent penalty connected with the defaulted tax bill? Assuming I bought it for taxes, would I be permitted to repair the property and live in it? S. H. W.

Under Illinois law a tax title is a cloud on the previous title, rather than a title in itself. We advise you not to incur expenses along this line without first employing an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DIVORCE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—How can I find out if a certain person really obtained a divorce before marrying a relative of mine? They were married in 1927. Said party has never ceased associating with former spouse. A. J.

If there is a divorce you might get track of it by inquiring at the offices of the clerks of the courts of divorce jurisdiction where the complainant is supposed to have resided, but the failure to find the divorce would not be conclusive against the possibility of a divorce having been secured elsewhere.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—A very important Royal Air Force development which has greatly improved the efficiency of air bombing at sea was recently revealed. Unsinkable speed boats, with armor protecting the crew and engines, have been used as targets for bombing in the North sea.

The bombs dropped on them were ordinary 8 or 11 pound practice projectiles of cast iron, with a smoke compound filling. They were dropped from as high as 15,000 feet, down to 1,000 feet in diving bomb attacks.

The obvious danger to the crew lay in the concussion of a bomb dropping with great velocity on the armored cover. But this danger proved illusory.

Aircraftsman Shaw, better known as Lawrence of Arabia, has been in charge of one of the vessels. This led to false reports that he offered himself as a human target for aircraft with live bombs.

There is little or no danger to the crew. This was proved when a bomb fell on a vessel's armor plate. The "direct hit" was not noticed by the crew for several minutes. There was no shock, and the noise was hardly greater than usual—the bombs make a terrific noise when they hit the water.

But while these experiments proved free from danger, it was found to be extremely trying and uncomfortable. The target boats traveled up and down for two hours under a bomb attack. During this time the crew was penned in under the armor near the engines. The air was stifling and the crew could not emerge.

This target practice experiment was first tried out in July, 1932. It was resumed last year. So closely was it veiled in secrecy that no report reached the public until recently.

As the target boats are less than 40 feet long and capable of traveling 30 miles an hour, they provide a severe test in bombing precision compared with the only previous mobile marine target, the H. M. S. Centurion, which steams at 16 knots and turns slowly.

It is an open secret that against such actual battleship targets, bombing precision has greatly advanced in recent years. It is reported that even in very high altitude trials something like one bomb out of five strikes the target.

There is also a huge financial saving in the use of these small speedboats. They are operated at a cost of only $5.00 an hour compared with the use of a battleship and attendant destroyer, manned by several hundred men.

The vessels are built in compartments. Mahogany is used in all stressed parts. They are also packed with a filling compound of expanded rubber, ten times lighter than cork, to make them unsinkable. Hadfield plate, half an inch thick, covers the engines, tanks, controls and crews.

The greatest problem was to prevent the speed of the craft being reduced by the addition of so much armor. This was overcome by fitting a third 100 horse power engine with a third screw. The shafts all work in line and turn the same way.

This method, which has often been disputed by naval engineers, has proved its efficiency—the armored boats, despite their great increase of weight, become if anything, faster than the normal unarmored twin screw boats.

COMBINING ARMY FORCES.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—In a Washington dispatch this morning it was suggested that the chemical warfare service and the ordnance department of the United States army be combined, as well as many other departments. This, in the opinion of the writer, who, he believes, voices the sentiment of many other army men, would be a grave error.

The present United States army technically is not a fighting organization. The plan is to use it as a training corps when and if a war is declared. Congressmen never take into consideration the difference between a peace time and a war time army. An army of the United States, to fight even a little war, would expand at least ten times. Those officers now in the infantry, cavalry, aviation, artillery or chemical warfare are preparing themselves to teach their arts, and teach them in a hurry, to civilians who would make up the backbone of the army if a war were declared. The peace time army is not designed as a protective unit.

The ordnance department is specifically charged with the procurement of guns and ammunition. The chemical warfare service procures and experiments with chemical weapons, constantly changing, as rifles and artillery are not. The chemical officers must be experts in this branch of science; they must have a research knowledge of the constantly changing conditions. Ordnance officers know guns, chemical officers their weapons. Both are large subjects. In addition the chemical officers at Edgewood arsenal conduct experiments with dangerous gases which could not be carried on in commercial manufacturing plants.

The only saving that would be effected in a consolidation of the chemical warfare service and the ordnance department would be the saving in the difference of the pay of a colonel and a major general, a matter of approximately $2,500. If the chemical organization were absorbed by the ordnance section the officers would, by reason of their jobs, work as a separate subdivision, headed by a colonel.

FAST TRAINS TO BIRMINGHAM.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—In his article of Jan. 29 your traffic manager leaves the impression that Pullman cars operated from Chicago to Birmingham, Ala., are handled in milk trains.

As anybody who has ever made a study of the subject knows, there is no public demand for trains that will arrive at their destinations at noon. Morning arrivals are the most popular, with evenings the second best bet. For either service trains are available that gallop along at speeds comparable to anything operated out of Chicago. Automobiles will not catch them. I. C.

THE KILLER'S PAL.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 1.—Of all the disgusting pictures, the one shown in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, Jan. 31, of Prosecutor Estill of Indiana with his arm around Dillinger prompts me to ask why Estill didn't kiss him while he was at it.

In my opinion Estill has disgraced his office and should be removed as prosecutor. E. A. C.

REORGANIZING A BANK.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Isn't it about time that an investigation was started into the efforts of State Auditor Edward J. Barrett to block the reorganization of the West Side Trust and Savings bank, in which 25,000 depositors have their money?

A plan for reorganizing the bank has been proposed before Judge Robert E. Gentzel and he has commended this plan. The Reconstruction Finance corporation, after making a study of the proposal, has offered to advance the bank $2,100,000. The controler of the currency in Washington and the national bank examiner have approved the plan under which the institution would become a national bank.

It is true that this is the last of the big political plums which the state auditor might pick for his politically allied receiver, William O'Connell. In the face of the statement by the state auditor himself that the cost of bank receiverships last year exceeded by $1,000,000 the income, is there not some reason to suspect the motives behind the state auditor's refusal to permit reorganization of the bank and the denial of cooperation to those seeking to reestablish the institution by the state auditor's chief examiner, A. A. Mueller?

An investigation of this situation and proper publicity may save for these 25,000 depositors the money that they have in this bank and preserve for the community an institution which served it well for many years. M. S. M.

THE TRIUMPH OF THE PALOOKA.

Tenaville, Ill., Feb. 1.—I am 11 years old and the last two years have skated in THE TRIBUNE Derby. Yesterday I was entered in the Midget Derby, third heat. Well, I led the race all the way around to the final stretch, when two other boys closed in on me, one on each side, and after the race I was told by one of the judges I came in third, while many spectators told me I was tied for first.

When I read this morning's TRIBUNE it stated I was tied for second place. Here's hoping that in the future races to come your judges try to find out what it is all about, because if they had at least given me a break and said I was tied for second place instead of taking them all night to make up their minds I could have beaten that other palooka in the finals.

I want you to know that I'm a good loser, too, but if you don't get some good judges next year you'll lose a lot of good skaters. JIM PROSSEL.

P. S.: I'll bet you don't print this.

RETORT TO A CARTOON.

Berwyn, Ill., Jan. 27.—After seeing Mr. Orr's cartoon of Jan. 27, showing leadership in business riding in a 1934 model car and government bureaucrats riding in an ox cart, would not THE TRIBUNE be doing a far greater service to the public by soliciting some of this enterprising leadership and inducing it to run for public office to correct these evils?

If a paper of your influence could get an administration of this kind for the city of Chicago and Cook county I believe it would then have the right to criticize the federal government. G. C. BECK.

RICH HIT AND RUN DRIVER HELD FOR WOMAN'S DEATH

Four More Auto Victims Raise Toll to 133.

Alfred Codman Jr., 31 years old, Harvard graduate and the son of a wealthy New York and Boston stockbroker, was held without bond last night in the Sheffield avenue police station pending his arraignment today before a coroner's jury as a hit and run driver.

He is charged with causing the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Freytag, 33 years old, 3145 Cambridge avenue, and the serious injuring of her husband, Arthur, 34 years old.

Arrested in Hotel.

Codman was arrested in his room at the Commonwealth hotel, where he went Saturday night after his car had climbed the curb at Sheridan road and Briar place and struck the Freytags as they walked along the street. Without stopping, Codman drove on, but was curbed a block away by another motorist. He then leaped from his machine and ran to his room, where he locked himself in.

Funeral services for Mrs. Freytag will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Graceland cemetery chapel.

Four Deaths in Day.

Four persons died in yesterday's motor accidents in Cook county, two of whom were fatally injured when a motorcycle skidded on a street car track in Broadway near Thorndale avenue. The day's victims:

Robert T. Ford, 26 years old, 5941 North Magnolia avenue, a bookkeeper. He was driving the motorcycle.

Andrew Fairfield, 23 years old, 5107 Kenmore avenue. Died in the Edgewater hospital of injuries incurred in the motorcycle accident.

Alfred Nielsen, 38 years old, 4737 Palmer street, a laborer. His neck was broken when his automobile struck a post under the railroad viaduct at Western and Bloomingdale avenues.

An unidentified man, about 55 years old, struck by an automobile at Joliet road and Lawndale avenue, Lyons. Police found a loaded revolver in his clothing but nothing which would identify him. John Stulga, 23 years old, 4612 South Rockwell street, driver of the car, stopped after the accident.

War Veteran Dead

GEORGE W. RICH.
[Acme Photo.]

Funeral services for George W. Rich, a veteran of the civil war, who died Saturday in his home at 424 North Lockwood avenue, will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel at 318 North Central avenue. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery. Mr. Rich was 88 years old.

He was a former commander of Kilpatrick post, No. 276, Grand Army of the Republic. Members of the post will attend the funeral in a body. Surviving are his widow, Nellie, and a son and daughter, Jesse Rich and Mrs. Muriel Recane.

P. T. BREGSTONE, LAWYER, AUTHOR, DIES SUDDENLY

Philip P. Bregstone, lawyer and author, died suddenly early yesterday in his home at 5130 Dorchester avenue. A cerebral hemorrhage was the cause of death. He was 67 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Bregstone attended a movie Saturday evening and he appeared to be in good health. At 3 a. m. he awoke and complained of difficulty in breathing. He died half an hour later.

A native of Lithuania, Mr. Bregstone came to Chicago as a boy. He studied at the Lake Forest college of law and was admitted to the bar in 1897. He served as assistant city attorney during the Carter H. Harrison administration and was assistant probate judge from 1911 to 1919. He formerly was an instructor in probate law at Northwestern university.

Mr. Bregstone was active in civic and social organizations. Several months ago he published a book, "Chicago and Its Jews," dealing with the cultural history of the race in this city.

FLAVE J. WOLFE, FARM LECTURE MANAGER, DIES

Flave J. Wolfe, long active in educational and athletic activities, died early today in his home at 6501 Yale avenue. He was 58 years old. He had been suffering from heart disease recently.

Mr. Wolfe was born at Mitchell, Ind., and when he was 17 years old he started teaching school at Bryantsville, Ind. He later became superintendent of schools at Mitchell and Milan, Ind., and subsequently served as principal at Lockport, Ill. In his younger days Mr. Wolfe organized the Southern Indiana Oratorical and Athletic conference. For the last 17 years he had been with the International Harvester company, arranging lectures and tours on farming subjects.

Surviving Mr. Wolfe are his widow, Jessie; a son, Rocky Wolfe, Chicago sports writer and radio commentator, and a daughter, Mrs. Louise Luse of West Liberty, Ia.

Masonic Rites Tonight for Adolph A. C. Mayer

Mayer, an attorney here for twenty years, will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock from 3918 Irving Park boulevard under the auspices of the Ben Hur Masonic lodge, No. 818, of which he was a member. Interment will be in Quincy, Ill. Mr. Mayer, who was 52 years old, died suddenly Saturday night at his home, 3742 North Tripp avenue, following an illness of three days. Surviving are a son, Jack; two daughters, Norma and Margaret; one brother and three sisters.

Simon Roach, 62, Retired School Employe, Is Dead

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning for Simon Roach, 62 years old, who was an employé of the board of education in the supply department for more than 30 years. Mr. Roach died Saturday in the University hospital. He retired a year ago because of illness and moved to Ada, Mich., returning here to enter the hospital three weeks ago. His widow, Annie, survives.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner left this evening for Phoenix, Ariz., after completing the draft of a call for the legislature, which will be issued tomorrow. Details of the call will not be made public until it is formally issued. The chief subject is emergency education legislation.

JAMES ROBERTS DIES; TEACHER OF ENGLISH CLASSES

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for James W. Roberts, 1111 Pratt boulevard, who taught English to 15,000 Chicagoans in public classes. Mr. Roberts, who was 78 years old, died Saturday night at his home following an illness of two years.

Mr. Roberts was formerly superintendent of schools at Tacoma, Wash. He came to Chicago in 1893 and became the originator and teacher of "better English" classes. Many of the students were business men and women.

Surviving are the widow, Lillian, and three sons, Glen S. Roberts of Wilmette, Percy B. Roberts of La Porte, Ind., and Orno B. Roberts of Evanston. The services will be held at the chapel at 1118 Greenleaf avenue in Wilmette.

New Zealand Gets Maori Treaty Site as a Gift

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Lord Bledisloe, governor general of New Zealand, and Lady Bledisloe today handed over to the nation the historic site at Waitangi on which the famous treaty was signed between Gov. Hobson and the Maori chiefs. The treaty led to New Zealand coming under British sovereignty. The site was purchased recently by Lord and Lady Bledisloe. Representatives of all the Maori tribes and thousands of New Zealanders and Australians assembled for the ceremony.

FRANK SNYDER, RACE PILOT, AND FRIEND KILLED

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Frank Snyder, 33, widely known stunt and racing pilot, and Frank Smith, 36, an electrician, were killed late today in the crash of a light monoplane in which they had been looping.

A wing on the plane crumpled at 1,000 feet and the ship crashed in a field near the Tidewater airport, which Snyder has been managing since it opened two years ago.

Steffins Killed in Crash.

Munday, Tex., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Clarence [Tailspin] Steffins, 28, Capron, Tex., aviator, was killed today when the monoplane he was flying in an air circus fell in a spin.

HANGS HIMSELF IN KIN'S HOME ON 87TH BIRTHDAY

J. Kynaston, Retired City Inspector.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—John Kynaston, a retired inspector in the department of public works and a lifelong resident of the city, committed suicide early today on his 87th birthday. His son, Percy, discovered the body hanging by a washline fastened to a steam pipe brace in the basement of the home at 2212 North 36th street. He had been ill.

Mr. Kynaston retired as a city inspector 10 years ago. Previous to that he had been an engineer for 30 years on the Milwaukee road. For more than 20 years he had been a member of the Old Settlers' club and was the oldest member in point of service of Kilbourn lodge, No. 3, of the Masonic order.

Applies Artificial Respiration.

His son, Percy, with whom the father lived, said he last saw him alive at the dinner table at 6 p. m. yesterday. His bed had been slept in last night, indicating that the hanging occurred early today. The body was fully dressed when found.

The son noticed the rear hall light burning this morning, and while investigating found the father's body. He cut it down and applied artificial respiration. One of the grandsons called Dr. J. M. Beffel, who also worked over him for a time. Dr. Beffel pronounced him dead.

Funeral Services Tomorrow.

Besides a son, Mr. Kynaston also leaves four grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mr. Kynaston will be held Tuesday at 3:15 p. m. at the Schmidt & Bartelt, Inc., funeral establishment at 5050 West Vliet streeet. The Kilbourn lodge will have charge.

FUNERAL SERVICE TOMORROW FOR MRS. O'ROURKE

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning for Mrs. Mary Jane Chandler O'Rourke, wife of former State Representative Jeremiah J. O'Rourke. Mrs. O'Rourke, who was 70 years old, died suddenly Saturday night in her home at 45 East 155th street, Harvey.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Rourke were married in 1886 and moved to Harvey from Chicago four years later. O'Rourke was postmaster of Harvey during the Wilson administration. Mrs. O'Rourke was a friend of United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis for many years.

Surviving are Mr. O'Rourke and four children, John J. O'Rourke of Cleveland, Mrs. Frank A. Vance of Evanston, Mrs. Walter R. Hans of Birmingham, Mich., and Mrs. John W. Pauly of Chicago.

Andover Event Grips Interest of Society Folk

Headmaster Emeritus to Speak Here Feb. 16.

BY JUDITH CASS.

DR. ALFRED E. STEARNS, headmaster emeritus of Phillips Andover academy, is coming to Chicago to discuss "Common Sense in Education" at 5 o'clock the afternoon of Feb. 16 at the Casino.

This brief announcement is enough in itself to set our more intellectually inclined society folk on tiptoe, for Dr. Stearns is recognized throughout the country as one of the most interesting speakers concerned with the field of education. Add to this the fact that the woman's board of the Harris school is combining with the Chicago alumni of Andover in a committee of hosts and hostesses for the event, and the recipe for an unusually successful afternoon is complete.

The invitation to Dr. Stearns was formally issued through the Harris school woman's board, which brings stimulating lectures of national repute to Chicago from time to time. Now the board members are hoping Dr. Stearns will bring with him the new Mrs. Stearns, to whom he was married last September in Concord, N. H., after his retirement from the headmastership of Andover which he had held for 30 years.

Named Headmaster While a Young Man.

When Dr. Stearns was named headmaster in 1903, he was acclaimed throughout the country as New England's youngest principal. Thirteen years earlier he had been graduated from Andover as the most popular man and the best athlete in his class.

The hour for the meeting on the 16th—5 o'clock—has been set late enough to allow husbands time to get away from their offices, yet early enough for the hostesses who will be entertaining at dinner that evening before the Monte Carlo ballet performance in the Auditorium.

Henry Gardner, president of the Andover alumni, will introduce Dr. Stearns. The alumni assisting as hosts will be Stephen Y. Hord, Gardner Brown, Charles H. Schweppe, Robert Stevenson, Robert A. Gardner, Luther S. Hammond, I. Newton Perry, A. Ballard Bradley, William T. Bacon, and George W. Dulany Jr.

Among the members of the Harris school women's board who will assist are Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes, Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, Mrs. Howard F. Gillette, Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mrs. Wallace F. Kirk, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, and Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson.

Borlands to Be Hosts to Italy-America Group.

Three more interesting futures loom on the social horizon this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland are opening their handsome Lake View avenue apartment at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday for a "conversazione" of the Chicago branch of the Italy-America society. Miss Lucy Martin is to be the speaker and, without doubt, one of the leaders in the "conversazione" will be Mr. and Mrs. Borland's daughter, Beatrice, who is just back from a European holiday that took her to Italy for several weeks.

Tomorrow afternoon the members of the Cercle François are anticipating a delightful hour or two when they hear Mrs. Bernard J. Mullaney describe with colored slides the garden she had in Chantilly. Mrs. Mullaney has not been back in Chicago long from her long residence in France, but already glowing reports of this lovely garden have been heard by many of her friends here. It is reported that Mrs. Mullaney will repeat the talk she gives tomorrow later on in English before several important garden clubs. At the tea that will follow the program tomorrow Mrs. Lewis Bernays and Mrs. Vernon Herbst will pour.

The third future is a lecture by that interesting Englishman, Patrick Braybrooke of London, at a buffet supper of the English Speaking union at 7:30 Thursday evening in the red lacquer room of the Palmer house. Mr. Braybrooke, the author of several well known books, including critical biographies of Lord Morley and G. K. Chesterton, has enjoyed intimate acquaintances with many leading Englishmen of our time. His topic on Thursday is to be "Post-war England Speaks."

Service Club Luncheon to Be Debs' Reunion.

Debutantes and post-debs are anticipating the annual Service club luncheon today at the Casino as a major opportunity for a post-holiday reunion. The only business of the occasion will come shortly after 2 o'clock when Mrs. John Dern, the president, announces the new slate of officers for 1934.

Reservation reports made yesterday by Miss Honore White, the luncheon chairman, indicate that practically all of the club members will be present. Miss Virginia Ashcraft, Miss Marie Louise Gardner, Miss Eleanor Janney, Miss Charlotte Hubbart, Miss Roslyn Paine, and Miss Thelma Jensen will be some of the debutantes attending.

Post-debs and young matrons will be Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Marianne Stevenson, Mrs. John Irving Shaw, Mrs. Frank S. Sims, Mrs. Horton Conrad, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Stanley Saring, who was chairman of the nominating committee; Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, Miss Betty Brawley, Miss Jane Fortune, and Mrs. Leslie B. Olmsted.

The Arts club again will be crowded with luncheon guests today after the lecture that James J. Sweeney is giving at 11:30 on "Surrealisme." Arthur Heun has invited Mr. Sweeney and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, president of the club, to be among his twelve guests at luncheon. Others who have reserved tables for their guests are Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, Mrs. John Senn, Mrs. Frederick C. Bartlett Jr.,

This Picture Is Entitled "Three Good Friends"

This is not a picture of "the eternal triangle," but one of three very good friends: Miss Betty Brawley, Fred W. Fairman Jr., and Miss Martha Lee (left to right). Miss Lee and Miss Brawley have known each other since middy blouse school days, and they are to be in the wedding party of still another schoolmate, Miss Gene Bucklin, when she marries Frederic M. Hurd a week from Saturday. Mr. Fairman, a student at Yale, has "beaued" both young ladies to various country club dances in the summer time and to the debutante parties during the Christmas holidays both before and since they made their debuts two years ago. CONQUERING CONTRACT By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

SYSTEM AND ITS USES IN CONTRACT.

ONE of the principal reasons why contract bridge has gripped the imagination of the American public is that it is a continued story, and that the last word on contract will probably never be written. To play the game of contract bridge, almost every mental faculty is called on.

P. HAL SIMS.

Although I must use the word "system," I do not wish to stress it, and do not wish it to be prominent in your conception of my views on the game. By "system" we all understand something very definite and rigid, but contract does not lend itself to rigid treatment.

In the first place, it is a game in which billions of combinations of cards are possible and perhaps, in a lifetime, you will never see exactly the same hand dealt twice. In the second place, human beings and their different characteristics enter into this game just as much as do the countless combinations of cards, because the game is played not only with fifty-two cards, but also by four people.

The strong points and weaknesses of different players soon become apparent to a keen observer. For instance, I have a friend with whom I play a great deal. Should, let us say, my opponents bid four hearts against me and I bid four spades, and my opponent on the left doubles, this partner will invariably redouble, whether or not he really expects that we will make the contract, if he could have beaten the four hearts himself. In other words, there is a very human weakness here. My partner is very angry with me for not giving him a chance to double the four hearts, and so, without thinking that he is inflicting equal punishment on himself, or whether or not the hand may develop four spades, he now redoubles so that what he considers my misdeed, really not recollecting at this point that he is my partner and has to pay likewise.

The word "system" does come in, in its liberal sense, with those big hands in which you must bid with the utmost precision in order to get to the right slam [small slam or grand slam] in the correct declaration. Here you are not bidding competitively against the opponents, but attempting to bid your own hand constructively.

Your chief enemy is the deceptiveness of high cards. By "deceptiveness" I mean uncertainty whether or not the high cards that we hold can be utilized or whether they will turn out to be what is the bane of high contracts—duplications. Under these circumstances, use the word "System," and spell it with a capital S. But in the usual bidding situations, where the slam angle is not apparent, forget the word "system" and think of such terms as "cooperation," "diagnosis," and "constructive treatment" of different types of hands and of suit holdings.

Should you discuss what you will read here with any of your bridge playing friends, I hope you will not do so in such terms as "The Sims system says that you must do this with this hand." Rather say: "Sims suggests a treatment for approximately this type of hand which seems to me the one to apply at this point."

Mr. Sims will answer all inquiries on contract that are addressed to this newspaper and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Follow Adult Style in Frocks for Youngsters

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Young shoppers will agree at once with maternal shoppers, that the newest party frocks are more than grown-up in manner. The youngsters will adore the long clinging lines, the swirling hemline loaded with ruffles and the swish of the matching silk costume slips and how the cash dispersing parents will whole heartedly approve the demure high necklines, and enchanting pastel colors.

These party frocks come in cotton net, or point d'esprit in lovely shades of sky blue, pink, and yellow, made with short puffed sleeves and ruffled as has been told before, around the hem. They are unquestionably the freshest, newest party frocks that have revived a weary world in many a moon.

Charming alternatives in soft silks, with the same long sweeping silhouettes and high necklines, and circular flounces are available in powder blue, old rose, rosy pinks and one eye filling creation in scarlet.

All the gay young buds from eleven to thirteen will want any of these new numbers at first sight. The price tags will also satisfy the limits of the smallest clothes allowance.

For smaller young fashionables who are asking for bright new frocks for dark days in the schoolroom try the newest prints—bright, breezy things made with lots of dash.

Deep blue backgrounds spattered with tiny designs in red or white and green are knockouts and gay green solid colors, splashed with ivory or white and trimmed with tiny ruffled edges at cuffs and yoke fashion, some eye filling new affairs that almost surpass the charm of bright scarlet and white prints that are just about the cheeriest things that march into a schoolroom.

Geo. Gershwin Concert Stirs Big Audience

James Melton, Orchestra Participate.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It was a bit exciting to be at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon. George Gershwin, the most famous composer in America, came there with James Melton, tenor, and the Reisman Symphonic orchestra under the direction of Charles Previn, and gave a concert mostly of his own music that was about as stirring as anything that has happened this season. A large audience testified enthusiastically to the fact.

The program was presented by the Red, White, and Blue club.

Mr. Gershwin is the great melodist of the generation. He permits no dull moments. He pours out melody after melody, practically all of them of a high order, most of them done with unequaled cleverness, all of them in the spirit of today, none of them sounding as if they owed the slightest debt to any other music maker in the world.

Whether it is the Concerto in F, the "Rhapsody in Blue," his own new variations on his own "I Got Rhythm," or the pieces played by the orchestra, it is all vital, alert, nervous music, coming at high tension, presented in the brightest fashion imaginable. Mr. Gershwin himself is a brilliant pianist, the Reisman orchestra is a brilliant organization, Mr. Previn is a conductor in full knowledge of these facts and alive to all opportunities.

One may add that Mr. Melton, easy in manner, lambent of voice, projecting melodies and texts with equally assured expertness, is one of the best singers of light music, if not the best, on the stage today. His share of the program was the only one not made up of Mr. Gershwin's music. He sang a group of cowboy songs and another of Negro melodies, and made a special hit of his own.

Down Michigan avenue at Orchestra hall another large audience was displaying more warm enthusiasm at another benefit program. This was the dance recital of Ruth Page and Harald Kreutzberg under the auspices of the Emerson House association.

The dance as these two distinguished artists conceive it is something considerably more than alert agility and pretty poses. It goes into the field of pictorial art, of design, color, and light. Nothing, for instance, could seem further from conventional dancing than Miss Page's "Variations on Euclid, I. and II." Yet here were geometrical designs, angles, plane surfaces worked out into a dance that fired the imagination. And Mr. Kreutzberg's "Pieta" was a whole gallery of pictures all in the one mood of the title. These were high spots in a program that appeared to be full of high spots.

The afternoon's list of concerts began with the annual appearance of the Catholic Casino of Chicago, a male chorus of about 45, who sang with good tone and every evidence of careful rehearsal under the baton of Joseph N. Noos, who was also one of the composers of the program. The organization was assisted by Mary Gruszczynska, contralto, who sang two groups of songs.

The final program was given by the Chicago String quartet at the Chicago Woman's club theater. This group has an interesting custom of mixing new and seldom heard music with the more familiar. Wherefore, starting with one of the Schubert works, it passed to a quartet by Darius Milhaud, one of the early twentieth century dissonantists, and played it with such spirit and tone that it became uncommonly entertaining. Then taking to themselves Helene Brahm, they played a quintet named as if it might be the plural of her name, by Johannes Brahms.

Club Board Receives Plaudits of Audience.

Mrs. Thomas R. Gowenlock, president of the Red, White and Blue club and the members of her board received the plaudits of the audience during the intermission.

Mr. and Mrs. Gowenlock were host and hostess to Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, the honorary president of the Red, White, and Blue club; Col. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague and Mrs. Francis Johnson.

Society Turns Out En Masse for Concerts

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

THE modern rhythm of George Gershwin competed with the dance interpretations of Ruth Page and Harald Kreutzberg as a Sunday afternoon drawing card yesterday for Chicago's society folk. Each of the concerts brought out a major audience.

On the stage of the old Auditorium Mr. Gershwin, with the Reisman Symphonic orchestra and James Melton, soloist, played a program replete with interest from the fluid melody of "Mine" to the Olympic static of "Strike Up the Band." The Red, White and Blue club, which supports an after school home for boys at 1338 Wade street, was the sponsor and beneficiary.

On the Orchestra hall stage Miss Page [in private life Mrs. Thomas H. Fisher] and Mr. Kreutzberg were dancing for the sake of another of the city's most needed philanthropies, the Emerson Settlement house. One of a series of Sunday afternoon programs sponsored by the Emerson house board, it was, financially speaking, far the most successful of the three performances given to date.

Kenwood Social Service.

The Kenwood Social Service club will meet at 2:30 p. m. today in the home of Mrs. Broadus Clark, 5555 Everett avenue.

INVARIABLY the telegraph is considered a concomitant of a soulless machine age, which makes this story pretty enchanting. Yesterday was the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Howard Linn. Also of her friend Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins. Shortly after Mrs. Linn rang for her breakfast tray yesterday morning the telephone rang. It was a telegraph office with a message for her, and the message was signed Maud and Bob Hutchins, the Lake Forest operator said. There was a second's pause while Mrs. Linn waited for the message, then she heard three or four voices over the wire chorusing the birthday song:

Happy birthday, dear Lucy, happy birthday to you."

The voices finished the song, inquired of the delighted recipient if she had got the message, then rang off.

Greeting—Old Man—New Models.

THE last half of the story printed the other day about the old man, to add to our recent collection of old man types, was mysteriously missing in the paper. It concerned the old man, well past 60, lame and pitiful looking, who has a job answering the telephone at an "L" station taxicab stand. A woman waiting in the station, who was feeling sorry for the old fellow and glad he had a job, at least, heard him pick up the telephone, call a Briargate number, and say:

"I want supper at 5:30 tonight. Have a gingerale highball, crabmeat cocktail, a steak covered with onions—covered, not smothered; hashed brown potatoes, combination salad, and pie. I want coffee and beer. And have it on time, because I'm going out to a prize fight after supper."

He disconnected, and a woman in the station commented:

"If my husband talked to me like that he'd have a prize fight on his hands right at home."

Then came the big surprise.

"That wasn't my wife, that was my best girl," said the old man.

* *

IRENE SMALL, the girl who told the story about the old man at the taxicab stand and was pretty annoyed because the story was left hanging in midair, also tells about the lady in the squirrel coat who amused herself during a half-hour train ride by drawing a face on the frost covered window. She drew the conventional two dot eyes, one dot nose, smiling mouth, and curly hair that is all we amateurs dare attempt [my own specialty is a profile of a dog sitting up].

Completely absorbed, she was unaware of the smiling glances that followed her artistic labors. Finally, after the lady on the window pane was finished, she added a long, walrus mustache.

THE new models of cars are causing a lot of discussion, and the other day one man summed up his opinion by saying:

"Well, they are sort of like the kind of woman you like to look at in a night club but hesitate to marry."

"But a lot of men wouldn't mind having their wives better looking than they are," retorted his companion.

He was Byron C. Foy, motor company executive, and the remark wasn't personal, as Mrs. Foy, who is the daughter of Walter P. Chrysler, is slim, chic, and attractive.

Slaying of Lincoln Will Be Re-enacted as Birthday Event

Lincoln's assassination, complete in historic detail as it occurred in the Ford theater in Washington, April 14, 1865, will be reënacted in a play to be presented in observance of the 125th birthday anniversary of Lincoln at the Cube Experimental Art theater, 218 South Wabash avenue. The opening will be next Saturday and Sunday and the play will be repeated the following two Saturdays and Sundays. "Our American Cousin" will be presented, the tragedy being reënacted at the historic moment. An inter-racial chorus will sing spirituals of the times. John G. Rivenburgh, president of the Junior City club, is in charge of the play.

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce. Barbara invites him to a small dinner party and introduces him to her father as a casual acquaintance. Her father leads him into a discussion of modern youth.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

THE OLD ORDER AND THE NEW.

"And now, Mr. Rance, what is the constructive program?" said Brawne.

"I foresaw that question," Rance laughed, in a way that showed the lawyer he had not altogether been the dupe of his affability. "Generally speaking, I can do no better than to agree with Bryce, 'No compromise.' We are realists. No more illusions. We want to know what we really think. We want to know the reasons of our actions. Yes, that is it. We may seem at times destructive, but what are we really fighting for? The freedom of the mind. We believe that is to be our contribution to the twentieth century. After the liberty of the conscience, what a glorious thing to fight for! To strip the mind of old fears and prejudices, of inhibitions and intolerances, and make it at last capable of clear thinking!"

The younger generation rapped on the table enthusiastically, but Mr. Brawne said acidly:

"In a word, the individual only is important. To extend his liberties you are going to diminish his responsibilities and the sacrifices he has hitherto been called on to make as a member of organized society."

Rance thought a moment and then nodded. "Not entirely that. But today when scientific industrialism is standardizing everything into mass efforts our fight certainly is the fight for individualism."

"Even if to complete that liberty you destroy the institution of marriage?"

"Well, here we go," thought Rance, avoiding the warning look in Barbara's eyes. "I'll be damned if I'm going to say anything I don't believe."

"Do you feel I am subjecting you to the third degree?" said Brawne, turning to Rance.

"She defends him. He is the one," said Brawne to himself instantly.

The aunts, who had overstayed their hour, retired. The rest of the party went into the sitting room.

"Do you feel that I am subjecting you to the third degree?" said Brawne, turning to Rance with a false appearance of casualness.

"You are certainly thorough." He looked him in the eye with a smile. "But I have no objections at any place or time to saying what I think."

"We were talking of marriage?"

"Father, father! Really, this may interest you, but I assure you——"

"On the contrary, Barbara," said Rance, unthinkingly, "I have not the slightest reluctance to say what I believe."

"He calls her Barbara already," flashed through Mr. Brawne's mind as he shot a glance at his daughter.

But the rest, unaware of the secret reactions below the surface, demanded that the discussion go on.

"Do we believe in marriage? Yes, as a theory. No, in the usual practice."

"Isn't that an evasion?"

"O, no," said Rance, beginning to be irritated. "Most of our trouble today is in the tyranny of names. We refuse to be frightened by names."

"Hear, hear!" said Bryce.

"We attack the form of marriage when it is simply a mutual tyranny and a mutual hypocrisy. We don't want a union that gives one person the right to own another, or any compulsion to continue that union beyond the time when it has ceased to be natural, spontaneous, and mutually necessary. As to what the future will bring I don't know. Women certainly will decide. If children are entirely brought up outside the home I believe they will make marriage for a term of years."

"Pretty strong, Mr. Rance," said Mr. Brawne, looking down to conceal his satisfaction.

"That is the order of the day. The individual is in revolt against the bogey of sacrifice. As conditions which make the family necessary are changing, so the bonds between parents and children are becoming looser. If the idea of the family goes, the terms of marriage will change with it. Surely you see that."

"Never!" Mr. Brawne exclaimed, bringing his fist down on the table.

Barbara had understood all her father's maneuvers. She felt a weak depression, and yet at the same time she could not help but respect the way Rance had answered without equivocation. She had tried to influence him, had failed, and felt his value as never before.

"You young men," said her father, "are obsessed by one idea—liberty. It crops out in everything you say or do. Liberty of action, liberty of the mind, always more and more liberty. Sacrifice is abhorent to you. Well, I have another word for this thing you call sacrifice. I prefer to call it loyalties."

"To achieve your program you are going to destroy all the loyalties that have compensated us for the hardships and disappointments of life, that have made it possible for us to perform beyond our strength."

"Our loyalties are the best that is given to us. Loyalty to our country, loyalty to our friends, to the code of our fathers, to the name we bear, to the contract of marriage which we have entered into in our youth. To the children for whose futures we must provide. Loyalty to the fine things we have had handed down to us, to safeguard and pass on. Do you wish to call these illusions and sweep them away?"

"No," said Rance. "Not all."

"Some are debatable," thought Bryce, but he remained silent.

Barbara looked at her father in surprise. Never before had she heard him exhibit so much feeling. She had feared his ridicule; she felt a certain pride in the self-control he had shown. She looked at Rance, wondering how he had been affected. Rance, as he had listened, had felt a touch of compassion.

"A man from another century," he had thought. "All his world has been shattered about him, and he still goes on denying the obvious, still carrying his candle through a world of electricity. Ancestor worship, and yet rather pathetic. He is pathetic, and I am going to hurt him horribly!"

"Is this what you call progress, Mr. Rance?"

"We are dealing with new industrial forces."

"We are dealing with a lot of egoists playing with new mechanical toys," said Brawne firmly, "and you'll tire of toys as all children do. Then another generation will return the world to its old landmarks. Everything will be re-established as it was."

"Not back to the old family life?"

"Absolutely."

"With the mother as the head, then? Some sort of matriarchy?"

"With the mother where she used to belong before women became dissatisfied with being women and tried to be men-women."

"Well," said Evangeline Chiswick, rising at a desperate signal from Barbara, "I'll concede this, Uncle Martin. My children will be brought up much stricter than we were."

They went out laughing, glad for the excuse to end on a light note.

Additions to Family Often Disturb Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

For today's letter I thought the following of definite interest:

"Dear Madam: I have read you columns from time to time and find them both common sensible and helpful. So I am writing in the hope that you may help me.

"I have a boy 4 years of age and a baby 18 months old. He is a gentle child, but I'd like to make him more rough and ready. Yesterday a friend said I'd have to get him out with boys and that sort of annoyed me. He is only a baby and I think he will outgrow his trying to be cute ways. He always was quiet and lately since the baby's coming I think he tries to act babyish because he is jealous of her.

"I don't think that would have caused the trouble, either, but just after the baby's birth I took into my home two motherless nephews. This gives both the younger and older problem for my 4 year old son to face. The baby gets the cuddles that he likes and wants, and the ten year old gets privileges that he wants and is too small to be allowed to have—such as school, skates, and so forth.

"What worries me most is the fact that he is becoming morbid. He broods a lot and cries at the least word. I can't say anything to him at all and he won't put his toys away.

"Perhaps if you could send me your booklets on patience, obedience, and toys for his age, also any other that you would recommend, it would help me."

A sudden change in the size of his family is hard on a young child. Just a new baby is enough of a revolution, especially if the first child has not been prepared for its advent nor been allowed to share in its coming. But when you add to this the sudden introduction of two older children, the situation requires a really great readjustment on the child's part.

It is a fine, warmhearted thing for a woman to do to take two other children into her home—but it complicates the family situation. In this case the four year old needs the most consideration of any one. I think this mother realizes it. She must avoid scolding; she must take time to show interest in what her small son is doing; she must contrive to make him feel secure in her affections and in his place in the family circle.

The mother who is dealing with many personalities will find helpful our new written-in-full booklet, "IS TACT IN YOUR BAG OF TRICKS?" It will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Heart Shaped Parties for Valentine's Day," a booklet containing menus and recipes for early February parties, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 2 cents. By mail, 3 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Clams have a most enviable reputation for being able to keep their mouths shut—that is, unless things grow too hot for them. Which, I suspect, accounts for the fact that, sadly, too few meal assemblers even yet know that inside those smug clam shells lie tidbits of flavor and the makings of concoctions fit verily for divine consumption.

For, if these same closed mouthed clams could talk it would be about how tantalizing they are, in chowder, with tomatoes and corn; cool and serene on their half shells; devilled and served brilliantly hot with a crusty topping of toasted crumbs, or offered up in those amazingly mysterious things, clam fritters. They would also explain how they like themselves steamed, or roasted, and served up with lemon and parsley butter; also minced with this and that other nippy ingredient and served on toast.

But before the eating comes the getting and, since most of us buy sea foods not so often as we might, a few tips on shopping for these most interesting of animals are in order. In the main there are three principal varieties of clams in this country. The soft shelled, elliptical fellows come from the New England coast. The round, hard shelled clams arrive from the North Atlantic coast. The razor, on the other hand, hails from the North Pacific. Under these divisions are many sorts and kinds which I won't worry your heads to learn. The Quahaug, however, is a clam of the soft shelled brotherhood which is called a "little neck." It's superior in flavor, shape, and color.

If shell fish aren't bought frequently at your house I suggest that, in choosing yours, you find yourself a reliable fish dealer and leave the job of selection up to him. If you buy clams with closed shells you're purchasing live clams. If they are out of the shell they have been killed. These last sell by count or by the pint, in their own juices. The former sell by count and by volume.

What's more, it's often possible to have the fish salesman cut open the clams with a very strong knife, leaving you simply the job of removing the top cover and broiling or otherwise preparing the clam body. If the clams are to be steamed at home, this will take care of the opening job, since heat kills the clam, releasing the strong muscle which normally controls the shells.

So now a lesson in steaming. Allow 6 clams for a serving. The soft shelled laddies are the best steamers. Scrub them vigorously with a brush in order to clean away all sand. Wash carefully under running water. Place them all together in a large kettle with a close lid, and add about 2 tablespoons of water per quart of clams. Cover and simmer over very low heat for about 20 minutes, or until the shells open. Lift out the clams [a large slotted spoon is the smartest lifter], and place 6 clams in each large flat soup platter. Now drain the clam broth in the kettle into wee glasses for each person. Also serve a small dish of melted butter, dashed with a bit of lemon juice, with each set of clams. Knowing clam eaters will, at the proper moment, open their clams at the table, dip them first in the broth and then in the melted butter. After you thus properly christen them they will welcome them in.

CREAMED CLAMS.

These begin as did the steamed clams. Use 3 dozen soft clams and, when the shells are opened, angle out the clams, cutting off the necks, and placing the bodies in a pan with 2 teaspoons of butter and ¾ cup of sherry wine. When they reach a boil add one egg yolk, beaten together with one cup of rich milk and salt and pepper to taste. Add a little minced parsley. Now simmer this slowly until thickened, stirring, and pour at once onto buttered or fried toast.

An appealing snap is given to clams by steaming them, then serving with melted butter, to which curry powder has been added. Serve with rice.

FLAT CLAM CAKES.

For these chop coarsely 2 cups of cooked clams. Sift together 2-3 cup flour, a dash each of paprika, celery salt, and ½ teaspoon of baking powder. Beat in ¼ cup of milk and 1 egg, working out the lumps. Add the clams and drop by spoonfuls into a frying pan containing a small amount of hot bacon fat. Brown on both sides and serve with catsup.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Satiny Skin

Portrait of a lady who has just bathed luxuriously, with all the fascinating new bath trimmings, from oils to creams, that preserve that satiny skin.

Because it's still pretty chilly around these parts, the dry skin troubles, if we can believe what a lot of women tell us, are simply running rampant. Even the oily skinned sisters are voicing protests against the cold winds, steam heated apartments, and chlorinated water—a Chicago combination that doesn't do too well by any type of skin.

The after-the-bath ills seem to head the list of complaints. No matter how bland the soap, how softened the water, some women just can't overcome the itchy sensation that follows their daily scrubbings. It's for them we went shopping in Chicago — and we've found some things we think are pretty swell.

One thing this beauty doctor would suggest for after-the-bath ailments is a lotion, a thick, creamy one that is used on the damp body immediately after your bath. Rub it in and then finish drying. You'll have disposed of that itchy feeling—or we'll eat these words. It's economically "spready" (although it couldn't by any stretch of the imagination be called expensive in the first place) and you use only a small bit on your fingers. Enough is absorbed to oil the skin, and oil it well, but there's no oily feeling to the touch afterwards. And in those extreme cases where soap and water simply can't be tolerated by a sensitive skin this same lotion does double duty—cleanser and emollient in one. Pretty slick, isn't it?

We're torn between that clever lotion and something else producing a similar effect, a cream that is applied all over the body before bathing. It scents and softens the skin and counteracts the havoc wrecking effect of soap and water and scrubbing on skins that are given to being troublesome after bathing. It's rich in texture, delightful of odor—and plenty effective.

Work Now for the Lean Lines for Next Spring

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One of the better fashion magazines says in speaking of the wind-swept vogue, that "the silhouette in profile will have the wind-swept, fleet lines of a speed boat or an airplane."

It's going to be a period of wind and speed, and the lean lines that buffet them best. I have a hunch that poor Mae West is going to be wind-swept into oblivion, if she ever did popularize curves. The plain truth is that curves and our times simply do not synchronize. Besides, a woman once having known the thrill of disposing of ten, fifteen or twenty pounds of unneeded weight, isn't going to be a willing convert to a slowing up "cushion frame." I'm talking from my mail bag testimony which, more than ever, is discontented with the hefty hip, thigh, waist or ankle. Reducing goes on as merry a business as ever, if not more so, now that the streamline cars are begging for streamline girls to occupy them.

There's the psychology of the lady on a shopping tour, too, to be taken into account, in connection with the padded figure. Ask any woman if there is anything on this earth so downright discouraging and blues promoting as finding she can't get into the 18 or 20 size of yesteryear. And, while you're asking, ask her if there is any joy akin to finding that she can get into a 16 or an 18 in place of yesteryear's stylish stouts?

I'm haranguing you a bit on the silhouette, right now, because you have ample time to get it down for a good spring showing, to say nothing of the oncoming summer's beach appearace.

Take time about it. This is the improved way of tackling an old job. You don't starve yourself into line any more. You don't go on freak diets. You do some dieting, it's true, if you're much overweight, but if you know your better 1934 reducing rules, you make exercise do a lot for you, so that, once down, you can stay that way and look the rejuvenated creature you hoped. Exercise will do that for you as dieting never will. So get to work on the silhouette now, my sisters, for wind-swept speed, motion, and gorgeous line.

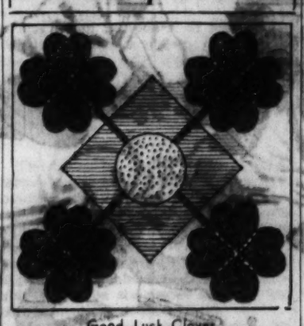
Quilt Derives Its Inspiration from Old Superstition



Good Luck Clover.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Ancient superstition has done much to make this quilt popular, but one look at the design and the block assures its popularity on its own. For those seeking fame and fortune, according to superstition, one must sleep under a good luck clover coverlet. Orange and green, supposedly mystic colors, were used to excellent advantage in the original block.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

Sisters Should Share Right to Have Beaux in Family Living Room

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Bee has a beau, but no place in which to entertain him. Her sister monopolizes the one and only living room where beaux may be entertained. Bee goes to the theater with her beau and would like to ask him in for a while after the show. But sister feels she has the right of way, since she and her beau have been going together longer. And she makes Bee know that she and her budding romance must do their adieu-ing elsewhere.

It seems to be a case for a family conference. Ma and Pa will have to be urged in to help decide about how evenings shall be divided for entertainment, if compromise cannot be otherwise effected.

There are times when young folk must long for the big old house with several parlors, stray nooks and corners where they might have a little privacy and be free to entertain in the home at any time. But that is out of the question with the beehive apartment dweller, and compromise must come about some other way.

Is such privacy necessary that a second sister and her beau seem to be intruders? Why couldn't they join in the aftertheater sandwich and coffee and make a more gala occasion?

Oh, fashioned we are, no doubt, but this desire for privacy hints that there are goings-on that an outsider were better not to clap on. Necking and petting, we suppose.

It's not a bad idea for couples to get the habit of letting a second couple in on their leisure hours.

Society Turns Out En Masse for Concerts

and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. John Andrews King, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed.

Celebrities of Stage Scattered in Audience.

There were several stage celebrities scattered through the audience. The Lovel Davises had with them their friend, Miss Natalie Moorhead, and the Ernest Byfields were entertaining Phil Baker and Jerry Norcott. Much to Mr. and Mrs. Byfield's disappointment, Lily Pons was suffering from a cold which prevented her coming as their guest to the concert.

Others in the Davis party were Mrs. George Rasmussen, Dr. John F. Delph, and Michael Boisen. During the intermission this party joined Consul General and Mrs. Lewis Bernays, who were with Dr. Titus Zbyszewski, the Polish consul general; Mrs. Higersberger, and Prof. Jerzy Bojanowski.

The younger generation was well represented by Miss Helen Dawes, escorted by John Trainor, Durand Smith, Miss Barbara Graf with a good looking beau, Miss Susie Morris with Miss Barbara Eldridge, the John Hurleys, and Miss Jean Wilhelm, escorted by Seymour Morris.

And still others among the grown-ups were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Temple McFayden, Miss Harriet McLaughlin with Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and J. Newton Perry, and Miss Helen Gurley, and the Arthur Meekers.

SCURRY TO DANCE CONCERT

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

"We must be there on time," was society's one desire regarding the dance recital of Ruth Page and Harald Kreutzberg yesterday afternoon at Orchestra hall. On time society was, for just as the warning bells were ringing Mrs. Byron S. Harvey and her guests were rushing for their seats, and all through the upper floor and the main lobby patrons were scurrying for their seats.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler were well ahead of time, for Mrs. Sudler wanted the thrill of seeing the crowds fill the hall, thereby indirectly filling the exchequer of the Emerson Settlement house. Mrs. Sudler is president of the Emerson house board.

Among Mrs. Harvey's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, the Howard Linns, Seymour Blair, the Philip Mahers, Mr. and Mrs. Farwell Winston, Thomas Fisher [the proud husband of the danseuse], and Mrs. Henderson Evans of Santa Fe, for whom the Harveys were entertaining.

Miss Lydia Sabin, Miss Laura Thorne, Miss Brownie Bess Baum, Byron Elting, Michael Cudahy, and Mason B. Wells were seated in a box. In another box Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby G. Walling were host and hostess to their son, English Walling, and Miss Helen Bell, and the Robert Clarks. Near them were the Count and Countess Visconti, Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, Fred Poole, Miss Narcissa Swift, and Vittorio Liebman, and farther along in another box were Mrs. Harold C. Smith and her daughter, Miss Anne Smith, and Mrs. Howard W. Fenton and her daughter, Miss Honore White.

Seen strolling about in the foyer during the intermission were Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams; Mrs. John J. Shaw; the Winston Eltings; Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson and her son, Stirling Dickinson; the E. Turner Biddles, who shared a box with the Edward D. McGraws and Miss Margaret Hamill and Towner Webster; Miss Frances Weary; the John Valentines; Miss Jane Valentine, with her mother, Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, and Benjamin Crawford and Dana Stone, among scores of others.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt have a week-end family party at the White House, including their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt of Boston and the President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt. Mrs. Alsop of New York joined the party this morning, coming up from her winter home in Georgia.

Mrs. Roosevelt returned late yesterday with Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. from their motor trip to Williamsburg, stopping unannounced at various points in Virginia.

Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings entertained a company at dinner tonight in their suburban home, Ruthven, in compliment to their house guests, Mrs. Bartow S. Weeks and John J. Murphy of New York. Covers were laid for twelve.

Mrs. Swanson, wife of the secretary of the navy, was the guest of honor at the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Ollie James, widow of the former senator from Kentucky. The party was given at the Carlton and covers were laid for forty.

JANE LEARNS SECRET OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

-AND JANE YOUR HAIR LOOKED LOVELY LAST NIGHT-SO FULL OF LIFE AND LUSTRE. WHAT'S THE SECRET?
DARLING IT'S NO SECRET I'M USING GERAL THE ORIGINAL MAKE-UP FOR THE HAIR IT'S AWFULLY EASY TO USE.

How dull, lifeless hair blooms with life and lustre this way

Good bye dull, faded looking hair forever! That's what thousands of women are saying, thanks to Geral—the original make-up for the hair. Geral is not a dye, bleach or henna—nor does it contain oil. Applied in a moment, Geral beautifies the hair as rouge, powder and lipstick beautify the face. No matter what the color of your hair—blonde, auburn, brown, brunette or gray—no matter how lifeless and drab, Geral will impart NOT an artificial look but the natural life, sheen and softness of youthful girlhood. Obtain Geral at all good toilet counters and drug stores.

At 11 o'clock this morning the little buffet luncheon room of the Cradle in Evanston will be crowded with women for the Tiffin musical, a series that the society is resuming for the rest of the winter. These musical mornings and luncheons were so popular last year that the Cradle has decided they are the best possible benefit. Bruno Steindel, cellist, and Doris Wittich, pianist, will give the program.

Girl Scout Board to Bring Minneapolis Symphony.

When the members of the Girl Scout board and their host of friends go to the Auditorium tonight to hear the lovely Lily Pons give a concert of her favorite numbers, they won't feel that it is the farewell of this popular concert series, for an extra treat has been added in the form of a concert the night of Feb. 14 by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

The regular Monday subscribers are to hear the concert without extra charge.

The Arthur Farwells—Mrs. Farwell is Chicago's Girl Scout commissioner—will not be back from a week-end trip in time for tonight's concert, so they have given their center box to the Fairbank Carpenters. Mark Kemper and his bride will be host and hostess in the James Kempers' box. Still others who will entertain tonight are the Richard Bentleys and the William S. Monroes.

From Nashville, Tenn., comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Frances Carolyn Jones, daughter of Mrs. J. Vaulx Cowan, to Henry White Boyd Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry White Boyd of Prospect avenue, Highland Park. Mr. Boyd prepared at Lake Forest academy and was graduated from Cornell.

Dorothy Louise Welch to Be Bride Feb. 23.

Miss Dorothy Louise Welch, daughter of the Harvey Dale Welches of Evanston, has chosen Friday, Feb. 23, as the day she will marry Minier Sargent, son of the Fred W. Sargents, also of Evanston. The ceremony will be read at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston by the Rev. Ernest Fremont Tittle, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Welch will have Mrs. John Meyers Tittle for her matron of honor, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Fredericka Sargent, a sister of the groom, who is coming home from Sarah Lawrence college for the occasion; Miss Adalyn Welch, her sister; Miss Jane Black, and Miss Barbara Keye.

Haskell Sargent will serve as his brother's best man, and ushering will be John Tittle, Gerald Van Doren, Robert Lindsay Scott Jr., and John Harder of Evanston, Mich.

Union League Club to Exhibit Paintings; 2 Other Art Shows

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Three new exhibitions give color to this week. The Union League club is putting some one hundred paintings from its collection on view tonight and tomorrow night.

Both evenings Percy Eckhart will conduct a tour through the main gallery at 6:45 o'clock and at 8 o'clock Eugenio Orozkat will lecture.

The club owns a collection of paintings valued at a quarter of a million dollars. It began its collection in 1879 and William French, at that time director of the Art institute, led it in several of its important selections.

Among the most of its pictures are an Inness valued at $50,000, three historical portraits by George Healy, Henry Ranger's "The Pool at Hawk's Nest," "Trees in Blossom" by Claude Monet, and a Gilbert Stuart portrait of George Washington.

An exhibition of portraits and figure paintings by Ingeborg Christensen and recent dune landscapes by Frank V. Dudley opens tomorrow in the Chicago Galleries' association gallery, 220 North Michigan avenue. This is an attractive show.

Miss Christensen paints with a rare charm. Her portraits and studies are sensitive in character and delightful in color. They are poetic and picturesque.

Frank V. Dudley gives in his group many characteristic paintings of sand, shadows, water, and sky. He has read a wealth of picture treasure into the changing values of the dunes that lie along Lake Michigan and from this source he still takes each season a rich harvest of varied pictures.

The third new exhibit is that of water colors and pencil drawings by Anne Just in the Rosenberg-Rockenbridge gallery, 812 North Michigan avenue. It is a charming little exhibit, to be noted for the sensitive and assured quality in several, at least, of the two

This Film Tale Spins Along in Pleasing Way

"JIMMY AND SALLY."
Produced by Fox.
Directed by James Tinling.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

Jimmy	James Dunn
Sally	Claire Trevor
Ralph Andrews	Harvey Stephens

Mary	Alma Lloyd
Joe	John Arledge

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

An acceptable little program number, this—nothing to get excited about, but just a nice, simple mixture to sandwich between the hours of a busy day.

Jimmy and Sally are two of the world's workers—and very much in love. Both are employed in the publicity department of a meat packing company. Jimmy's a nice kid, but his head is swelled and his ideas sensational and impracticable. Sally's pretty noodle stays in good systematic working order and she's a farsighted damsel.

She thinks they should marry so that she can help her man. Her man doesn't want wedlock until he doesn't NEED any help. . . . Impasse.

So—Jimmy goes booming and blurring on his way and cracks up against the big stone wall of Things as They Are. . . . Sally loses sight of him. . . .

In the School of Hard Knocks Jimmy gets the wind taken out of his sails, and in due time starts tacking on the right course. [Nautically correct or naut nautically correct, you get the idea.]

The picture spins along with plenty doing from start to finish.

Claire Trevor is a find. Clever and immensely likable. You will remember her as the hard boiled reporter in "The Mad Game." James Dunn is pretty hard to take in the first scenes, but you like him toward the last. Other players do well enough and the director manipulated the unoriginal story material as neatly as could be expected.

See you tomorrow!

Touchdown—Hewitt.

Substitutions: Bears—Battles for Grange, Nagurski for Manders, Kawal for Miller, Corbett for Brumbaugh, Richards for Lyman, Franklin for Karr.

All-Stars—Schutte for Hein, Neil for Musick, Steponovich for Ebding, Apsit for Pinckert, Hibbs for Edwards.

Referee—Jack Mashin [Montana], Umpire—Junior Todd [Wisconsin]. Head linesman—Hobbs Adams [U. S. C.]. Field judge—Walter Herreid [Washington State].

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The Chicago Bears, National Professional Football champions, encountered the stiffest opposition of their coast tour today in a game in which they defeated Ernie Pinckert's All-Stars, 7 to 0, before a disappointing crowd of 3,500. It was the Chicagoans' fourth consecutive triumph in California.

BILL HEWITT.

Held in check for the first three periods, the Bears finally got their pass attack working long enough, late in the final period, to score. Bill Hewitt, driving end from Michigan, scored the touchdown, going over from the 8 yard line with a lateral pass from Bill Karr, right end, who had received a 17 yard pass from Cliff Battles, left half back. Jack Manders place kicked the extra point.

Movies Slow Up Bears.

The Bears had threatened continually, but found their usual battering running game and deceptive aerial attack unavailing in critical moments. They were on the offensive throughout the game, but the All-Stars, made up of a number of Pinckert's former teammates at the University of Southern California and a small group of Professional league stars, offered surprising resistance all the way.

The Bears had been unable to practice all week while engaged in making movie shorts in Hollywood and their game suffered accordingly. Manders, full back formerly at Minnesota, twice attempted place kicks, but each time the ball went wide of the uprights. His first attempt was made in the first quarter from the 36 yard line and the second in the final period from the 24 yard line.

The Bears consistently outgained the All-Stars, making 11 first downs to five. Time was taken out only twice and then for minor injuries to All-Star players.

Bears Get Break.

The Chicagoans opened the game by starting right down the field but were halted just past midfield. Ronzani punted short and Presnell brought the ball back to the Bears' 31 yard line.

A break then saved the Bears some embarrassment when Ernie Caddell, formerly of Stanford, fumbled, and Lyman recovered on the 40 yard line. Forward passes and line plays carried the ball to the All-Stars' 22 yard line. This drive ended in Manders' unsuccessful field goal.

The rest of the first period and the second saw play largely near the middle of the field because of frequent pass interceptions.

The Bears began threatening early in the third period when Bronko Nagurski replaced Manders, but Jean Neil, a full back for the West Coast Marines last year, intercepted a pass and ran back 25 yards almost to midfield to halt the advance.

In the final period the Bears were always in scoring territory, but were able to drive across only on the Battles-Karr-Hewitt pass.

Stars Make Stand.

The All-Stars made one goal line stand following the touchdown after the Bears had taken the ball on the 11 yard line where Richards blocked Caddell's fourth down punt. Four plays lacked a half yard of a first down and the Bears surrendered the ball on the two yard line. Caddell punted out of bounds on his own 36 yard line and the Bears were heading toward the goal again as the game ended.

Corbett Returns to Ring Against Marino Tonight

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—After an absence of eight months from the ring, Young Corbett of Fresno, Cal., former welterweight champion, will step into the middleweight class in a ten round comeback battle with Babe Marino of San Francisco here tomorrow night. He is a 3 to 1 favorite.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The desperate Boston Bruins, who have been fighting through one of their most unhappy seasons, last night left an unpleasant memory of their farewell Chicago visit by defeating the Blackhawks, 2 to 1, in overtime, at the Stadium. They accomplished their triumph in the presence of 17,000, the largest Hawk attendance of the season.

EDDIE SHORE.

The main reason for this record gathering was a stocky party bearing the numeral "2" on his jersey. He was Eddie Shore, who hadn't been seen in these parts since Nov. 26, shortly after which he was suspended in the Ace Bailey case.

Hawk fans proved a sporting instinct unsurpassed in any town in the league when they cheered Shore to the echo on his entrance, even unto the cowbell ringers on the upper shelf, who are not in the habit of giving Edward a hand.

Hawks Drop to Third.

He obliged them by playing his usual rugged game, and they refrained from booing him until the middle of the third period. Then his stick caught Doc Romnes' features accidentally. No penalty followed, but the patrons were in an uproar about the matter.

The defeat was the Blackhawks' second of the season at the Stadium, only Toronto having been able to beat them previously, on New Year's night. It was an expensive setback for it dropped the Chicagoans to third place in the United States division, a point back of the Detroit Red Wings, who wiped Toronto last night, and two points behind the division leading New York Rangers.

Last night's 70 minutes of hocky were as savage as any in the history of the bitter Hawk-Bruin rivalry, but surprisingly enough were distinguished by only four penalties. The customers were quite wrought up about this paucity of punishment and informed Referees Mallinson and Goodman of same at several intervals. The officials' piccolo duet in the matter of blue line rulings also was highly displeasing to the upstairs people and they showered assorted missiles on the pair during the second period when Mush March was deported for tripping Frank Jerwa.

Romnes Puts Hawks Ahead.

The Romnes-Thompson-March line, the value of which is just becoming appreciated, collaborated on the first goal of the evening to put the Hawks ahead, 1 to 0. March and Thompson swept in on Paul's brother, Tiny, the Boston doorman, and the latter made a great stop, but lost the puck in so doing and while he was still searching frantically, Romnes dashed up and boosted it over his recumbent form in 10:50.

The Bruins came back with even more determination in the second period and were rewarded with the tying goal after eight minutes. Neis Stewart hammered the puck home from out of the confusion before the Hawk cage. Red Beattie and Joe Lamb were credited with assists.

And Then, Bad News.

The extra period, the closing minutes of which were the most hair raising of the game, began calmly enough. There was little excitement until Dave O'Neill of Boston started the winning goal. He darted down the right boards, eluded the Hawks and then shot the puck across to Dit Clapper, who promptly fired it by the unprotected Gardiner. The time was 6:15.

CROSLEY, RADIO MAGNATE, BUYS CONTROL IN REDS

Accepts Club Presidency; Lauds MacPhail.

Cincinnatit, O., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—L. S. [Larry] MacPhail, vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, today announced that Powel Crosley Jr., millionaire radio and refrigerator manufacturer, had accepted the presidency of the club.

Financial Backing Necessary.

"The condition of the Cincinnati club necessitated a thorough financial reorganization to provide additional working capital. I believe it was essential that the Reds be owned and controled by Cincinnatians.

"Mr. Crosley was convinced that the Reds perform a definite civic service for the city of Cincinnati and on this account has agreed to make an investment in and accept the presidency of the club.

"The reorganization will make it possible for the Reds to function as an aggressive member of the National league. I am happy with the set up and with our prospects."

Crosley Lauds MacPhail.

In a conversation over the long distance telephone from Sarasota, Fla., today Crosley admitted: "I had been approached before about taking over the Cincinnati club, but I was never interested until Mr. MacPhail came into the picture. He has built an efficient organization and has strengthened the club's playing strength in a hurry. I am sure we can make a success of the venture."

An active sportsman himself, Crosley, 47 years old, stands 6 feet 3 inches tall and pitched for the University of Cincinnati baseball team in his undergraduate days. He also played end and tackle on the football team. He has continued to be active in sports and has followed the Cincinnati team's weary struggle in the National league for years.

Builds Up Club.

Though this reorganization came as a surprise, its announcement was not as amazing as the rapidity with which it was completed. Exactly 90 days ago tomorrow MacPhail accepted the position as vice president and general manager of the club. He said then that his two problems were to strengthen the playing and financial assets of the club.

He made five major moves: Traded Pitcher Red Lucas and Outfielder Wally Roettger to Pittsburgh for Outfielder Adam Comorosky and Infielder Tony Piet; sent Secondbaseman George Grantham to New York for Pitcher Glenn Spencer, and then sent Spencer to St. Louis for Catcher Bob O'Farrell, who will manage the club, and Pitcher Sylvester Johnson, who is one of the best relief hurlers in the game; traded Irvine Jeffries and Otto Bluege for Shortstop Mark Koenig; purchased Gordon Slade from St. Louis to strengthen the infield; and secured Burt Shotten, former Phillies' manager, to coach the team.

40 HOCKY TICKET SCALPERS TAKEN OUTSIDE STADIUM

Forty ticket scalpers were arrested last night by a special detail of police headed by Lieut. Tom O'Hare outside the Chicago Stadium, just before the start of the Chicago Blackhawk-Boston Bruin hocky game. Several patrol wagons were required to take the men to the Warren avenue station.

In groups of four and five the scalpers were taken to the Stadium basement where the tickets were taken away. Police and William Tobin, business manager of the Blackhawks, held the men for several hours in the Stadium before they were transported to the police station.

U. S. Olympic Group Silent on German Bid

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The American Olympic committee today avoided an immediate showdown on acceptance or rejection of the German invitation to the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin by referring the formal bid from the German organizing committee to its executive committee with power to act.

The action postpones, at least for a few weeks, the question of whether the committee will take any further steps to back up its previously expressed protest against alleged German discrimination against athletes of Jewish blood.

Brundage Is Chairman.

The formation of an executive committee had been approved only a few hours before as the committee met to lay preliminary plans for the 1936 games. Avery Brundage, chairman of the committee, said it would be at least two weeks before he could even appoint its members and that it probably would be six weeks or more before a meeting would be held.

While postponing decision on whether an American team actually will participate in the games the committee went ahead with its organization, approved the chairmen elected by its games committees and discussed plans for raising funds with which to send a team to Berlin.

Committees to Raise Funds.

Each games committee for this Olympiad will be entrusted with the responsibility for raising the necessary expense money for its athletes under the guidance of a general finance committee. The committee went on record as being opposed to the use of paid solicitors or organizers in raising this fund.

Several of the games committees reported they had not organized as yet, but the following did perfect organizations yesterday and reported the following chairmen elected:

Men's swimming—Fred Luehring, Swarthmore, Pa. [temporary].
Women's swimming—Herbert D. Holm, Chicago.
Rowing—William J. Moynihan, Berkeley [temporary].
Boxing—William F. Kenney, Boston.
Wrestling—Paul A. Spitler, New York.
Gymnastics—Roy E. Moore, New York.
Weight lifting—Dietrich Wortmann, New York.
Ice hocky—Joseph Bulkley, New York.
Equestrian—Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry.
Soccer—J. J. J. Barriskill, New York.
Bosledding—Jay O'Brien, New York.
Field hocky—Henry Kirk Greer, New York.
Fencing—F. Barnard O'Connor, New York.

200 AMATEURS TO BOX IN J. O. Y. TOURNEY TONIGHT

The Benny Leonards and Barney Rosses of tomorrow will start their boxing careers tonight at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. Eager and ambitious youths—more than 200 of them—will attempt to march toward the goal reached by other Jewish fighters in the first annual Jewish Organized Youth boxing tournament.

This organization, a newcomer in Chicago amateur athletics, has brought together the strong and stout hearted youngsters in an effort to send more Jewish fighters into the boxing ranks. From this tournament the survivors will take their next step in THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament.

Quarter-Finals Tomorrow.

There will be speedy little flyweights, fast stepping and hard punching lightweights, and the knock 'em out type of King Levinsky and Max Baer in the field of boxers who will climb into the ring tonight and attempt to display their fistic prowess.

The winners of tonight's preliminary fights will compete in the quarter-finals tomorrow night. The semi-finals and finals will be held Thursday night. The first pair of boxers will climb through the ropes at 6 o'clock.

The entrants include several boxers who already have made a name in major amateur tournaments. Among them is Irving [Izzy] Goldstein, a member of last year's Chicago Golden Gloves team. Goldstein, a scrappy bantamweight, is one of the favorites to win the championship in his division.

Joe Lubin to Fight.

There are others who have become favorites to win because of their ability to swap punches for three minutes in every round. They include Joe Lubin, Harold Brown, and Milt Aranson, a 17 year old lightweight, who traveled to Chicago from Dubuque, Ia., with an eye on the 135 pound title.

A trophy will be awarded to the winning team. Fifteen teams are entered, and among them are the Jewish People's institute, the Boys' Brotherhood Republic, Hakoah S. A. C., Franklin Park, Sons and Daughters of the Congregation Mount Zion, and the Troy Tiger Athletic club.

The boys who will be crowned champions next Thursday night will immediately go into training with other members of the organization for THE TRIBUNE'S tournament. A statuette will be awarded to the champions, and a prize will be given to the boy who shows the best sportsmanship.

Hold Physical Examinations.

While these boxers pound each other around the J. P. I. ring tonight Golden Gloves entrants will be undergoing physical examinations at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. More than 300 boxers will be examined by THE TRIBUNE'S physicians.

The Catholic Youth organization has entered 257 boxers in the Tribune meet. They will be examined tomorrow night at the C. Y. O. headquarters, 31 East Congress street. The field includes the organization's champions who fought a combined Los Angeles-San Francisco team recently on the Pacific coast.

GOLDEN GLOVE TICKETS

Mail orders are now being accepted for THE TRIBUNE'S seventh annual amateur boxing tournament. Fans who prefer seats up front are urged to send in their orders this week.

Three hundred fighting men from 35 cities and colleges in Chicagoland will battle it out with the strongest and bravest from the Catholic Youth Organization, the Jewish Organized Youth, the athletic clubs, gymnasiums, and an army of unattached Chicagoans in the great Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium Feb. 26, 27 and 28.

The prices of tickets for these three nights are $1.10, 66 cents and 40 cents.

Then come the finals, March 9, which will crown the Golden Gloves champions of 1934. They will be the survivors of the thousands from Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Tennessee, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Nebraska who had the courage to test their fistic skill in man to man fashion.

Tickets for the finals are priced at $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10 and 55 cents. All seats are reserved.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Catching the Toronto Maple Leafs two men short early in the final period, the Detroit Red Wings sank the goal with which they won a fast National Hocky league match, 2 to 1, tonight.

Red Horner was serving his third penalty of the game, with Blair his companion in the penalty box when Carson sank the goal that won the game, aided by Goodfellow and Aurie.

The Wings scored in the first period, Sorrell making good a pass from Aurie after 13 minutes of play, and the Leafs tied the count after 14 minutes of the second period had elapsed, Blair sinking a pass from Cotton.

CANADIENS WIN, 2-0

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens moved back into second place in the National Hocky league's Canadian division by defeating the New York Americans, 2 to 0, tonight before a crowd of 10,000. The victory broke the Canadiens' tie with the Montreal Maroons.

Jack Riley was the scoring star and one of the leading defensive figures as well. Early in the third period he snared the puck deep in New York territory and left it where little Aurel Joliat could step in and drive the first goal past Roy Worters. Later in the same period Riley got a perfect pass-out from Sylvio Mantha and banged in the second counter.

Lineup:

Maroons Face Gophers; Iowa Plays Indiana

Two Big Ten games, which will not affect conference leadership but will have bearing on championship hopes of the contestants, are scheduled for tonight. One of these finds the Iowa quintet at Bloomington, Ind., and the other brings together Minnesota and Chicago on the Midway.

Minnesota, led by Gordon Norman, who is now leading the conference in scoring, will be after its fourth consecutive Big Ten victory. With victories over Northwestern, Chicago, and Ohio State during the last two weeks, the Gophers have thrust themselves into position to strike for second place tonight. The Maroons had hoped to elude the cellar in their home engagement with Minnesota, but the loss of Bill Haarlow renders the chance feeble.

Purple Meets Wabash.

Indiana, which with Iowa, Purdue, and Wisconsin have played the least number of games in the circuit, is now strengthened by the eligibility of Fred Fechtman, 6 foot 7 inch center, but Iowa must be rated the favorite tonight. The game will bring together the two tallest centers in the league in Fechtman and Bastian. Minnesota's hope of reaching second place depends upon their beating the Maroons while Indiana is defeating Iowa.

Northwestern's basketball team will resume activities tonight against Wabash college at Patten gymnasium. The game will serve to put the Wildcats on edge for their next conference game with Chicago next Saturday night.

Michigan State at Wisconsin.

Coach Dutch Lonborg will be forced to stick to his regular lineup against the visitors in view of their formidable appearance against Indiana and Butler. The Wildcats coach isn't at all sure that his charges will be able to stand off the Hoosier team.

CHINSKI TO MEET MERRITT TONIGHT ON MIDWAY CARD

Tod Kelly and Al Schiarato [4], 135.
Chuck Roberts and Tommy Habel [4], 152.
Mike Mantisch and Frank Walah [wrestling].

Lenny Cohen, 1933 Golden Gloves flyweight runner-up, will engage in his first main event as a professional against Bobby O'Dowd, Sioux City, Ia., bantamweight, at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight. The bout is set for eight rounds at 118 pounds, a half pound less than O'Dowd weighed when he was awarded a close decision over Lenny last Thursday.

Jimmy Cummings vs. Bobby Millsapp [4], 158.
Frank Mirabal vs. Jose Flores [4], 123.
Buday Ray vs. Jack McAdams [wrestling].

Frank Sigillo, Chicago lightweight, will be after his thirteenth professional triumph in as many starts in a six-round engagement with Harry Booker at Cicero stadium Friday.

Buy Licenses, Hunters, and Shield Game

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois sportsmen are facing a rather serious situation with respect to the budget of the department of conservation, according to the latest statistics on the money available for increasing game and fish.

Revenue from the sale of licenses in this state has decreased until now the department of conservation has a fund that is 40 per cent less than it was a few years ago.

On the current budget it is impossible for the state to turn out an increasingly large number of pheasants for hunters to shoot each fall, maintain fish hatcheries and build new ones which are being asked for, and generally do a good job of conservation work including game enforcement.

Licenses Must Go Up.

It looks as if all of us who hunt and fish in Illinois would have to "ante up" more money for licenses if we want our outdoor sport to improve.

Today Illinois charges $1. for a hunting license. This isn't what one might call a large fee. Although there still are some states asking just $1 for a resident hunting license, a glance at the government booklet on state laws shows that a very large number have a resident license fee which costs more than $1.

What Other States Are Doing.

Alabama, cost of resident hunting license, $3; Minnesota, $1; Missouri, $2.50; New Jersey, $2.15 [New Jersey just purchased 10,000 rabbits and freed them in the state]; North Dakota, $1.50; New York, $2.25; Pennsylvania, $2; Indiana, $1.

Under the present system of operating a conservation department in Illinois the hunters and fishermen receive in benefits just as much as they willingly put in that department by investing in licenses. If the license fee is too low or sales are not made in sufficient quantity, work to increase game and fish naturally suffers.

Sparta Beats Cleveland in Cup Play, 6-0

Sparta, professional soccer champion of Chicago, defeated the Cleveland Indians, 6 to 0, yesterday at the Sparta stadium in the second round of the national cup elimination series. The victory put Sparta in the western semi-finals with the Wieboldt Wonderbolts.

The Indians, who had come here with a wide reputation, were completely outclassed.

Wolf opened the scoring in the first period and Vleck followed it up with a second goal on a long solo run, shooting past Ramsay, the Cleveland goalie.

The Spartas scored in the first two minutes of the second period, when Greenleas placed a perfect corner for Pavlieck to score. Wolf, Nudera, and Vleck scored again later in the period. Lineups:

SPARTA [6].		CLEVELAND [0].

GRAIN TRADING DRAWING MORE PUBLIC INTEREST

Wheat Rises 2 to 2¾c During Week.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A much more friendly feeling toward the bull side of the grain markets was apparent at the close last week and public participation showed signs of broadening.

Uncertainty over the monetary situation and the grain exchange code has caused many operators to await a clearing of the situation. It is now expected the exchange code will be signed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace shortly, thus eliminating one of the factors restricting trading. This move would tend to bring the outlook for the new winter wheat crop to the fore as a major market influence.

Although American wheat prices are far above a world parity, there are many operators who expect further appreciation, paying little attention to the prospect that a "ceiling" may be created by imports from Argentina in event of a substantial upturn.

Believe Crop Overestimated.

The rapid inroads being made into the domestic visible supply and prospects of another large reduction to be shown in today's statement have strengthened trade belief that the 1933 crop was probably overestimated.

Another practically rainless week was felt over the greater part of the winter wheat belt, and the official forecast held little prospect of relief. Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, and eastern Colorado, which seeded 60 per cent of the total for the country, would be greatly benefited by a soaking rain.

Gains 2c to 2⅝c in Week.

Despite the lack of a large trade, wheat closed Saturday at net gains of 2 to 2⅜ cents for the week, with May at 92¾ to 92⅝ cents, July at 91¼ to 91¼ cents, and September at 92 cents. Ranges of prices follow:

	May.	July.	Sept.
Monday	91 -92⅜	89⅝-91	90⅝-92¼
Tuesday	92⅝-93⅝	91 -91¾	92⅝-93
Wednesday	91¼-92½	89⅝-90⅜	90⅛-91⅞
Thursday	91½-92⅝	89⅝-91⅝	90⅛-92⅝
Friday	90⅝-91⅝	88⅝-90⅝	90⅛-91¼
Saturday	91⅜-92⅞	90⅛-91⅝	91¼-92⅝
For week	90⅝-93⅝	89½-91¾	90⅛-93
Prev. week	88⅝-90⅝	87 -89¼	88 -90⅜
Last year	46 -47⅞	46⅝-48⅜	47⅜-49½

Season	71½-1.28⅛	74½-91⅛	82⅝-93
1932-33	48¼-64½	43⅜-67½	45⅛-52

The campaign for corn and hog production control is now in full swing and preliminary reports indicate that there is less opposition than was the case in the wheat acreage curtailment movement. The plan calls for a total reduction of 15 per cent in the corn acreage, or about 15,000,000 acres. The market, however, has not been affected by the prospect that the smallest acreage will be planted this year since 1895, when the area was approximately that aimed at by the AAA.

Distiller Demand Is Factor.

Distilling demand for corn and rye is a factor in the markets this season, as an official estimate indicates 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels of the two grains will be required for the production of alcohol during 1934.

Corn prices held within a range of 1⅝ cents during the last week and closed Saturday at gains of ⅛ to ⅝ cent as compared with a week ago. May closed at 52⅜ to 52⅝ cents, July at 54⅜ to 54½ cents, and September at 56¼ cents. Ranges of prices follow:

	May.	July.	Sept.
Monday	52⅛-53	54⅜-54⅞	55⅝-56¼
Tuesday	52⅝-53⅜	54⅛-55⅜	56 -56⅜

Oat Trading Is Light.

Traders who have expected a shortage of oats to develop are still looking for the prospective demand that will cut down the liberal stocks at terminal markets. The supply is believed to be liberally hedged by sales of futures and the speculative trade has not been sufficiently broad to bring about a sustained advance.

However, current prices are more than double those of a year ago.

Net gains for the week were ¼ to ½ cent, May closing at 38⅛ to 38¼ cents, July at 37½ cents, and September at 37¼ cents. Ranges of prices follow:

	May.	July.	Sept.
Monday	38 -38⅛	37⅛-37⅝	36⅜-37

Rye Scores Net Gains.

Spasmodic trade marked rye futures. Holders anxious to sell on all bulges and investors took hold on breaks. Supplies were large and the interest in the market best in recent years.

Final prices showed net gains of 1¼ to 1⅝ cents for the week. May closed at 62⅞ cents, July at 63⅞ cents, and September at 64⅞ cents.

Steel Group Expects Gain in Operation

With the allocation of 12,725 freight cars and other rolling stock by the Van Sweringen lines at the close of last week, and with assurances by government officials that the bulk of the tonnage in rails and fastenings to be financed by federal funds for American carriers will be placed between March 1 and June 1, steel producers look forward to an early expansion in operations, reports the mazagine Steel.

Preparations for increased output are already indicated in the net gain of twelve active blast furnaces during January. Since Feb. 1 three more steel works stacks have been blown in.

It was chiefly heavier automotive releases that caused the rise in last week's operations to 36 per cent of capacity, or three points more than in the preceding week. None the less, all lines of manufacturing are buying more.

Most Centers Report Gains.

The rate of production increased last week in most of the main producing centers. At Chicago it rose 1 point to 31 per cent of capacity, at Buffalo 2 to 34, at Cleveland 5 to 69, in eastern Pennsylvania 2 to 25¼, at Detroit 33 to 79. Operations were unchanged at 64 in Wheeling and at 52 in Birmingham. They fell 3 to 19 at Pittsburgh and 4 to 82 in New England.

While the long deferred business from the automotive industry and the carriers seems at last to be within reach, developments in public works projects are still slow. Structural shape awards for the week amounted to 15,024 tons, showing little change from the preceding week.

The Pennsylvania railroad is expected this week to begin releasing material on its contracts for electrification. The Illinois Central is taking bids on 3,800 tons for a bridge at Cairo, Ill. The government also is taking bids on 8,785 tons of plates, shapes, and bars for seven airplane carriers.

Heavy Scrap Buying Seen.

More active purchasing of scrap is anticipated as soon as some of the larger orders reach the mills. The leading interest at Pittsburgh has bought 17,000 tons of No. 1 heavy melting steel at $13.50 a ton and the market continues strong.

Production of pig iron improved substantially last month, reports the journal. Daily average output was 39,426 gross tons and the total 1,222,214. In both cases output was the best since October, 1933, and the largest for January since 1931.

As an evident consequence of monetary depreciation, remarks Steel, exports of American iron and steel rose 17 per cent to 184,585 gross tons in December, the largest total for any month since May, 1930. Imports expanded only 7 per cent to 31,310 tons.

Exports for 1933 increased 126 per cent to 1,350,692 tons, exceeding both 1932 and 1931. Imports agained 9.2 per cent to 414,790 tons.

AUTO INDUSTRY OUTLOOK BRIGHT, E. FORD ASSERTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Business conditions in the automobile industry are highly encouraging, with sales, production, and number of employés far ahead of last year, Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company and son of Henry Ford, said in an interview here tonight. Mr. Ford said that production in January was 57,500 cars, which was 10,791 more than originally had been scheduled for the month.

"That was the largest January production since January, 1930," said Mr. Ford. "It was the largest production of any month since June, 1932."

The reason for the marked increase in production, he said, was the demand of dealers, and this in turn reflected the feeling of the public that they now can afford new cars after several years of holding off.

"It is a reflection of better conditions in the country," Mr. Ford said.

Mr. Ford said that the improvement had been especially marked in the south. It was greatest generally in industrial areas. The Pacific coast showed some improvement, but the gain was less in the middle west.

MODERN LIVING STANDARD SET ON USE OF POWER

BY REUBEN CAHN.

Today's high living standard is made possible by power, largely mechanical power, applied in the production of goods on a large scale. It has to be mechanical power, because there aren't anything like enough people to do the work of the country by hand. If human beings supplied the only source of power, 99 per cent of what is now accomplished would have to remain undone.

In 1929 there were slightly less than 49 million persons with gainful occupations. That included the women and the children who were earning money. It took in the white collar workers and the professional men. The crippled and the sick were likewise added in. But counting all these, there were less than 49 million. The work which is actually done represents the equivalent of the physical efforts of more than 4 thousand million strong men. That is, the 125 million people of this country enjoy the fruits of the labor of 4,000 million able bodied men.

Without mechanical energy we wouldn't have cheap clothing, food, transportation or entertainment. And in that case we would have only one per cent of the goods and services we now have available.

Power Required by The Tribune.

Turning out THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE requires the work of several thousand workmen and physical energy equal to that done by 67,000 horses in one hour or 8,375 horses working at top speed in an 8 hour day. Engineers add one-quarter to this to allow for the fatigue of the horses. Hence, it would be more accurate to place the requisite horses at 10,400. Now the energy of a human being is calculated by engineers to be one-tenth of that of a horse. Hence to produce THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE by manual power would require 104,000 men, working at top speed all day. That is equal to the number of male workers in the factories of Milwaukee.

Assuming that so large a number could be employed so that their work might be effective, that machines could be constructed to use that number of men at once and that the problems of friction could be overcome, the labor cost would be $520,000 at $5 per man per day. Thus the power cost in turning out a SUNDAY TRIBUNE would be 52 cents per copy. As it is the power cost is only six-hundredths of a cent per copy.

And if all these stout men of Milwaukee were helping us to get out our paper, they couldn't be making our good beer and sausages!

Ancients Wasted Human Power.

As one studies the evolution of power, of which the instance just given is a culmination, he is awed by the amazing accomplishments of early peoples, when the only energy available was that supplied by human muscles, aided by nothing more than a few beasts of burden.

You must be appalled as you contemplate that without railroads, motor trucks, cranes, or motor driven tools the great pyramid was erected with a total of nearly six million tons of stone, and individual stones weighing as much as 57 tons. What slavish, albeit well integrated, work must have gone into that edifice! And in view of the state of human existence of that time, what a pity that so colossal a job diverted so much of the available energy away from the production of goods to administer to the immediate needs of the people.

And labor available only from human sources at the time was only 1 per cent as effective as at present. The difference between the ancients and ourselves was not one of skill, or even tools, but of power.

Even by the beginning of Christianity practically all of the common

HOW POWER SUPPLANTS HUMAN LABOR

The following tabulation shows the potential man power of human beings, animals, and the chief sources of mechanical power in the United States in the last 80 years, expressed in thousands of man power. It will be observed that the use of human power has constantly declined in percentage, as also has animal, wind, and water power, while the use of steam and internal combustion engine power has increased.

STAMP IN PLEA FOR WORLD TRADE AS RECOVERY AID

Stabilization Funds Seen as Menace.

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Sir Josiah Stamp warned today that unless the operations of the British and United States stabilization funds are coördinated they will be a menace rather than an aid to recovery.

The prominent British economist, in an address from London, also expressed the hope that the United States "will not attempt to have too great central authority in finance and banking, but will use the federal reserve system even more than in the past.

"The idea that you are getting a sort of sinking fund for a currency war from your profit on revaluation," said the transcript of his speech, "strikes me as an attempt to control fundamental movements, and to do so in the worst way.

"In all our different countries we are beginning to get some kind of domestic revival of trade and confidence, and we are all right in attending to these home questions first. The time has now arrived when we should try to make international trade join in the upswing, and the effect will be cumulative.

Peril to Trade.

"If we continue working blindly at cross purposes with these exchange equalization accounts, we shall not achieve the object, but simply cancel each other out and leave the trade worse off.

"I am astonished that so much attention is paid on your side to our exchange equalization account," he said on the same subject, "for as much appears in your papers in a single week as we get in six months on this subject. The average citizen here is barely aware of its existence, but I strongly suspect that a very large part of the £350,000,000 sterling nominally set aside for this purpose has never in fact been called upon.

"The purpose of the account is to help flatten out erratic, rapid variations in the foreign exchanges between sterling and all the others and so to make international trade more stable, but it is certainly not to hold the exchange at any fixed, unnatural point. The man engaged in foreign trade wants to have some fair idea of what the proceeds in his currency are going to be when the price in the foreign currency is turned back to his own. He may be protected from short-term fluctuations but not from the fundamental ones.

Offers Some Advice.

Sir Josiah issued some advice in conclusion, after expressing the hope he would not be thought "either impudent or presumptuous."

"I think your securities act, while excellent in intention, goes too far and is not really workable. It does not merely punish the financiers of New York; it stops construction and employment in the middle west. I hope you will soon mend it.

"I hope you will for a short time encourage prices and profits to rise faster than wages.

"I hope you will not attempt to have too great central authority in finance and banking but will use the federal reserve system even more than in the past."

Pennsylvania Colliery to Give Work to 1,000 Today

Mount Carmel, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company today announced the Alaska colliery at Mount Carmel would resume operations after being idle for several weeks. The colliery, which is to be reopened tomorrow, will give work to 1,000 men.

RFC APPROVES PLAN OF TWO BALTIMORE SURETY COMPANIES

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Approval by the Reconstruction Finance corporation of one of the largest refunding operations ever attempted in the United States was announced today by officials of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company and Maryland Casualty company, both of Baltimore.

The RFC, according to the announcement, agreed to lend mortgages to companies whose obligations are guaranteed by the two Baltimore surety companies sufficient funds to make a 30 per cent cash distribution to bondholders. The refunding plan applies to approximately $82,000,000 par value of bonds secured by mortgages having the guarantee of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company and the Maryland Casualty company.

The RFC also has agreed to advance to the Maryland Casualty company the necessary funds for the purchase of $7,500,000 of that company's preferred stock. The federal agency also tentatively agreed to purchase $4,000,000 of a new issue of preferred stock which the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company proposes to issue.

The net result of the advances was explained as providing for the distribution to bondholders of the mortgage company obligations of roughly $17,300,000 in cash. The cash payments will be made as soon as details connected with issuance of new bonds and debentures under the terms of the plan can be completed.

TAX COLLECTIONS BY GOVERNMENT $2,090,947,279

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Taxes collected by the government last year amounted to $2,090,947,279, an increase of more than $670,000,000 over 1932.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, in announcing the total today and giving the collections by states, said the state figures were not entirely indicative of the federal tax burden of the respective states, since the taxes might eventually be borne by persons in other states.

New York was credited with 22.6 per cent of the total collections, or $473,708,076. More than half of it came from income taxes. North Carolina was credited with $238,436,526, most of which was from tobacco and cigaret taxes eventually paid by people throughout the entire country. Pennsylvania was third in collections, with $154,167,708, and Illinois fourth, with $136,978,594. California collections were $126,380,332, and those in Virginia $111,937,834, mostly from tobacco and cigaret taxes. No other state showed collections over a hundred million dollars.

Income taxes aggregated $720,458,657, as compared with 1932 collections of $784,617,096—corporation incomes paying $245,174,353 and individual incomes $375,284,304. Miscellaneous internal revenue aggregated $1,229,925,372, as compared with $635,451,497 in 1931. Agricultural adjustment taxes totaled $140,563,248.

Peruvian Banking Circles Pleased by Bond Action

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Banking and financial circles commented favorably today on the reaction to Peruvian bonds in Wall street, believing it to be the result of payment of Peru's fiscal obligations and the regularization of service on internal loans. Some circles were of the opinion that devaluation of the dollar would facilitate the settlement of Peruvian loans to the United States. These amount to $100,000,000.

NEW YORK TRADE GROUPS DEMAND TAX REDUCTION

Insist Government Costs Be Cut.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—A demand for reduction in the cost of state and local government was made today in a joint statement issued by the New York State Economic council, the Merchants' association, the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, the New York Board of Trade, and the citizens' budget commission.

The organizations united in presenting a six point program for tax reduction, and a delegation consisting of the presidents and other officers of the organizations will go to Albany on Thursday to present their case to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and the legislative leaders.

The announcement of the program today continued the declaration that the five organizations represent "most of the principal business and industrial concerns in the state, and a capital investment of billions of dollars.

Will Present Program.

The program, as it will be presented to the governor, was announced as follows:

1. That all general, special, and local state laws, and all provisions of municipal charters and local laws made pursuant thereto, requiring mandatory salary rates and expenditures by local governmental units, be suspended for the period of two years.

2. That the 1934 session of the legislature should not reënact any of the emergency tax laws passed in 1932 and 1933, except as found necessary to balance the state budget after all reasonable reductions in the budget have been made, and that the funded debt of the state should not be further increased. Funds absolutely necessary for relief purposes should be raised by current taxation.

3. The present system of local governments in this state should be simplified and moderated.

Against St. Lawrence Waterway.

4. That the St. Lawrence waterway treaty should not be ratified by the United States. The ratification of that treaty would commit the state of New York to an expenditure of $89,000,000 without compensating advantages to its citizens.

5. Neither the state nor any local government within the state should enter into any additional business activities in competition with private enterprise. It should be made absolutely clear by government that the further invasion of private business activity has been brought to a definite and permanent halt.

6. That the legislature should refrain from enacting any further legislation, the effect of which is to burden industry further with taxes, regulations, the extension of present social insurance legislation, or by adding directly or indirectly further bureaus or departments for such purposes. The whole policy of the legislature should be to encourage and stimulate a revival of legitimate private business activity.

Fall of Insull Empire Under House Scrutiny

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A comprehensive survey of events leading up to the fall of the Insull utility empire is being made by the interstate commerce committee of the house of representatives with a view to framing new federal utility legislation designed to correct the abuses which grew up in the last decade.

The survey of the committee, headed by Congressman Rayburn of Texas, is being made as a complement to inquiries of the federal trade commission, whose investigations take in all the important gas and power utility companies in the country.

Study Empire Collapse.

Agents of the Rayburn committee have been in Chicago for several months inquiring into various phases of the Insull collapse. Particular attention has been paid to the Middle West Utilities company, largest of the Insull enterprises, and the twin investment companies, Corporation Securities and Insull Utility, Inc., through which Insull ruled his vast domain that extended into 30 states and included properties whose assets had a one-time value of upward of 3 billion dollars.

The investigation is being carried on independently of the department of justice and the district attorney and has no direct connection with the cases pending against officials of the Corporation Securities company who were indicted by the federal grand jury on mail fraud charges.

Agents of the committee are still in Chicago chasing down various angles of the case. Records of the Middle West Utilities company and other concerns in the group have been made available to the committee's agents.

Eye Interlocking Deals.

The spotlight of the committee has been turned particularly on the various intercompany transactions which played such an important part in paving the way for the downfall of the Insull group. Special attention is also being given claims made by banking houses offering securities of the two Insull investment companies, Corporation Securities and Insull Utilities.

The survey is primarily one of fact finding. When the new federal utility legislation is enacted it is believed that stringent provision will be included to ban the most flagrant of the abuses practiced in the Insull system.

Milking of subsidiaries by parent companies in order to service top-heavy debt structures sometimes took the form of "upstream loans" or declarations of dividends which crippled the underlying companies. Effective legislation against such transactions is considered certain.

Public Hearing Next Month.

Meanwhile the federal trade commission is carrying on its investigations of various Insull companies, along with other gas and electric utilities. The affairs of Central and Southwest Utilities company, a principal subholding company of the Middle West system, is now being aired. A public hearing on the affairs of this concern was held last week.

$5,064,000 in French Gold Francs Reaches New York

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A shipment of 80,000,000 of gold francs, purchased by the federal government and consigned to the Federal Reserve bank, arrived today aboard the United States liner Roosevelt. At current quotations of the franc it is worth $5,064,000 American dollars—before the United States left the gold standard its value would have been $3,134,320 in American dollars. It forms a substantial part of the quantities of gold which have poured into the country since President Roosevelt established the gold price at $35 an ounce.

DOLLAR ACTION AT WASHINGTON BOOMS MARKET

Funds from Abroad Pour Into U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Thanks to another timely "prime" from Washington—this one in the form of dollar devaluation, adoption of a gold bullion standard, and the establishment of an exchange stabilization fund—the share market is currently reveling in its biggest midwinter play in years.

Trading on the exchange last week reached a total of 19,793,216 shares, the largest turnover for any similar period since the week ended July 22 of last year, when the turnover was 42,355,323 shares. Prices rose to approximately their best levels of last July, with a long string of speculative favorites going to new peaks for the last two years or longer.

Funds from Abroad.

Brokers report a tremendous flow of funds from abroad into the market, not only of foreign capital seeking employment in rising American securities but of American funds which took refuge in London, Paris, and other European capitals when the dollar was falling to one new low after another in such alarming fashion a while back.

Europe, from all accounts, has been convinced for some time that this country is heading for currency inflation, and the current influx of buying orders for our stocks and bonds is said to be based primarily on this assumption. They think over there, the cables say, that the speculative elements of Wall and La Salle streets do not realize the imminence—if not the inevitability—of inflation; hence the comparative caution that has marked market operations here over the period of the last two or three months.

Business Gains Reported.

Dollar devaluation aside, however, many American speculators think they can find sufficient basis in the brightening business picture to warrant buying of stocks at present levels or holding those in hand for higher prices. Latest statistics on rail traffic, automobile, lumber, and steel production all contribute to this constructive view. Advices from Youngstown yesterday said that a substantial stepping up of activity in that steel center was anticipated for the new week, and week-end accounts from the automobile plants told of a constant rise in employment figures there. Dun & Bradstreet's Weekly Review of Friday pictured retail trade as on the mend throughout the country, with some centers making the best showing in two years or more.

Chart-wise, the trend still points up, although the averages have yet to surpass decisively their midsummer tops, the railroad group lagging a few points below that highly important level and the utilities facing a still wider margin. Some observers think, indeed, that a technical reaction of some sort is about due, although agreeing that the outlook is for still higher prices before the snow flies.

Fear Action by Congress.

Some nervousness exists over what congress may do in the way of stock exchange regulation, and there are those who entertain misgivings over the possibilities of "60 cent dollar" repercussions abroad; but by and large the sentiment of the community is still predominantly bullish.

MODERN LIVING STANDARD BASED ON USE OF POWER

Vast Work Impossible to Humans Is Done.

hand tools of today, planes, chisels, hammers and blacksmith equipment were used by the various artisans. In addition, the compasses, rules, water levels and other precision instruments so necessary in engineering had been developed. Something was known of the properties of metals and even crude but simple machines were in operation. And yet the standard of living was low in the extreme. We have many times the power of the ancient workmen and can employ it effectively.

Animals, which were the earliest means of augmenting human power, have been in use for at least forty centuries, in agriculture, transportation and construction work. In countries favorable to stock raising, the number of oxen, horses and mules increased rapidly. But where long dry summers affected pastures, the use of animal power was at a minimum. For a very long time after there were beasts of burden, heavy labor was supplied by human beings. In the densely populated countries of the east, labor was cheap and slaves were abundant for most needs.

Growth of Power Rapid.

Statistics are not available to show the extent to which humans augmented their own power at the various periods of history. But in any case about six times as much has been accomplished in direction of getting auxiliary power in the last 75 years than in all previous time taken together.

The accompanying table traces the development of energy in the United States commencing with the middle of the nineteenth century.

By the year 1849, Americans had been able to augment their bodily power to a remarkable extent. For although there were at the time only 7 million people in the United States engaged at some occupation they had the capacity to do the work of 107 million men. In the census of 1930, the government found only 48,889,992 people with gainful occupations. Thus, even today we have only enough persons, supposing all of them to do a full day's physical work, to apply 45 per cent of the power of which the forty-niners were able, thanks to the aid of their horses, mules, water wheels, windmills, and steam engines.

1859	.15	1909	.30
1869	.15	1919	.42
1879	.17	1929	.82
1889	.20

Individual Power Use Mounts.

Thus, while the average worker in 1849 had 14 horses working with him, today he is holding the reins on 82. The difference is that the horse of eighty years ago was of flesh and bone, had a hairy tail and ate oats; today the horse is made of steel and copper, has gadgets and thrives on a diet of coal, oil or gasoline.

It is of interest to note in the accompanying table that water wheels, though they had been employed importantly in New England from early days, were in 1849 of scarcely more importance than windmills as a source of energy. At this time, although steam engines had been in use for many years, the aggregate man power of all steam engines in this country was only three times that of the windmills, and but a sixth of that of horses, mules, and oxen.

Steam engines soon began to increase rapidly, doubling in potential power every decade for four decades, until by 1889, steam had displaced beast as the principal source of energy of the American people.

Water Power Develops Slowly.

Water wheels increased very slowly for fifty years after the middle of the last century and did not until 1909 become an important source of power. That was the first census year in which the aggregate power produced by water wheels was larger than that of human beings. Thereafter there was a faster growth. Man power of water wheels in the United States nearly doubled between 1909 and 1919. To 1923, there was a further increase. But it is of interest to note that the total amount of water power used in 1923 was only equal to the growth of steam power for the four year period from 1919 to 1923.

It has been estimated that the total horse power of potential water power resources in the United States, taking only that available for 90 per cent of the time, is 34,818,000 horse power, and if that were reduced to 50 per cent of the time, the total amount of horse power possibly developed would be 55,030,000. Deducting what was already available, it appears that all the water power capable of being developed, which would be dependable 90 per cent of the time or more, would add only as much to our available energy as is represented by the capacity of the work animals now in use.

When it is recalled that the total horse power of all prime movers in use in 1923 was 234,000,000 horse power, it is readily seen that water power's potential of 34,818,000 at 90 per cent of the time or even its total of 55,000,000 at 50 per cent of the time, has no chance of displacing other steam and other sources of power, even if carried to maximum development. Since 1919, there has been a considerable stimulation to water power development, but despite that fact the total amount of power developed by water wheels in 1929 was only 7.4 per cent of the total energy obtained from mineral fuels. Water contributed the largest share of the power in 1849 when 6.1 per cent of the total came from that source. That was the year when water wheels did the largest percentage of the total work of the United States. Since 1919, it has declined in relative importance.

Engines Prove Worth.

The greatest addition to power in recent years has come from the internal combustion engine. This is the source of 48 per cent of the power now available in the United States—and this is exclusive of pleasure automobiles. The larger part of the power now developed by internal combustion engines is that secured from gasoline engines used in the propulsion of commercial trucks, buses, motor boats and aeroplanes and in driving concrete mixers, hoists, air compressors, etc. A growing amount of power is from Diesel engines using fuel oil. Engines of this type have been constructed to develop 15,000 horse power. They are already widely used for marine purposes and in small electric generating plants.

DOLLAR DEVALUATION, AUTO SHOW QUICKEN BUSINESS IN CHICAGO

The local market has been quickened by the automobile show and the business drawn here by monetary devaluation, observes the Chicago Association of Commerce. Further improvement is anticipated as a result of the meeting of the Interstate Merchants' council opening in Chicago today.

Purchases of small cars at the automobile show in most instances surpassed expectations, according to the association. Distributors of tires and accessories have shared in the improved business.

Several large retail organizations of Canada have reëntered the Chicago market because of the more favorable relation of Canadian currency to American, it is said. Orders for later delivery are reaching Chicago in good volume from every part of the country, particularly the northwest. The ready-to-wear business is more active than usual.

Increases in purchases of raw materials by local manufacturers tend to support the belief that production will expand in early March. One large building materials manufacturer is planning large additions to his personnel, effective March 1.

7 MORE LINERS WILL BRING GOLD CARGOES TO U. S.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Although $35,000,000 of gold is already on the Atlantic, there is no sign tonight that the gold rush to New York is slackening. Seven liners are scheduled to leave the channel ports for America this week, and space on all has been booked for gold.

The first to leave will be the Volendam, sailing Wednesday, then the President Harding on Thursday. The Paris, the Deutschland, and the Pennland are due to sail Friday and the Laurentic and the Europa Saturday.

While the figures are not available, it is understood that all the liners will carry heavy quantities of bullion sent to New York in the hope of reaping a profit from the disparity between the American and the European prices of gold.

Net Profits of Loew's, Inc., Shows Sharp Increase

New York, Feb. 4.—Net profit of Loew's, Inc., for 12 weeks ended Nov. 23 amounted to $1,594,608, compared with $741,910 in the 12 weeks ended Nov. 24, 1932. Operating profit was $2,732,607, compared with $1,756,815 in the comparable period a year ago, and depreciation and taxes totaled $1,137,999, against $1,014,905.

TRADE IN BONDS NEAR RECORD AT HIGHER PRICES

Domestic Corporations Lead in Strength.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—The demonstrations of strength in the bond market during the last week, with the volume of trading close to the heaviest on record, eclipsed the showing of the share and other markets. The 59.06-cent dollar touched off the pent-up potential demand for bonds of virtually every shade of credit rating.

A total of $126,172,900 of bonds was traded on the New York exchange during the week, the greatest since the week ended April 22, 1922. Saturday's two-hour trading period contributed $17,440,000 to this total, the turnover that day ranking second largest for a Saturday in the history of the exchange.

Corporation Liens Lead.

As a result of this almost unprecedented buying of bonds last week domestic corporation bonds, which were the center of attention, scored their widest advance since the week ended April 29, 1933, following the banking holiday.

As indicated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's average of forty issues, the average appreciation last week was $25.50 per $1,000 bond.

The rise in prices carried the average to 80.20, the highest since Sept. 4, 1931, when the level was 80.35.

An examination of the upward surge of prices reveals that railroad and industrial bonds, as groups, outstripped the utilities. This, bankers see as the result of the fact that through the depression the utilities have held up better than the other two groups. With buyers of bonds currently concerned with appreciation of principal as well as fixed return, the low priced rails and industrials have afforded the greater bargains. The absence of new corporation financing has left the field entirely to old issues, and January is the normal reinvestment period.

Government Aids Rails.

The use in railroad bond has been furthered by the knowledge that governmental agencies are doing the financing needed at a time when the market is not absorbing new issues. Agitation has already been started in Washington to make the financing of the carriers a permanent government function, taking it out of the hands of the bankers.

United States government bonds, reflecting the success of the recent treasury financing and the smoothing of the path of the additional financing that is to come, advanced 7-32ds to more than 2 full points. Federal support of the market continues an important influence.

MORE ELEC. EQUIPMENT MADE.

Electrical equipment manufacturers are increasing operating schedules in household appliances and novelties. In the heavier lines orders continue to run in small volume.

Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information on Texas Gulf Sulphur? Thanks.—B. A. J.

Answer: Texas Gulf Sulphur has facilities for mining more than 1,700,000 tons of sulphur a year from its deposits in Texas. Production is about 60 per cent of normal domestic requirements and about twice that of Freeport Texas company, its only major competitor.

Normally about 40 per cent of output is used in the chemical industry, about 25 per cent for fertilizer and 15 per cent for pulp and paper.

The company's reserves are estimated to be sufficient for 35 years. The management has made extensive efforts to acquire new sources of supply, as the only wholly owned deposit is expected to be exhausted within a few years. Its two other major deposits are leased from a subsidiary of Gulf Oil corporation.

Farmers during the third quarter of 1933 sought to offset the reduction of farm acreage, effected through cooperation with the AAA, with increased production per acre. This has resulted in a sharp stimulus to fertilizer production. The effect is evident in the third quarter report of Texas Gulf Sulphur. Net income for the third quarter was $2,611,000, or $1.03 per share, against net of $1,435,000, or 56 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1932. Net for the first nine months of 1933 was $5,026,000, or $1.99 per share, against net of $4,542,000, or $1.79 per share, for the corresponding 1932 period.

The four year record of earnings follow:

	Tonnage.	*Net Inc. per Sh.	*Inc.
1932	568,018	$ 5,910,000	$2.33
1931	1,297,637	8,943,000	3.52
1930	1,737,054	13,972,000	5.50
1929	1,403,642	16,247,000	6.40

*After depreciation but before depletion.

Maintenance of the domestic price of $18 a ton since 1926 has been of substantial benefit in maintaining earnings.

At the close of 1932 current ratio was about 20 to 1. Cash alone of $2,147,000 compared with total current liabilities of $909,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization is represented solely by 2,540,000 shares of no par stock. With the Dec. 15, 1933, disbursement, the dividend rate was doubled to 50 cents a quarter.

On the board of directors are Thomas S. Lamont and George Whitney, both of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Douglas Aircraft.

Answer: Semi-annual dividends of 37½ cents per share are payable Sept. 21 and March 21.

JANUARY PILES UP GOOD RECORD OF TRADE GAINS

Improvement in Textiles Embraces Most Lines.

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—With automobile factories, steel plants, and textile mills expanding production and recalling workers, American business has started the second month of 1934 on the upgrade.

January piled up impressive records. One review said January records of retail distribution indicated unquestionably that consumer buying was the largest in three years. Industrial production averaged some 25 per cent higher than last year.

Improvement in textiles has embraced almost all lines. Cotton mills, which curtailed activity 25 per cent in December to permit a working down of accumulated inventories, now find themselves, according to the cotton textile institute, with unfilled orders amounting to seven weeks' current production, a better situation than prevailed in this industry in 1929.

Orders at High Level.

Mills in the first three weeks of January reported orders amounting to 160 per cent of production. Woolen mills are widening schedules, and the volume of orders for silk and rayon fabrics was reported as excellent.

Among miscellaneous lines, shoe manufacturers have stepped up production to meet spring requirements. The glass making industry continues active. Machine tool makers are still feeling the demand for automobile plant equipment. Paint manufacturers are doing more business than last year.

Building, despite the marked improvement over a year ago, resulting chiefly from government expenditures, has not yet stepped up sufficiently to give producers of building materials any pronounced stimulus.

Heavy Goods Slow.

The production of heavy, or capital, goods still remains the soft spot in the business structure, and to its relatively low level is attributed much of the continued unemployment. The heavy government expenditures in the next few months, it is hoped, may take up much of this slack.

Business executives are now interested chiefly in the question as to how soon business may be able to stand on its own feet without the aid of huge government spending.

ROADS EXTEND AIR-RAIL SERVICE IN NEW ENGLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Extensions of railway controled air service in New England and the establishment of air-rail service between Montreal and Miami were announced yesterday.

The Rutland railroad, which is controled by the New York Central, has completed arrangements with the Eastern Air Transport, Inc., for a twenty-two hour Montreal-Miami schedule, including one overnight train journey between Montreal and New York. This will be additional to the rail-air service in effect between New York and Montreal in December.

The Boston and Maine and Central Vermont, the latter controled by the Canadian National, will extend air service to Manchester, N. H., and Burlington, Vt., on Wednesday, bringing to ten the number of cities served by air by these companies and the Maine Central.

RECORD IS SET IN CONNECTICUT MUTUAL INCOME

The total income of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company of Hartford during 1933 was the largest in its 88 years of existence, amounting to $47,661,153, James Lee Loomis, president, announces. Total income for 1932 was $44,952,271.

Mr. Loomis declared that a broadening demand for life insurance was evidenced in the total of 18.042 lives insured in 1933, against 16,695 in 1932. The volume of $72,262,205 compared with $85,807,419 in the preceding year.

Insurance in force now stands at $903,879,081, or about 5 per cent less than that at the end of 1932. The company distributed $29,363,331 to policyholders and beneficiaries, the largest aggregate in its history. As of Dec. 31, 1933, assets stood at $226,064,961, or $7,258,653 more than the year before.

Kroger Grocery Sales Rise 5.2 Pct. in January Period

Kroger Grocery and Baking company reports sales for the four weeks ended Jan. 27 of $15,397,725, against $14,628,143 in the same 1932 period, a gain of 5.2 per cent. In the preceding four weeks volume increased 4.8 per cent over a year ago. Average number of stores in operation was 4,387, against 4,730 in 1933, a drop of 7.2 per cent.

CHICAGO BANKS AWAIT HEARINGS TO ADOPT CODE

Favor Leeway in Making Service Charges.

BY WILLIAM YATES.

Work on Chicago's banking code has been virtually suspended pending public hearings on the national pact in Washington on Feb. 15, it was learned yesterday. Since Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, canceled bankers' schedules of new charges to depositors on Dec. 29, efforts have been made to revise objectional features to conform with opinions of the administration.

Chicago bankers in particular thought many charges which the code stipulated were too high and that discretionary powers should be left to the individual banks for application in particular cases. Discussions have centered along these lines, but until the February hearings have been completed no final decision is expected.

Groups Adopt Own Codes.

Under the plan a national model would be established, but each clearing house association or small group of neighboring banks desiring to band together was allowed to form its own code, provided charges equaled or exceeded minimums stipulated in the national article.

Chicago's code, which will include suburban banks, is expected to change existing charges very little. Bankers refuse to reveal details, but one spokesman said present plans call or no startling revisions, such as New York bankers contemplated before the NRA postponed application of their code.

Local service charges vary to some extent, but in general follow the same pattern. Loop banks require from $400 to $500 as a minimum for checking accounts and assess from $1 to $2.50 monthly if average daily balances fall below these figures. In general, ten checks are allowed to be drawn against the account free of charge and 5 cents is charged for each additional check.

Charges of Outlying Banks.

Minimum requirements of outlying banks range from $200 to $500. Fifteen cents is charged downtown for certified checks of from $1 to $150, and 5 cents is added for each additional $50. Outlying banks maintain a minimum of 25 cents. In some cases 4 cents is charged for each personal check drawn and 3 cents for each check deposited.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST

What Marinello Training Means

We regard our graduates as personal representatives of the Marinello System. Therefore every girl is trained to the highest degree of efficiency before receiving her certificate. Each girl is graduated with the equivalent of at least a year's practical experience and ready to earn big money at once. That's good economy, good sense.

NOW!—the Lowest Rates in Our History

Day or evening classes now forming. Easy tuition payments. Free International Employment Service—or we will help you establish your own business.
